REPORTED WILBUR WILL RESIGN, BUT HE DENIES REBUKE FROM PRESIDENT

Navy Secretary, After Hour's Visit at White House, Denies Recall Was Due to Speeches.

INQUIRY OF NAVAL UNITS CONSIDERED

Conference Devoted to a Proposal to Study of the Airplane, With View to Expansion of Service.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—A board of naval experts is to be appointed to make a study of the comparative value of the airplane, the submarine and the battleship in the first line of defense, Secretary of the Navy Wilbur announced today after an hour's conference with President Coolidge.

The Secretary denied the reports that his sudden recall from the Pacific Coast had been occasioned by his speeches. The subject was not even mentioned at the White House this morning, he said. The time was chiefly occupied discussing Mr. Coolidge's belief, first announced from the White House last Tuesday, that the round-the-world flight had emphasized the increasing importance of aviation and the need for considering greater aviation expansion, possibly at the expense of the battleship.

Wilbur reiterated his conviction that the battleship's day is not done; that it is still the backbone of the fleet and shore defenses, and that it should not be sacrificed. He subscribed to Mr. Coolidge's idea that it was advisable to give thorough study to the airplane, however, with the view to expanding the air services.

Evidences of Amusement.

Inquiries as to why this subject was considered so important as to demand the Secretary's rushing back to Washington, thus cutting short his vacation and compelling cancellation of his Denver speech, brought only a lifting of the eyebrows at the Navy Department. At the War Department there were evidence of suppressed amusement that Mr. Wilbur was regarded as the one official competent to be consulted, especially since the round-the-world flight was an army enterprise, and air service expansion would not be confined to the navy.

Rumors that Wilbur would resign, because of the implied rebuke in his recall, are still sprouting, but he denies there was any rebuke meant, and so does the White House. So the incident seemed to be closed, from the administration's viewpoint, with harmony prevailing. Wilbur devoted most of his talk with callers this morning to glowing predictions of Republican success in California.

"A Good Political Judge."

He carried similar bulletins of cheer in to Mr. Coolidge. "The political discussion," explained a statement issued thereafter by the Republican National Committee, "was incidental to the discussion of naval matters, principally adjustments of naval estimates for the next fiscal year, with the view to co-ordination of aviation and submarines with battleship units."

"Secretary Wilbur told the President," added this manifesto, "that the Republican ticket would carry the State by a majority of something like 200,000."

Wilbur reminded his callers that he was a good political judge, because he had wired Mr. Coolidge relative to the primary fight against Hiram Johnson that Mr. Coolidge would win by "50,000, and he actually carried the State by 50,000."

"This would indicate," said Wilbur, "that I know something about California politics and of sentiment in the State. All elements are working harmoniously for the success of the national ticket. Without going into a discussion of personalities, I can say with fairness to everyone that the same people that are supporting and have supported Senator Johnson are working for the national Republican ticket."

Vagueness About Special Board.

There remains some vagueness about the duties of the projected special board, which probably will be named Monday. The navy budget is virtually completed, so there

'BOSS WON'T LET ME VOTE,' PLAINT TO WOMAN'S PARTY

Husbands Also Said to be Urging Wives Not to Register, to Aid Their Sex.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Members of the National Woman's Party have determined to break up the machine politics of Pennsylvania. They said today they will make every possible effort to elect four of their sex who have been nominated for Congress from that State.

"This campaign," the party announced, "is an effort on the part of women to clean up national politics by sending a better type of representative to Congress."

One of the campaign workers was quoted by the party as saying:

"The most frequent objection we meet in asking voters to support our candidates is not on the ground of sex. It is this—'My boss won't let me.'

"Another condition we have had to face is the unwillingness of many women voters to register. They have been told that registering will place them on the assessor's list and they will be taxed, and their husbands straightway urge them not to register."

The Woman's Party is campaigning for Mrs. Jessie Collett and Mrs. Jennie Dornblum of Philadelphia, Mrs. Elizabeth Culbertson of Meadville and Miss Anna VanSkite of Pottstown.

AGRICULTURALIST AND FARMER DEFINED BY BRYAN

By the Associated Press.

AURORA, Neb., Sept. 20.—Gov. Charles W. Bryan, Democratic vice presidential candidate, in an extemporaneous address here today before a large farmer audience at a picnic, spoke as a man "who never had time to discuss theories," but as one who was "interested in applying business principles to government."

Agriculture, the nominee declared, "is being assessed for the benefit of the privilege seeking class who have been repaid in legislation for campaign contributions."

After analyzing the legislative administrative acts during the last four years, which he declared had "destroyed farmers' conditions and changed it from one of prosperity to one of adversity," Gov. Bryan defined a farmer as "one who makes his money on the farm and spends it in the city," and an agriculturalist, in which class he placed himself for the last four years as one who makes his money in the city and spends it on the farm."

Convict Farm Trusty Lynched.

By the Associated Press.

CLARKSDALE, Miss., Sept. 20.—Herbert Taylor, negro, a trusty convict at Camp B of the Parchman State convict farm, was lynched by a mob near Lambert, Miss., last night, for an alleged attack upon the small daughter of a convict guard, it was learned here tonight. The negro was taken from Sheriff McArthur of Quitman County, marched into the woods and shot to death.

The Wife's Workshop

The home is the wife's workshop. She has a right to the best one you can provide for her.

Only the self-owned home can possess all the little individual preferences in plumbing, in conveniences, in the number of closets, in the height of pantry shelves, in the slope of the stairs.

Many such items of convenience and comfort form the line of demarcation between a house and a home.

Investigating the good homes for sale in the Post-Dispatch's "Real Estate" columns will prove home ownership as great an economy as it is a comfort and pleasure.

ACCUSED PASTOR PROVES ENIGMA UNDER GRILLING

"I'm as Near Heaven as I Ever Was," Says the Rev. Mr. Hight, Charged With Poisoning His Wife.

CONFIDENT HE'LL GET FAIR TRIAL

Prosecutor and Sheriff Baffled in Efforts to Break Through Pastor's Imperturbable Mask.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MOUNT VERNON, ILL., Sept. 20.—The Rev. Lawrence M. Hight is Jefferson County's strangest prisoner. He sits in a cell in the county jail here and says, "I'm as near heaven as I ever was." His steady blue eyes are far calmer, you feel, than they would be if he were making the announcement from the pulpit of his church at Ina. His voice is as matter-of-fact as the iron bars around him.

Sheriff Grant Holcomb looks at him and asks for the twentieth time, "Do you think a man who poisons his wife is near heaven?"

The preacher's brows go up in mild surprise. "Why no," he replies. "A man who kills his wife is a murderer and mighty near damnation, the Bible tells us."

The Sheriff turns away and darts a quizzical and baffled glance at State's Attorney Frank Thompson.

Hopes for Good Jury.

"We're only trying to clear up this case, Mr. Hight," says the State's Attorney, almost apologetically. "You're going to have a fair trial."

"I think you'll treat me right," is the response. "I'd just as soon have you give both your side and mine to the Judge. I know you'll be fair."

"A jury will hear the evidence," returns Thompson, stiffly.

"Oh, a jury? Well, I hope they'll be good men."

He smiles, trustingly, this strange prisoner. His manner seems to indicate that he feels the authorities have made a mistake. He does not condemn the authorities for their blunder. He is charitable, you are forced to believe. He even leads you to the guess that he is patterning his conduct after the Perfect Man.

Prisoner's Attitude Mystery.

His attitude makes the Sheriff and the State's Attorney and the reporters uncomfortable. The Sheriff, who is a keen man, as county sheriffs go, has not dealt with his kind before. He has questioned frightened negroes held for robbing boxcars or stealing chickens, and he has questioned citizens of Jefferson County in jail for shooting their neighbors in line-fence quarrels; for bootlegging and stealing automobiles. The State's Attorney, also widely experienced in handling accused men, has had his tilts with recalcitrant defendants, but he has never stacked up against a Methodist minister in jail. He has wormed the truth out of squirming, perspiring farmers and shop laborers, and perhaps a rapacious shyster or two. But he does not quite see the way through the Rev. Mr. Hight's imperturbable mask.

Back in the office outside the jail proper the cross-examiners confer.

Prosecutor Expects Confession.

"Isn't he the cool one?" asks the Sheriff.

"I think I'll get a confession out of him yet," remarks the State's Attorney, but unconvincingly.

The authorities of Jefferson County believe they already have a good case against this country preacher, but that it promises to be a better case, circumstantially, as it develops.

They have the chemist's report showing that the prisoner's wife, Anna, died from arsenic poisoning Sept. 12 at her home in Ina, 12 miles south of Mt. Vernon. At first it was believed she had succumbed to ptomaine poisoning from tainted tinned ham. But the people of Ina gossiped. The State has plenty of witnesses to swear that they saw signs of an intimate relationship between the Rev. Mr. Hight and Mrs. Elsie Sweetin, one of his church members. The preacher nursed his wife to the end. There was the motive and the opportunity, the State's Attorney believes.

Bought Arsenic Three Times.

More than that. An empty box which had contained arsenic was

Broker, Short $500,000 Weighs 250; Fled With Wife and Mother-in-Law

G. R. Christian Disappeared Leaving False Address—Wall Street Houses Said to Have Come to Aid of Firm.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Several Wall street brokerage houses were reported today to have come to the aid of the long-established firm of Day & Heaton, which is bankrupt through the alleged defalcations of George R. Christian, missing treasurer of the firm.

According to investigators of the bankrupt business, creditor firms through which Christian is understood to have speculated with the securities of Day & Heaton clients have signed waivers relieving the remaining five members of the bankrupt house from responsibility for claims aggregating several hundred thousand dollars. The attitude of Wall street generally was that bankruptcy was brought about solely by the speculations of a trusted official and that members of Day & Heaton should not be held responsible for the alleged untrustworthiness of their fellow member, the missing treasurer.

Accounts Badly Jumbled.

What was described as a "baffling mess" confronted seven accountants when they burrowed into the Day & Heaton books to ferret out the exact amount of Christian's alleged defalcation.

Their first estimate was that the firm's liabilities would exceed the assets by $500,000 to $1,000,000. But the accounts were so jumbled, the accountants said, that it would be several weeks before exact figures could be compiled.

Most of the indebtedness was reported to lie in claims of members of the New York Stock Exchange, of which Day & Heaton was a member. Through these houses, Christian was declared to have speculated as a market bear, using the names and securities of Day & Heaton clients to gamble on his personal account.

Police continuing today, to broadcast additional identifying information concerning Christian as fast as it came into their hands, concentrated on three facts that hitherto had not been stressed.

Gave False Address.

One was that he was accompanied in his supposed flight from Brooklyn by his wife and mother-in-law, and that they presumably are in hiding with him.

Another was that he weighs 250 pounds, and therefore, should be a conspicuous mark for detectives of other cities.

Third, Christian was fond of mineral water, and drank of it copiously at intervals of an hour every day.

After having learned that the Brooklyn address Christian recorded with his partners five years ago—the only one he gave in 23 years with them—was fictitious, detectives were led by news reporters to the missing broker's actual home. It, too, was in Brooklyn, but had been abandoned hastily by the Christians in August.

Lewis Christian, a brother, was found, but he did not shed any light on the whereabouts of the fugitive. He professed to have seen his brother seldom and to know only that in the firm of Day & Heaton, "George was the whole works."

JACKIE COOGAN'S ARRIVAL IN PARIS HOLDS UP TRAFFIC

Instead of Saying "So This Is Paris" He Asks for a Glass of Milk.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 20.—A reception of the magnificent sort which Paris customarily reserves for Kings, Princes of the blood and conquering heroes, greeted Jackie Coogan today on his arrival in Paris.

More than 15,000 persons stormed the Gare du Nord to catch a glimpse of the diminutive American film star, known almost universally in France as "Le Gosse," for his performance in "The Kid," and it was with difficulty that Jackie's escorts were able to get him from the station into a nearby street, where a motor car awaited him.

Borne on the shoulders of a smiling six-foot station attendant, Jackie passed through the crowd while scores of photographers kept shooting his picture and while the "Gosse" waved his hand at the cheering crowds. He appeared nonplussed by the warmth of his welcome.

Never in the history of the north station, which has witnessed the arrival of the Prince of Wales, the King of the Belgians, Queen Wilhelminia, and other royal personages, had such a concourse of persons gathered in the vicinity. All suburban traffic was stopped for 15 minutes.

One hundred correspondents with more than 100 photographers were present, but Jackie shattered all precedents when instead of saying upon alighting on the station platform, "so this is Paris," turned to his father and said: "I want a glass of milk."

MISSOURI AND NEBRASKA FOR DAVIS ON PRESS BALLOT

SOUTH BEND, IND., Sept. 20.—The 14 newspaper men on the Davis special train today cast the electoral vote of the five Western States that were visited by John W. Davis.

The ballot gave to Davis the States of Missouri and Nebraska, with 26 electoral votes; to La Follette, Iowa, with 13 electoral votes; to Coolidge, Kansas, with 10 electoral votes. Colorado, with six electoral votes, listed as doubtful.

In concerning only one State, Missouri, were the correspondents unanimous. In the other four States the poll showed the following results:

Nebraska, Davis, 8; Coolidge, 1; La Follette, 1; doubtful, 4. Colorado, Davis, 1; Coolidge, 4; La Follette, 1; doubtful, 8. Kansas, Davis, 0; Coolidge, 4; La Follette, 0; doubtful, 4. Iowa, Davis, 0; Coolidge, 4; La Follette, 8; doubtful, 2.

It was agreed that in both Colorado and Kansas the trend is toward Davis, although surface indications are against him at this time.

RAILROAD AGENTS KILL MAN, WOUND ANOTHER, IN YARDS

Special Officers Fired at Supposed Freight Car Thieves—Men Shot Were Brothers.

One man was killed and another seriously injured, when two railroad special agents fired 12 revolver shots at two supposed freight car thieves last night in the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad yard at the end of Thatcher avenue, 7700 north.

The slain man was Carter Bass, 27 years old, a M. K. T. painter. His brother, Charles Bass, 25, was arrested in a physician's office when he sought treatment for a bullet wound in the left arm and is held prisoner at City Hospital.

The special agents — Joseph Hodge of 3773 Carter avenue, and Ferdinand Aubuchan, 2713A North Eleventh street, reported the affair immediately to the police. They said they were riding a switch engine through the yard at 7:30 o'clock when they saw two men removing automobile storage batteries from a box car. They alighted and hurried to the box car with drawn revolvers and fired six shots each at the men as they ran away, they declared.

At first they thought the two men escaped unhurt, but a few minutes later, by the light of a flashlight, Carter Bass' body was revealed at the foot of a 10-foot embankment.

The injured man asked for treatment at the office of Dr. Harry Miller, 730 Baden street, where he was turned over to the police. He said that he and his brother were making a short-cut through the railroad yard when they were fired on without warning. His brother, who was unmarried, is said to have lived in the 900 block on Elias avenue.

Policemen were directed to a box car at Thatcher avenue, where several batteries were found lying on the ground. The seal of the car had been broken.

Boy, 13, Enters University.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 20. — Benjamin Frederick Dryden, 13 years old, of Youngsville, La., was admitted to the University of Cincinnati today. He matriculated in the liberal arts college and is the youngest student ever to enroll in the institution. He weighs 66 pounds. Contrary to popular inference, Dryden dislikes study, although he said it is not difficult for him to learn.

DESERTER SLAIN BY MAN HE SAID WAS INFORMER

Louis Bobo Shot When in Saloon by James Ryan Whom He Had Previously Beaten.

HAD SERVED TERM FOR QUITTING ARMY

Assailant Tells Police He Was Afraid Other Would "Get" Him Unless He Fired First.

A cherished grudge between a deserter from the army and the man whom he blamed for reporting him to the military authorities resulted last night in the shooting of the deserter, Lewis Bobo, by the supposed informer, James Ryan.

Bobo died at midnight at the City Hospital. Ryan is a prisoner. The shooting occurred at 7:30 p. m. in a saloon at 3142 Cass avenue.

Bobo, who is 28 years old and married, finished Friday a three months' term in the guardhouse at Jefferson Barracks, the punishment for his failure to serve his full term of enlistment in the army. He returned to his home at 1458 Francis street.

Had Previous Encounter.

Before he went to the Barracks to serve his time, the police are informed, Bobo accused Ryan of having informed on him, and in a fight which followed he beat Ryan, who lives at 3023A Madison street.

Yesterday Bobo went back to the Barracks to see a soldier whose acquaintance he had formed while he was detained there, Hugh L. Waters of B Company, Sixth Infantry. Waters returned to the city with Bobo, and they stopped at several saloons. Shortly after 7 o'clock they arrived at the Cass avenue place, of which Bob Feldhaus is proprietor.

While Bobo and the soldier were in the saloon, Ryan entered. The soldier said he heard no talk, but the bartender, Frank Schlereth, said he heard angry remarks exchanged, such as "I have been looking for you," and "What the hell do you want?" Then Ryan fired one shot.

Bullet Enters Skull.

The bullet entered Bobo's skull behind the right ear and penetrated the brain.

Ryan ran from the saloon and two blocks away was arrested by a policeman, to whom he exclaimed that he had shot a man. He said he had thrown his revolver into a vacant lot, but policemen searching along the line of his flight were unable to find it.

Ryan said he was afraid Bobo would "get" him if he did not shoot first, and he related that, three or four days before, Bobo had visited his house and inquired for him in a tone which sounded threatening to Ryan's wife. The police believe Bobo was in the Barracks guardhouse at the time, so doubt that any such visit was made by him to Ryan's house. Bobo had no weapon at the time of the shooting.

The prisoner also told of his fight with Bobo several months ago, caused, he said, by Bobo's belief that he had "turned him up." Ryan did not say what the facts were as to that matter. One of Bobo's relatives said a woman had been the informer.

The soldier, Waters, and the bartender were held as witnesses.

COOLIDGE HEARS REPORTS OF WEST VIRGINIA GAINS

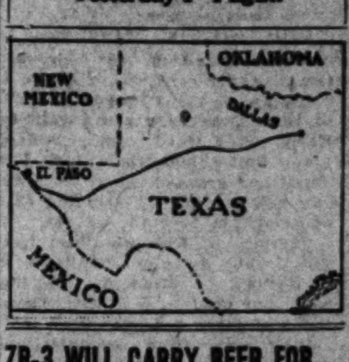
By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Reports of Republican gains in West Virginia were presented to President Coolidge today by party leaders of that State. An intensive campaign to win the home State of John W. Davis, Democratic candidate, for Coolidge was described to him by V. L. Highland and John T. Graham, Republican National Committeeman and State chairman of West Virginia.

Only a few callers were on the President's engagement list today, and he spent some time conferring with Government officials and in completing the address he will deliver here tomorrow before delegates to the Holy Name convention.

Coolidge will speak again next Wednesday before a convention of retail druggists here and the next day in Philadelphia. It also was announced today he would speak as usual at the opening here of the National Convention of the American Red Cross, Oct. 4.

Yesterday's Flight.



ZR-3 WILL CARRY BEER FOR CREW ON FLIGHT TO AMERICA

But It Will All Be Consumed by Time Airship Reaches 12-Mile Limit.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Sept. 2.—Beer will make up part of the ballast of the ZR-3 on her flight to America. There will be several kegs taken aboard for members of the crew, who have their quarters midships in the big dirigible, and there will be bottled beer for the officers in the passenger car just under the airship's nose.

Beer is served regularly to the crew on all German ships at sea, and in the army and navy as well, where it is considered part of the daily ration. There will, however, be no violation of the Volstead act as the beer taken from here will be consumed before the ship reaches the 12-mile limit off American shores. The kegs and empty bottles will be kept aboard as ballast, for nothing will be thrown overboard during the voyage.

It is necessary to retain everything possible to help the ship keep its original weight. Even the dish water from the kitchen, empties into a tank, and will be kept until the good ship pokes her nose into Lakehurst and ties herself up at the big naval mast.

MASCAGNI'S OPERA VENTURE IN BERLIN COLOSSAL FAILURE

Banks Stop Composer's Production of "Aida," With 1000 in Cast, After Three Performances.

Copyright, 1924, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

BERLIN, Sept. 20.—The composer, Mascagni, has made one of the biggest failures of an operatic production that Germany has ever seen. The Actors' Club of Germany is now negotiating with banks in an effort to get him out of the hole.

Mascagni decided Berlin was an ideal spot for a monster production of "Aida." Backed by Austrians, he engaged a cast of 1000 persons and prepared the most elaborate settings. But none of them thought to reckon how much they had spent and what they could get.

A single performance cost $15,000, and three of them brought in less than $10,000. The backers had used borrowed money almost altogether, and the banks stopped the opera after three performances. Ten had been scheduled.

The Actors' Club hopes to be able to arrange matters so the maestro can continue with the other seven performances in a smaller theater and on a less grandiose scale.

GLOBE FLYERS AT EL PASO AFTER FLIGHT OF 645 MILES

Crowd Estimated at 20,000 Welcomes Army Airmen When They Land at Fort Bliss Field.

CIVILIANS AND TROOPS CLASH

Cavalrymen Forced to Hold Throng in Check After Landing of Planes—Two Photographers Fall.

By the Associated Press.

EL PASO, Tex., Sept. 20.—America's world flyers arrived at Fort Bliss today at 6:15 p. m., after a successful flight of 645 miles from Dallas. They came over the horizon at 5:45 p. m., flying in a triangular formation. At 6:13 p. m. they circled the flying field and made a perfect landing. The "Chicago," piloted by Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, landed first. The "Boston II," piloted by Lieut. Leigh Wade, was second, and the "New Orleans," piloted by Lieut. Erik Nelson, was last.

A De Haviland plane, in which Lieut. George W. Goddard and Lieut. George Berkhurst, army photographers, were accompanying the flyers across the continent, made a forced landing seven miles this side of Pecos. The landing gear was torn off.

Lieut. B. S. Wright, representing the chief of the Air Service, and Sergt. Kennedy, riding in a second De Haviland, stopped to take the wrecked flyers back to Pecos. Planes will be sent out from Fort Bliss tomorrow morning to bring them in.

Military authorities estimated the crowd at the flying field at 20,000. The flyers were greeted by a din of honking horns and cheering.

As the planes taxied up to the hangars, the spectators broke through the ropes that had been stretched to keep them off the field and rushed the mounted guards. They were driven back with difficulty. A clash between guards and civilians, in which several blows were passed, was quickly subdued by cavalrymen.

Maj. Leo Hefferman, air service commander at Fort Bliss, was the first to greet Smith, flight commander, as the latter sat in the cockpit of his moving machine.

After the aviators had alighted, they walked to the center machine the "Boston II," where they were greeted by Major-General R. L. Howze, Mayor Dudley, A. M. Lockhart of the Chamber of Commerce, James G. McNary, Mrs. Percy McGhee Jr., Mrs. Jack Fall, Miss Anna Martha Doak, Mrs. Windsor Llewellyn and Miss Lena Robinson, representing the International Southwest Exposition Committee.

Smith was the first introduced to Major-General Howze.

"I want to offer you my sincere congratulations and offer you and your officers all the facilities we have at this field," the General told Smith. "You'll be released from the field as soon as your planes are put away. You can wash your hands and dinner will be served as soon as you are ready."

After the introductions, Lieut. Smith explained that he could not hear distinctly, as he had a cold and the flying had temporarily deafened him.

STOP MADE TO TAKE ON FUEL

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 20.—After a thorough inspection and servicing of their planes, the six army world flyers left Dallas at 9:40 a. m. Central standard time, today.

One hour was lost when the aviators made an emergency stop at Sweetwater at noon. Lieut. Wade, taking advantage of the supplies that had been placed on the Sweetwater field for an emergency, stopped there to change the lubricating oil in the engine of his plane. Lieuts. Smith and Nelson, seeing their comrade drop from the formation, also stopped, and while there took additional fuel supplies.

The aviators were the guests of the citizens of Sweetwater at a picnic dinner, the aviators sitting beneath the wings of their planes to be shielded from the sun.

The flight from Dallas was started in the face of a strong head wind, which was reported to be continuing when the aviators left Sweetwater.

A large number of persons were at Love Field here to bid the flyers farewell.

10,000 UNDER HOT SUN HEAR DAVIS ON KEEPING COOL

Indiana Crowd, Perspiring in 90 Degree Heat, Laughs Itself Hotter at Thrusts at Coolidge.

ANOTHER 10,000 AT RALLY AT NIGHT

President's Complacency Toward Tariff and Corruption in High Places Directly Attacked.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Sept. 20.—The remarkable coolness of Calvin Coolidge in the face of repeated instances of Governmental corruption and abuses of various sorts was one of the main themes developed by John W. Davis, the Democratic presidential nominee, as he continued his campaigning in Indiana today.

Davis spoke at LaPorte in the morning, at South Bend and Elkhart in the afternoon, and wound up his first Western invasion with an address at Fort Wayne tonight. He departed for New York after the night meeting, with the announced intention of making no speeches tomorrow.

Davis was received with the utmost cordiality at all the stops of his special train in this State.

At the Fort Wayne meeting tonight Davis spoke to a crowd estimated at 10,000 that packed the streets in front of and along one side of the county courthouse.

South Bend, a city of about 90,000, met him with a band; gave him a parade throuhg the city; made him the guest of honor at a civic nonpartisan luncheon, for which a crowd of several hundred packed themselves almost to suffocation point in a hotel dining room, and finally escorted him with another band to Howard Park, where 10,000 stood in the open, in 90 degrees heat, to hear him make his principal speech of the day.. Sensing the double meaning in the candidate's references to the "coolness in some places," the perspiring crowd made itself hotter with its laughter.

New Method of Attack.

The speech showed Davis fully launched upon his new method of attack, that of going directly after the President. There was a period early in his tour when he carefully kept Coolidge out of his speech. At Des Moines he began to "cut loose," and since then his criticism of the President has been more and more barbed. His shafts at the complacent attitude of the President toward corruption in high official places have never failed to warm his audience to applause and laughter.

"There are gentlemen in this country," he said at South Bend, "who think the greatest duty that a public servant can perform is to keep cool (laughter), and when embarrassments come, when in the service of the people of the United States the ugly hand of corruption shows itself, when faithful public servants detect these men who have been filching from the public purse, squandering our national resources, enriching themselves at the public expense, denying to the veterans of the war the grateful care that we promised; when those things broke, there are men in this country who believed that their chief duty was to be cool and not to act precipitately about it.

Cool Cost of Sugar.

"When the Tariff Commission the other day looked into the question of the sugar tariff, which had been for two years and a half burdening every breakfast table in this country, at a cost to the people estimated now of $145,000 a day; when the Tariff Commission investigated that, and, after six or eight months of prolonged study, made, on July 29 last, a report recommending a revision in those rates, again there were men in this country who thought the thing to do was to keep cool about it.

"And when the farmers of this country were overcome by distress and disaster more desperate and more bitter than any which this generation of the toilers of the soil have witnessed, some gentlemen who think it is the business of this country to keep cool offered them no better remedy than a commission to reinvestigate, for the third time in three years, the difficulties and disasters under which they were groaning.

Homily on Car Performance.

homily in which he likened the Democratic party to an automobile hitting on all cylinders and the Republican to a vehicle in which the hind wheels are traveling in one direction while the front are endeavoring to go in the other.

"Is that the rate at which you propose to travel for the next three years and a half, or would you rather have a new set that seemed to have the ability and the intention to show a little more speed?

"Need I make the application of that homely illustration," he asked. "What has happened in the last 18 months? How much co-ordination of effort has there been on the part of the vehicle that is now inviting you to get aboard again for another four years' journey?

"Congress passes a law, and we find the wheels in front spinning in the other direction under a presidential veto. (Applause.)

"And if the President thinks there is but one path to tax reduction and that along the road that has the sign board 'Mellon plan' on it, and recommends that to his Congress, what does his Congress do with that recommendation but send it down to the waste baskets in the sub-cellar of the Capitol?

"And if he recommends adherence to the World Court, what do his party associates do with that recommendation? They put that, again, into the ice box, with the hope that it may rest there until the resurrection day.

A Serviceable Vehicle?"

"Now, does that strike you as a serviceable governmental vehicle in which to embark the fate and destinies of your country for the four years that lie ahead?

"Now, the other thing I ask you to consider, and I cannot say much about that—is, whom are you going to have for driver?" Numerous voices in the audience cried, "Davis—Davis!"

"Well," said Davis, "I am glad to see that there are at least some persons who would be willing to hire the chauffeur who is now before you. I do not mind telling you that I came here to apply for the job."

In his Elkhart talk, delivered to a large crowd from the rear platform of his train, Davis again stressed the differences between the President and Congress.

"We are charging," he said, "what is manifestly true, that between the President on one side and the members of his party in Congress on the other, there has been a discord, a division, an incoherence, a lack of discipline, which proves that no government so led on one hand and so indisposed to be led on the other, can work out a consistent policy for the people of the United States."

Puritan and Catholic.

The Fort Wayne night meeting had hardly begun before the Ku Klux Klan issue was injected into it, and hecklers standing below the open-air platform asked Dr. C. B. McCulloch, candidate for the governorship, who preceded Davis, how he stood on the klan.

There was a great cheer as McCulloch replied: "I thought I had made my position clear. The Puritans, Catholics, Methodists and Episcopalians settled this country in the belief that religion should never mingle with government. When the Civil War liberated the slave and gave him citizenship, it established the principle that race is no bar to equality before the law.

"Mindful of these things, as an American citizen, I say that, when the Ku Klux Klan or any other organization attempts to subvert these principles, I will oppose them by every means in my power.

"I do not believe in any attempt to discriminate against any citizen on the ground of race, religion or place of birth. I was nominated on this platform, and, win or lose, there is where I stand."

Eulogy of Woodrow Wilson.

Applause broke out again when Davis stepped to the front of the platform. Davis drew cheers when he declared, in an eloquent eulogy of Woodrow Wilson, that, if his healing words had been heeded and the United States had been permitted to take a place in the councils of the nations, the world today would be a better place. Starvation in Germany, he said, would have been prevented and France would not have gone into the Ruhr.

Denouncing the acts of Charles R. Forbes as the head of the Veterans' Bureau, Davis said his "blood stirred with indignation at the grossest crimes of all the filthy lot."

He asked what more could be done for labor by any labor party than had been done by the Democratic party. He especially cited in this connection the passages of the Clayton act, "Labor's Magna Charta," which laid down the principle that labor is not a commodity. Davis did not specifically mention the klan.

Situation in Indiana.

Whatever may be the effect of Davis' Indiana meetings on his own candidacy, his opponents concede that he may have a determining effect in the fight for the Governorship between Ed. Jackson, the nominee of the klan on the Republican ticket, and Dr. Carleton B. McCulloch, the Democratic nominee. The race between these two, owing to the defection of negro votes from the Republican side, is said to be on a fifty-fifty basis at present. Davis has taken occasion to pay tribute to McCulloch, who rode with him through Indiana, and to urge his election.

Negro disaffection on account of the klan issue apparently has not hurt the Republican national ticket to the same extent as the State ticket. That is why McCulloch is rated on even terms with his opponent, while Coolidge is given a present edge over Davis. Democratic leaders express the utmost confidence that Davis will overtake and pass his rival.

Davis to Speak in St. Louis and in Kentucky.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—After a conference here today with John W. Davis, Democratic Presidential nominee, and Senator Pittman, chairman of the Speakers' Bureau, Urey Woodson, Democratic national committeeman for Kentucky, today announced that the Demorcatic standard bearer would swing into Kentucky on a speaking trip some time between the 10th and 15th of October.

Davis, according to Woodson, plans his Kentucky trip on his return from a second tour of the West. After speaking in West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and Kansas, Woodson said the Democratic nominee on his return trip would speak at St. Louis and then probably at Evansville, Ind.

He probably will make his first Kentucky address at Henderson and then speak at Owensboro, making each talk from a special train. A night address is being planned for Louisville, Woodson said.

'Fine!' Says Condemned Youth of 90-Day Reprieve

"Lifts 90 Pounds of Worry Off Shoulders," Declares Chicago Prisoner, Who Asserts He Is Innocent.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Thomas E. Swanson, attorney for Bernard Grant, under sentence of death, is planning the last stages in his fight to save Grant from the gallows. Early today word was received from Springfield that Gov. Len Small had granted the youth a 90-day reprieve, which sets the date of execution over to Jan. 16.

"Several of Chicago's best lawyers," said Swanson, "will go to Springfield to plead for the boy when our petition is heard. Thousands of other petitions from individuals and from organizations have been received and these will be forwarded to the Governor in Grant's behalf. We understand that other requests for clemency in the case have been sent directly to the State Capitol."

Whether Clarence S. Darrow or Charles E. Erbstein will be among the Chicago attorneys to join in the plea for Grant's life, Swanson would not say, although he declared that both had made inquiries in the case.

Grant received the news of his reprieve with a smile. "Fine, that's just fine," he said. "It lifts 90 pounds of worry off my shoulders. My hair ought to turn black after that. I hope in time the Governor will commute my sentence entirely. I deserve that because I am innocent."

In his own plea for a pardon, transmitted to the Governor by attorneys Swanson and Timothy J. Fell, who are acting in his behalf without compensation, Grant confines himself to reiteration of his denials that he was present on the night that Walter Krauser, also sentenced to death, in the case, and a companion shot and killed a policeman in an attempted robbery. Grant says that he did not even know Krauser until they met in the police station a few hours after his arrest. Krauser is now awaiting the outcome of an appeal to the State Supreme Court which will be acted upon within a few weeks. Gov. Small declared, in granting a reprieve, that he would postpone consideration of Grant's petition until Krauser's case had been ruled upon by the court.

Supplementary to Grant's petition was a statement by Krauser which said that "Grant has not only been the unfortunate victim of a contemptible conspiracy but of a frameup."

Saying that he did not know Grant before they met in jail, Krauser declared that his original confession, naming Grant, was brought forth by brutal treatment at the hands of the police. His statement asserts that he has never yet made known his actual companion's name or identity.

Sheriff Peter M. Hoffman today signed a petition being circulated here in Grant's behalf.

"I signed the petition," he said, "in the capacity of a private citizen. I do not believe that there should be one sort of law for the rich and another for the poor."

DAVIS PARTY OPTIMISTIC AFTER SMITH REPORT

With Governor in Race for Re-election They Say It Would Make New York Doubtful State.

WOULD UPSET PLANS OF THE REPUBLICANS

Money Considered Released for Other Contests Will Now Have to Be Used There, Observers Say.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 20.—News reaching the Davis party from an authoritative source that Al Smith will run again for Governor of New York has heightened the optimism aroused in Davis and his friends by the favorable reception given the candidate throughout his Western tour.

It is hoped, of course, that the presence of Smith's name on the ticket will insure the electoral vote of New York and that of New Jersey also for the Democratic presidential candidate.

But wholly apart from the ultimate effect of Smith's candidacy there will be an immediate advantage to the Democratic cause. With Smith apparently determined to keep out of the race, the Republicans felt so cocksure of the State that they were going to fertilize it with only a comparatively small amount of the money at their disposal. Whatever amount they could save on New York would add just that much to the funds available for other states.

Effect on National Campaign.

Smith's prospective entrance into the contest means that New York will have to be shifted to the doubtful column. Republican money will be poured into it without stint. Some other states will have to go on shorter rations than had been planned. It is a pleasing prospect to the eyes of the Democratic managers.

Smith was "drafted" into the race. He has repeatedly said that he wished to retire from public life to devote himself to money making for the benefit of his large family. There is no doubt he was sincere in this. Within the last few days, however, he has been subjected to intense pressure by Democratic organization leaders of New York and New Jersey. As the story reaches here, Smith finally yielded in a conference with Frank Hague, the Democratic leader of New Jersey. An important member of the Democratic national organization was also present.

Hague told Smith, in effect, that he had been "made" by the Democratic party, that his terms as Governor and his present national eminence were due to the fact that the party had stood behind him, pushing him along, every step of his way up from the New York East Side.

Plea Made to Smith.

Now, said Hague, the party needed him, needed him locally and nationally, and it was up to him to pay off his obligation. "You've got to run," said Hague, in substance. "Whether you like it or not, you are going to be nominated."

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, D. G. Johnson, 609 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill., is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

EFFORT TO QUASH SOME OF CHARGES IN MEININGER CASE

Counsel for Bank Looter Will Attack Indictments Alleging Assent to Receipt of Deposits.

SECOND TRIAL TO BE AT UNION, MO.

Scheduled for Week From Tomorrow — Defendant Already Is Under Five-Year Sentence.

Counsel for Arthur O. Meininger, looter of the defunct Night and Day Bank, which was closed early in 1922, have notified Circuit Attorney Sidener of an effort they will make to get rid of some of the tangle of criminal charges about their client, in advance of the approaching time for his second trial.

Meininger was made defendant in 47 indictments, chiefly charging various instances of assenting to receipt of deposits in an insolvent bank, or embezzlement. He was tried once at Union, Mo., in May, 1923, convicted of embezzlement and sentenced to five years' imprisonment. Through technicalities it appeared further trials might be prevented, but these technicalities were overcome in the Supreme Court of Missouri, where the former cashier's appeal of his one sentence is pending.

Date of Second Trial.

The second trial is set for a week from tomorrow, before Circuit Judge Bruer at Union. Circuit Attorney Sidener has planned to elect then which of a small group of indictments charging assenting to receipt of deposits in an insolvent bank is to be tried.

However, Judge Breuer is to hear defense motions to quash the indictments charging "assent" (as the lawyers shorten the phrase) at Hermann, Mo., next Thursday.

The chief ground to be offered in the motions to quash will be the ground on which original indictments charging H. H. Hohenschild, president of the defunct bank, with assent, were dismissed by Circuit Judge Falkenhainer here. The form of indictment for this charge against both Hohenschild and Meininger charges in one count accepting a deposit in an insolvent bank and assent to the acceptance.

Count Held Duplicitous.

Judge Falkenhainer held that this count was duplicitous. Hohenschild was reindicted, with the duplication eliminated by use of separate counts. However, he was acquitted. Judge Breuer may not take the same view of the objection to the indictments as did Judge Falkenhainer. If he does sustain the motion to quash, the embezzlement charges would remain against Meininger and, presumably, the former cashier could be indicted again at this time, though the State's attorneys have not gone into this phase.

Another ground to be pressed in the motions to quash will be an attack on Sec. 3365 of the Revised Statutes, which covers assent. The defense will contend that this statute is impotent, as it merely copies a provision of the Missouri Constitution. Article XII, Sec. 27, of the Constitution provides that "It shall be a crime, the nature and punishment for which shall be prescribed by law," for a cashier or other banker to assent to the receipt of deposits after he knows his bank is insolvent.

The statute provides that if the banker assents to the receipt of a deposit after he knows the bank is insolvent he shall be guilty of larceny. There is a proviso that the failure of the bank shall be prima facie evidence of knowledge on the banker's part that it was insolvent when the deposit was received.

WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE SAYS K. K. K. IS ISSUE IN KANSAS

Announcing Independent Candidacy for Governorship, He Denounces Both Party Opponents for Silence on Question.

By the Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., Sept. 20.—Making his slogan "Free Kansas From the Ku Klux Klan," William Allen White, in a statement issued today in connection with the filing of his independent candidacy for the governorship, declared, "I am in the race to stay and to win."

"The issue in Kansas this year is the klan above everything," the Emporia editor asserted.

He attacked Ben S. Paulen and Jonathan M. Davis, the Republican and Democratic gubernatorial nominess, respectively, charging that the two major parties in the State are "led in the race for Governor by men who had klan support in the primary and who will not disavow that support today."

White's statement follows:

"I have filed my petition for Governor and am in this race to win. It is the largest independent petition ever filed for any office in Kansas. Nearly three times more names were signed to these petitions for Carr Taylor and myself for Lieutenant-Governor and Governor than were needed. None of these petitions came from my home town or county. I wished honestly to test sentiment.

No Doubt About Sentiment.

"There can be no doubt about the sentiment. The issue in Kansas this year is the Ku Klux Klan above everything.

"The Ku Klux Klan is found in nearly every county. It represents a small minority of the citizenship and it is organized for purposes of terror. Its terror is directed at honest, law-abiding citizens, negroes, Jews and Catholics. These groups in Kansas compose more than one-fourth of our population. They are entitled to their full constitutional rights; their rights to life, liberty and pursuit of happiness. They menace no one. They are good citizens, law-abiding, God fearing, prosperous, patriotic. Yet, because of their skin, or their race, or their creed, the Ku Klux Klan in Kansas is subjecting them to economic boycott, to social ostracism, to every form of harassment, annoyance and every terror that a bigoted minority can use.

"This Un-American Crew."

"And the leaders of two major parties in this State lift no hand to defend those people. Ben Paulen, the Republican candidate for Governor, accepted the Ku Klux Klan indorsement in the primary and owes his small plurality entirely to Ku Klux voters. Before the primary his party papers urged him to disclaim this un-American crew. After the primary, before the party council, again his fellow Republicans of all factions warned him that public sentiment would not stand for a minority secured entirely by the Ku Klux Klan. In the Republican party council there was a strong element intent upon divorcing the Republicans from the Ku Klux Klan.

"Ben Paulen, the Republican gubernatorial nominee, in the committee on resolutions defeated an anti-klan resolution. Then he went before the State party council and, with his prestige as party leader, prevented even a debate upon the klan on the floor of the convention and by silence further tied the klan to him and disgraced his party in Kansas. Since then, in declaring he was not a klansman, he used the phrase 'at this time,' the one phrase that all klansmen use when denying their membership.

Says Governor Is Silent.

"The Democratic gubernatorial nominee, Jonathan M. Davis, never before the primary or since has uttered one syllable which would offend the most ardent klansman. He had the klan indorsement in the primary. His party threw it over, but Davis has not disclaimed it.

"So here are the two major parties in Kansas led in the race for Governor by men who had klan support in the primary and who will not disavow that support today. A man who has not the courage nor does not rise to righteous indignation to denounce and defy the Ku Klux Klan in the primary and in the election is not going to oppose it seriously in the Governor's chair.

"I want to be Governor to free Kansas from the disgrace of the Ku Klux Klan. And I want to offer Kansans afraid of the klan and ashamed of that disgrace a candidate who shares their fear and shame. So I am in the race to stay, and to win.

Should Be Freed of Taint.

"Kansas, with high intelligence and pure American blood, of all States, should be free of this taint of bigotry and terror. I was born in Kansas, and have lived my life in Kansas. I am proud of my State. And the thought that Kansas should have a government beholden to this hooded gang of masked fanatics, ignorant and tyrannical in their ruthless oppression, is what calls me out of the pleasant ways of my life into this distasteful, but necessary, task. I cannot sit idly and see Kansas become a by-word among the states.

"I call to my support least of all those who are oppressed by the Ku Klux Klan. We must have no class issue here. I call to my suport rather all fair-minded citizens of every party, of every creed, to stop the oppression of the minority of our people.

A Nation-Wide Menace.

"It is a nation-wide menace, this klan. It knows no party. It knows no country. It knows only bigotry; malice and terror. Our national Government is founded on reason and the Golden Rule. This klan is preaching and practicing terror and force. Its only prototype is the Soviet of Russia. So I feel that I am walking the path of duty in going into this race.

"I ask my fellow Kansans to come with me tnd to stand with me for free government and the righteous guarantee of our Constitution to all its citizens."

Three large bundles of petitions, said to contain the signatures of 7500 Kansas voters, asking that the names of White and Taylor go on the ballot, were delivered to Frank J. Ryan, Secretary of State, yesterday by White. He requested that they be formally filed today.

8-YEAR MYSTERY SOLVED BY MURDER CONFESSION

Oklahoman Said to Admit He Killed Man—Directs Officers to Skeleton.

By the Associated Press.

ATOKA, Ok., Sept. 20.—Jess Williams confessed today, according to officers, to the killing eight years ago of Will Sexton, whose disappearance was long a mystery to Ttoka County officers. Today, officers following Williams' direction, found Sexten's skeleton guried near the latter's home in the northeastern part of the county.

Williams' confession, officers said, involved Sexton's widow, whom he charged directed the murder. Both are being held without bail.

GOLF STOCKINGS WITH ROBES

Negro Potentate, in London, Also Wears Cheap Wrist Watch.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—The Emir of Katzena, a negro potentate who rules over 20,000 horsemen and nearly 1,000,000 people in Nigeria, has arrived here wearing golf stockings and a cheap wrist watch with his really magnificent native robes.

He has brought two of his wives with him, leaving the other 22 at home.

"Wives are worth all the trouble they cause," he declared through an interpreter. "They work. In Katsena they must spin so much cotton each day and do so much housework. And they are not paid. Of course, they sometimes are troublesome, but then when wives quarrel or are jealous we call them up in front of us and tell them not to do it again. That is usually enough."

Oil Promoter Freed.

TEXARKANA, Ark., Sept. 20.—Louis S. Grim, tried on charges of use of the mails to defraud and conspiracy in connection with a refinery plant promotion in the Arkansas oil fields, was acquitted by the jury here tonight. Thomas J. Ryan, co-defendant with Grim, was found guilty on one of the seven counts in the indictment.

HUSBAND AND WIFE INDICTED FOR MURDER OF AUNT

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 20.—Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bennett of Rome, Ga., were indicted by the Hamilton County grand jury here today for the murder of Miss Augusta Hoffman.

Miss Hoffman was a spinster modiste, whose skeleton is alleged to have been found under the floor of the home occupied by the Bennetts here several years ago. Miss Hoffman, aunt of the Bennetts, with whom she made her home most of the time, disappeared in 1915, after, it was said, she had withdrawn a considerable sum of money from the bank.

Workmen repairing the house at No. 15 Bluff View, discovered the bones of a woman, clothing, eye glasses, false teeth and shoes which answered descriptions given of the missing woman and her effects. The Bennetts said Miss Hoffman had gone to Washington, D. C., with the intention of marrying and that they never heard of her afterwards.

ZINC AND COPPER BANISH RHEUMATISM

Remarkable New Discovery Proving Boon to Thousands.

Application for patent covering what is considered to be the most unique discovery of its kind has just been made by the Eureka Manufacturing Co., 253-CN Jefferson Av., Memphis, Tenn. After years of experiment they discovered that an especially constructed, chemically treated set of heel plates, one zinc and one copper, placed in the shoes of the sufferer will, by a scientific process, quickly rid the wearer of rheumatic pain, sciatica and stiff joints, as well as tone up the system in general. Experiments in hundreds of cases have proved this discovery to be a boon to all sufferers of the above ailments, especially as it eliminates the use of medicine which, in many instances, proves to be of only temporary value. They are anxious to prove their statements by sending any sufferer of rheumatism a special liberal trial offer. Write them today.

FUNERAL SERVICES WILL BE HELD FOR MILES TOMORROW

High Mass at 9:30 A. M. at St. Lawrence O'Toole's Church, Following Rites at Family Residence.

KNOWN FOR HOLD HE KEPT ON WARD

Quit Job as Foundry Worker in 1890 and Was Named Justice of Peace in 1906.

The funeral of Justice James P. Miles, who lived and died in Kerry Patch, and whose political power extended from the Patch over the river ward region, will be held tomorrow morning in St. Lawrence O'Toole's Church, historic center of the Patch's occasions of joy and sorrow.

Services will be held at the home, 1517 North Eighteenth street, before the body is taken to the church, Fourteenth and O'Fallon streets, for high mass at 9:30 a. m. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

The body will be at the home until the funeral and yesterday's large number of visitors indicated that many will call there today.

"Jimmy" Miles' death, anticipated hourly for more than a week, came at 6:30 a. m. yesterday, after an illness of some two months with stomach and liver disorders. He was 63 years old.

Three Daughters at Bedside.

Three of his four daughters were at the house, Misses May, Johanna and Corinne Miles, as was the only son, James P. Miles Jr. The other daughter, Mrs. Alice Cento, was not there. The immediate cause of death was an attack of coughing, and the end came before the physician in charge of the case, Dr. W. F. Kier, could arrive.

"Jimmy" Miles Jr. returned to St. Louis last Monday, after an absence of more than seven months, and answered to an indictment charging him with the murder of Charles O'Neal, bartender at the Washington Hotel, Feb. 5 last. In conformity with an agreement made two days before, Circuit Judge Hamilton admitted the young man to $40,000 bail. He has visited his father's bedside within the last few days.

The elder Miles, whose birthplace was in Kerry Patch, began as a foundry worker, and was employed by the old Ferguson-Kingsland Foundry until 1890 He quit this job to go into politics, and was a Constable for 16 years. In 1906 he was elected Justice of the Sixth District Court, and was re-elected from time to time. The courtroom, at 907A North Jefferson avenue, was a gathering place for politicians.

He was Democratic City Committeeman from the Fourth Ward, and was for several years a member of the State Committee. He was remarkably successful in swinging his ward, which not only always voted Democratic, but which voted, in Democratic primaries, as Miles wished it to. At times his influence was also shown in contests for Republican nominations, inter-partisan trading of favors being by no means unknown in the river wards.

Kept Hold on Ward.

In the primary of Aug. 5, after Miles' illness had become serious, his political strength appeared in the vote polled in his ward, and several others where he had influence, for Floyd Jacobs of Kansas City for Governor. Jacobs carried the Fourth by 1553 to 46 for all other candidates, and carried also the Eighteenth, of which Miles' ally, Constable John F. Byrne, is committeeman, and had a plurality in the Third and Fifth wards. In the city as a whole, Judge Henry S. Priest had a plurality of 6[illegible]0. In supporting Jacobs, Miles set himself against the majority of the City Committee, which was for George H. Moore.

Miles kept his hold on his ward and on the river-ward region by untiring watchfulness, shown in nightly rounds, and by help to those in trouble with the law or in want. His friends tell of acts of helpfulness to the needy which were out of apparent proportion to his salary of $2500 a year as justice. But he also got others to help in such matters, and when he sent out tickets for benefit affairs, the response would be general from the wage-earners of the district.

He inherited much, though by no means all, of the political power of Edward Butler, blacksmith boss of city-wide influence, who died in 1913. Who will inherit Miles' power, is a question for the future. Constable Byrne was the man generally regarded as nearest to him, and it was Byrne who made the arrangement by which Miles' son was enabled to visit his bedside in the comparative freedom of a man under bond, rather than as a prisoner.

Those named as active pallbearers for the funeral tomorrow are: Daniel E. Naughton, John F. Byrne, Harry Levin, John J. Tatlow, Felix McAdams, James Miller.

KNOWN FOR HOLD HE KEPT ON WARD

Quit Job as Foundry Worker in 1890 and Was Named Justice of Peace in 1906.

The funeral of Justice James P. Miles, who lived and died in Kerry Patch, and whose political power extended from the Patch over the river ward region, will be held tomorrow morning in St. Lawrence O'Toole's Church, historic center of the Patch's occasions of joy and sorrow.

Services will be held at the home, 1317 North Eighteenth street, before the body is taken to the church, Fourteenth and O'Fallon streets, for high mass at 9:30 a. m. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

The body will be at the home until the funeral and yesterday's large number of visitors indicated that many will call there today.

"Jimmy" Miles' death, anticipated hourly for more than a week, came at 6:30 a. m. yesterday, after an illness of some two months with stomach and liver disorders. He was 63 years old.

Three Daughters at Bedside.

Three of his four daughters were at the house, Misses May, Johanna and Corinne Miles, as was the only son, James P. Miles Jr. The other daughter, Mrs. Alice Cento, was not there. $6,000,000 STATE ROAD BONDS ORDERED SOLD

Bids on Securities Will Be Received in Jefferson City on Nov. 3.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 20.—Sale of $6,000,000 in bonds from the $60,00,000 road bond issue was ordered by the State Board of Fund Commissioners late today, at the request of the State Highway Commission. Bids on the bonds will be received by the board in Jefferson City on Nov. 3.

The board already has sold $4,000,000 of the bonds this year and the additional $6,000,000 will complete the allotment of $10,000,000 authorized by law to be sold in the years 1924 and 1925. The Attorney-General has ruled that the $10,000,000 allotment could be sold at any time during the two-year period.

Thus far the State has sold $19,000,000 of the road bonds and the sale on Nov. 3 will increase the issue to $25,000,000.

The bonds will bear 4 per cent interest from Nov. 1, and will mature in the years 1935, 1936 and 1937, at the rate of $2,000,000 each year.

THREE OUSTED IN VETERANS HOSPITAL POISONING CASE

Dr. E. M. Smith, Nurse and X-Ray Technician Dropped as Result of Patient's Death.

Three employes of the United States Veterans' Hospital at Jefferson Barracks have been discharged as a result of the death of Edward B. Weston, a World War veteran, who was accidentally poisoned while under treatment for stomach trouble. The ousted employes are Dr. E. M. Smith Miss Esther Johnson, a nurse, and Lay Hardy, X-ray technician. All had been in Government service for years.

Dr. Smith was examining Weston with an X-ray device and the patient was given a tumblerful of liquid supposed to be barium sulphate. The wrong bottle had been taken from a shelf and Weston was poisoned by metol, a chemical used in X-ray laboratories.

PROCEDURE IN JONES INQUIRY UP TO JURY

County Inquisitorial Body to Meet Tuesday—Ouster of Prosecutor Halted.

When the St. Louis County grand jury meets next Tuesday for the first time after being impaneled, it will be instructed by Circuit Judge Wurdeman, who has ordered it to inquire into the integrity and effectiveness as a public servant of Prosecuting Attorney Adam Henry Jones, to decide for itself between these alternatives:

Pushing the Jones inquiry unaided by a prosecutor.

Taking it up with the aid of First Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Wilfred Jones (who is not related to his superior.)

Taking up other affairs with Wilfred Jones.

Jones Ouster Halted.

Judge Wurdeman was ordered yesterday by Acting Chief Justice David E. Blair of the Supreme Court of Missouri to take no further action under his order temporarily removing Adam Henry Jones as prosecutor until the Supreme Court acts on Jones' application for a writ of prohibition to prevent his removal. Judge Wurdeman had ordered Jones ousted temporarily during the grand jury inquiry into charges that Jones has been paid for "protection" of bootlegging and gambling.

William Baer, counsel for Jones, said that it was not intended to prevent the grand jury investigation, but only to prevent the ouster. He contends that the writ should be granted because Jones was ordered out of office without a hearing and without reference to the legal procedure for removal of a County officer. It is likely that the application will not be heard before Oct. 7, but a preliminary rule may be issued in the meantime as a formality.

Appointment of Ely.

Wayne Ely was appointed Temporary Prosecuting Attorney by Judge Wurdeman. Jones, who has asserted he welcomes the inquiry, said he would be glad to appoint Ely as First Assistant Prosecuting Attorney, to handle the grand jury work.

This arrangement would be satisfactory to Judge Wurdeman, who would then allow Jones to continue in his other official duties, but Ely has given no indication that he would accept the appointment from Jones.

Jones has referred to the statute providing that only the prosecutor or his assistants, or the Attorney-General or his assistants, may direct grand jury work. However, Judge Wurdeman, as has been told, relies on a Supreme Court decision of 1885 that the courts have inherent power to clothe a temporary prosecutor with full authority.

19-YEAR-OLD GIRL FOILS BAG CO. PAYROLL ROBBERS

Stands and Signals When Other Employes Drop to Floor and Frightens Off Gunmen.

A girl stenographer caused four robbers to flee without loot from the office of the Missouri Bag Co., 814 North Second street, at 10 a. m. yesterday, after the robbers had forced nine other employes to lie on the floor and had demanded the payroll.

The stenographer, Miss Pearl Bank, 19 years old, of 4553 McMillan avenue, was in the office with two other girl employes and seven men, when the robbers entered and ordered "Everybody down on the floor!" Miss Bank, not wishing to soil her clothes, hesitated and lifted her hands instead.

Robbers See Signal and Run.

Standing before a window in the second-floor office, which faces Second street, Miss Bank's hands were easily visible to a man employed in a range factory across the street, and, assuming he was the object of a flirtation, he waved to her. One of the robbers observed this, slapped Miss Bank and shouted to his comrades, "Beat it!" They did.

The robbers missed approximately $800 by not searching the employes. Charles Sims, the factory superintendent, had the major part of a $700 payroll in his pockets and others had smaller sums. Not knowing this, the robbers concentrated on the locked safe, which held little cash, threatening to shoot Sims if he did not open it for them.

During the few minutes the robbers were in the office, a telephone rang. Immediately, the three telephones in the office were torn from their bases. Then a girl clerk fainted. A postman called to deliver mail, but ran when he saw a masked man pressing a revolver against Sims' head, as Sims lay in front of the safe. These incidents, coupled with Miss Bank's maneuvers, apparently unnerved the robbers who were excited when they entered.

The robbers were described as between 18 and 25 years old and cheaply dressed. Three wore dirty white handkerchiefs over their faces and carried revolvers. The fourth arrived and departed from the plant in a maroon-colored Oakland automobile, driven by a fifth man.

Car Reported Stolen.

When police had traced the license number on the car to Crawford Watkins, 3654 Page boulevard, Watkins reported that his car had been stolen by four men. He said he was driving through Fairgrounds Park, when the men boarded it and compelled him to drive to St. Louis avenue and Bacon street. There he was put out and his car was driven away, he said, the new driver assuring Watkins he would find the car later with $100 in it for his trouble.

Robbers Reach Office Before $3000 Payroll and Flee.

A $3000 payroll robbery at the office of the Busch & Latta Painting Co., 4366 Finney avenue, was frustrated at 12:30 p. m. yesterday when two young highwaymen arrived a few minutes too early. The money was on its way to the office from the bank at the time.

Entering the office, the robbers encountered the stenographer, Miss Dorothy Meyer, 17 year old, of 4565 Newberry terrace, who was alone in the place, preparing envelopes for distributing the money. They drew revolvers, ordered her to put up her hands and demanded, "Where is that payroll?"

When told it had not arrived the intruders fled.

PEPPER WILL OPEN G. O. P. NATIONAL CONVENTION HERE

Pennsylvania Senator Available for Address Oct. 2 or Oct. 3, Dr. Clements Is Advised.

United States Senator George Wharton Pepper of Pennsylvania will open the Republican presidential campaign in Missouri, speaking in St. Louis the night of Oct. 2 or Oct. 3, it was announced last night by Dr. E. B. Clements, Republican national committeeman from Missouri. Dr. Clements, at the American Hotel, said he had been informed from Republican national campaign headquarters that Senator Pepper was available for either date, which will be fixed later.

While here, yesterday, Dr. Clements met and conferred with Sam A. Baker, Republican nominee for Governor, who will be the chief speaker at the opening of the State Republican campaign at Sedalia tomorrow. He said the opening rally would be attended by candidates for all State offices, and for Congress, but that the registration in the cities might affect the attendance of Republican workers.

Former Gov. James P. Goodrich of Indiana, in St. Louis on legal matters, called on Dr. Clements last night, and today he will meet former Gov. William Lloyd Harding of Iowa, who was obtained as the principal speaker at the Constitution Day ceremonies at the Municipal Theater, this afternoon, through the invitation of Dr. Clements.

CEREMONY TODAY FOR CONSTITUTION AT FOREST PARK

Chancellor Hadley to Introduce Former Gov. Harding of Iowa as Principal Speaker.

Former Gov. William Lloyd Harding of Iowa will be the principal speaker at Constitution Day ceremonies which will begin at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Municipal Theater in Forest Park.

Five thousand seats have been reserved for members of organizations participating in the ceremonies and the other 4000 odd seats are open to the public.

The program will open with a half hour concert by Poepping's band and the singing of patriotic songs, which will be led by the Apollo Club. Monsignor Tannrath, rector of the St. Louis Cathedral, will deliver the invocation and Gen. E. J. Spencer will conduct the exercises in connection with the salute to the flag.

The speaker of the day will be introduced by former Gov. Herbert S. Hadley, chancellor of Washington University. The Rev. Dr. John W. MacIvor of the Church Federation of St. Louis will pronounce the benediction. More than 190 St. Louis organizations will participate in the ceremonies and organization flags and emblems will be massed on the stage during the celebration.

Following is a program of the celebration, exclusive of the band concert and singing which will conclude at 3 p. m.:

1. Musical number, "American Fantasi" ....Tobani
2. Invocation.
3. Salute to the colors.
4. "Star Spangled Banner," Apollo Club
5. Introduction of the speaker by Chancellor Hadley.
6. Principal address by Gov. Harding.
7. Musical number, "American Rights" ....Poepping
8. Recital by audience of closing sentences of the Declaration of Independence.
9. Singing of "America," by audience.
10. Bendiction.

In a statement yesterday Gen Spencer said that the meeting would give citizens an opportunity to take stock of their obligations to the nation and its constitution and would offer a chance to make plans for a more perfect observance of the constitution.

"The meeting," should leave the audience so minded as to do their full civic duty, public and private, will be a wonderful factor in the upbuilding of a real 100 per cent Americanism," he said.

HENKE MURDER TRIAL ON DOCKET FOR TOMORROW

Husband Accused in Richmond Heights Tragedy Has Been on Bond.

The trial of Harry A. Henke Jr., charged with the murder of his wife, Mrs. Marie Henke, is scheduled to begin before Judge McElhinney at Clayton tomorrow morning.

Henke has been at liberty since Aug. 24 on $20,000 bond, having previously been held in jail at Clayton since his arrest, a few days after his young wife's body was found in their home at 1721 Beulah place, Richmond Heights. The discovery occurred the evening of July 11, and the murder is supposed to have been committed on the morning of that day.

The young woman was killed with a wrench, which belonged in the house and which was found near her body. Suspicion was directed to the husband by the absence of any indication that an outside visitor had been at the house. Some apparent indications of robbery were cast aside by the county officers.

ROBBERS SPURN MOTORIST'S $40 AS "CHICKEN FEED"

Highwaymen Then Take Man's Auto Which They Board at Boulevard Intersection.

When Martin Mooney, barkeeper at 615 North Vandeventer avenue, observed the boulevard stop rule at Lindell boulevard and Newstead avenue at 7:30 o'clock last night, three men with revolvers climbed into his Ford sedan and bade him "keep right on going."

Passing Newstead District Police Station, a block south, Mooney saw a policeman standing under the arc light, but a revolver was pressed against his back and one of his captors said:

"You make a noise and I'll blow you to hell."

Mooney drove on to Duncan avenue, where he was told to stop.

"How much money you got?" he was asked.

"About $40."

"Chicken feed! We don't want it," one of the men exclaimed, "get out of here." Mooney got out and the three men drove off.

Ten minutes later three robbers answering the same description held up a grocery at 22 North Sarah street and took $300 from Wyman Wingert, the clerk in charge. They drove off in a Ford sedan.

found in the parsonage. It was discovered that last Aug. 12 Hight bought arsenic from Webster's drug store in Mount Vernon, and that on two other occasions he purchased the same poison from Mt. Vernon druggists.

Armed with this evidence, the State's Attorney and the reporters made another descent on the prisoner.

"How about this, Mr. Hight?"

The Rev. Mr. Hight smiles, innocently.

"Oh yes," he says. "I bought that arsenic. Let me tell you about that."

He leans forward, eagerly.

"The rats down at the parsonage were terribly bad. My wife and I tried all sorts of things, but they didn't work. So I bought the arsenic. We buttered bits of bread and spread the stuff on them and we put it in saucers of cornmeal."

"Honestly, I Didn't Do It."

"Don't you know that this fact is interpreted as a link in a strong circumstantial chain against you?" queries a reporter.

"Is it?" he rejoins, naively. "Well, I guess it does make it look almost as if I killed my wife. But I didn't. Honestly, men, I didn't do it."

"Do you think she was despondent and committed suicide, or that she took the poison by acciden?"

He considers this as impersonally as if the question were asked about the death of an entire stranger. He rubs his hand across his fat chin and brushes his thin brown hair with nerveless fingers.

"Why, no. I don't think so," he gives his quiet judgment. "You see, Annie was conscious right to the end. I know because I nursed her. Never took my clothes off for four days. It looks like, if she had intended to kill herself she would have said something, don't it? Or left a note. And I don't think she could have got the poison accidental-like because we didn't have cornbread that night. No, sir, I can't think; I just can't think how it happened."

There you are again. Would a guilty man not leap at the suggestion of suicide or accidental poisoning? Would he not figure that these were safe loopholes? But, on the other hand, would an innocent man, acting naturally, be able to discuss with such calmness the death of the woman who had been his mate for 27 years?

Denies He Poisoned Sweetin.

Meanwhile, another case is working out that may involve the minister's fate.

Wilford Sweetin, husband of the woman with whom Hight is alleged to have had a love affair, died in August, two weeks after Hight bought the arsenic. It was assumed until the death of Mrs. Hight that Sweetin's demise was due to ptomaine poisoning caused by eating tainted ice cream. But the body has been exhumed as a result of the gossip in the Hight case and the analysis of the stomach's contents is expected soon from a Chicago chemist.

"Don't you know that down at Ina they are accusing you of murdering both Sweetin and your wife?" a reporter asks.

He opens his hands in a helpless gesture.

"I know they're talking about me. They talk about anybody."

"You didn't poison Wilford Sweetin?"

"No, I didn't. Was he poisoned?"

"We don't know that—yet," puts in the State's Attorney, grimly.

Wrote Obituary, Preached Sermon.

"Why, I had no idea Wilford was poisoned," gasps the prisoner, his blue eyes opening. "I nursed him, too. Wrote his obituary when he died. Preached his funeral sermon, I did. I remember when Wilford got religion. He was of the world, and I had been working over him a long time. But one night he got consecration, and after we had prayed together for awhile, he came through."

"Came through?"

"Yes. Got religion. Saw the Holy Ghost."

"Sure you didn't have anything to do with Mrs. Sweetin?"

"God knows, I didn't."

She Was Out of Luck.

"What would you have said if someone came to you and told you that Mrs. Sweetin was infatuated with you?"

"I'd have said she was out of luck."

There you are once more. His pride knew no appeal of this nature. He could not be betrayed into boasting.

"God knows I have never looked at another woman with evil thought in my life. My wife was the only woman I wanted."

He makes the statement without righteous indignation in his voice; with no attempt to show resentment at the insinuating talk in his little home town; without feeling of any sort. He shows no animus toward those who heckle him and doubt him and persist in this irritating examination. He offers to go with the Sheriff anywhere. He tells reporters where to find pictures at the parsonage. He willingly poses for snapshots.

Hasn't Got Any Idea if They Were Murdered.

"Who do you think did commit these murders?" rasps the State's Attorney, losing patience.

His eyebrows lift in that childish, unsophisticated way.

"Well—do you know—I haven't got the slightest idea. I think and think, but I haven't got an idea."

Balked, the questioners file out for another consultation.

"He'll talk when he gets before a jury," says a deputy sheriff.

REPORTED WILBR WILL QUIT, BUT HE DENIES REBUKE

is no expectation that this board can reach any final conclusion in time to affect these estimates in any way.

Wilbur said he imagined his recall related to this subject and so had had his naval aid, Capt Walter R. Gerhardl, prepare a survey during the trip back across the continent. This survey, relating to technical features of naval aviation, was left with Mr. Coolidge for his study.

Gerhardi's memorandum to the Secretary said:

"Aviation advance does not justify us in allowing our 18 battleships or any of them to deteriorate, using money thus saved to build up aviation."

"Three types of aircraft," he said, "should be developed: (a) Flying boats for long range spotting and bombing, (b) Amphibians and single pontoons planes for spotting and for close potection of the fleet against submarine and destroyer attacks, (c) twin pontoon planes for torpedo planes but these should be considered as secondary to the first two."

Answers Criticism of Speeches.

When unfavorable Japanese reaction to his speeches on the coast were mentioned to him, Wilbur replied that he had been misquoted in the newspapers. "In discussing the Japanese, I didn't say 'two antagonistic civilizations,' I said 'two different civilizations.' I was trying to differentiate between the Occidental and the Oriental.

"I was trying to say that the Washington disarmament conference treaty was a pledge of friendship between these races and a guarantee of faith and peace; that the United States expected to stand on its rights and that we expected other nations to do the same."

Similarly, he said, his speech before the Bar Association at Catalina Island, which had been interpreted as ridiculing the prohibition law, had been misrepresented. "I cannot imagine how my words could have given such an impression," he said. "I would be the last one in the world to speak disparagingly of any law of the land."

HOLY NAME SOCIETY VISITS MOUNT VERNON

Convention Delegates Pay Tribute to Memory of George Washington.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—A second message from the Pope was received today by the Holy Name Society in convention here with three lusty cheers for the Pontiff's health, led by Cardinal O'Connell, papal legatee to the sessions.

Another high pontifical mass celebrated in the stadium of Catholic University by Cardinal Daugherty of Philadelphia in the presence of Cardinal O'Connell and one of the greatest crowds yet gathered for the convention, opened the day's proceedings, which ended with a pilgrimage to Mount Vernon. Convening immediately after the mass, the convention listened to the Pope's message read by Father Ripple, national director of the Holy Name Society.

"The Holy Father," it said, "deeply pleased by the solemn manifestation of affection and devoted filial homage of the Holy Name Societies, sends to the assembled delegates the apostolic benediction."

After cheers for the Pope and for Cardinal O'Connell had died down, Father Ripple introduced Archbishop Curley of Baltimore, who as official host to the convention, delivered a short speech of welcome, in which he stressed the spiritual and patriotic benefits accruing to the nation through the Holy Name activities.

Most of the delegates and visitors went to Mount Vernon to pay tribute to the memory of Washington. A patriotic speech was delivered by the Rev. Peter L. Guilday, and the Holy Name pledge was uttered aloud by all present, led by Cardinal O'Connell and Father Ripple, after which the Cardinal placed a great wreath upon Washington's tomb on behalf of the convention fraternity. The Star-Spangled Banner then was sung by all to the accompaniment of a band.

Unveils Monument to Nuns.

Advantage of Cardinal O'Connell's visit to Washington was taken today to have him unveil a public monument to nuns who volunteered for nursing work in the war. The monument was raised through the efforts of the women of the Order of Hibernia and was publicly received by the District of Columbia authorities, after addresses by Cardinal O'Connell, Bishop Shahan, rector of the Catholic University and other dignitaries.

Cardinal O'Connell addressed particularly the unselfish heroism of the nuns, and, the horrors of war, declaring "the word itself is elemental—a cry of horror in a moan of anguish—war."

Considering the causes of war he asserted that once there was a united spiritual authority to which Christendom could turn "for the sure and safe solution of all social problems whether of peace or war," but now he declared this existed no longer "and the curse of division is conflict and the effort of a divided Christendom to achieve international lasting amity without a centralized authority which is of good, is to attempt to build a bridge the keystone of whose arch is not in place."

Elaborate preparations have been made for tomorrow's parade through Washington, after which President Coolidge is to address 100,000 Holy Name men and visitors in the ellipse south of the White House.

WHEELER SAYS DAWES IS UNFIT TO HOLD OFFFICE

Declares Republican Nominee Is Either Too Ignorant or Dishonest for Vice Presidency.

ASSAILS GENERAL ON LORIMER BANK CASE

La Follette's Running Mate, in Chicago, Asserts G. O. P. Candidate Misrepresented Constitution.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—An assault on the private and public record of Charles G. Dawes, Republican vice presidential candidate, was launched tonight in Chicago by Senator Wheeler of Montana, nominee for the same office on the La Follette ticket. A capacity crowd at a night mass meeting heard him unloose his oratorical guns and the address was the third of a series delivered in the city during the day.

The chink of money along with the booming of flashlight cameras became a regular preliminary to each of Senator Wheeler's speeches, for at a noon luncheon and a 6 o'clock banquet, as well as at night ,the leaders of the third ticket campaign sought and got substantial campaign fund contributions from his auditors.

His night audience hailed Senator Wheeler's declaration that he had "come to tell something about Dawes," first with cheers and then with sympathetic booing. He went straight to quotations from pre-campaign speeches made by Dawes, which showed the Republican representative to be, he said, an opponent of "a free democracy"

An Opinion and a Story.

Departing from written text, Senator Wheeler said that John Barton Payne, attorney for Dawes' bank in litigation over the transaction, had issued a statement declaring that there was no wrongdoing in the step. "But that's where Judge Payne's opinion differs from that of the courts which have passed upon it," Senator Wheeler said.

"I'm reminded of the story of an airplane driver who took a passenger over the dome of the national capitol just after the Teapot Dome scandal came out," Senator Wheeler added. "The passenger wanted to know what the building was, and the aviator jocularly said it was the greatest steal mill in the United States. No wonder General Dawes wants to get down there now."

Senator Wheeler focused his attack on General Dawes on the Lorimer bank failure and on the organization of the Minute Men of the Constitution, which has been charged by its critics as being an opponent of organized labor.

Prefacing his remarks with a statement that if the public did not know his own record it was "no fault of the Republican National Committee." Senator Wheeler plunged into his attack on Dawes.

"Every statement I shall make will be based either on court documents, on printed statements of the candidate himself, or on other public records easily obtainable by any one who cares to verify my assertions," Senator Wheeler began.

"Mr. Dawes' political philosophy, his view of the relation of the people to their government, helps to explain certain events of his career and certain of his recent activities. It helps to explain how he could lend himself to a fraudulent banking transaction that robbed 4000 Chicago citizens of their savings; it helps to explain why he organized the little political army which he calls the Minute Men of the Constitution.

Reviews Lorimer Case.

"In 1902 Mr. Dawes organized the Central Trust Co. of Chicago, with himself as president. Some years later another bank was organized in Chicago, the La Salle street National Bank. At its head was one William Lorimer, who had retired from the United States Senate in somewhat the same manner that Newberry, of Michigan, retired two years ago. Lorimer's bank began business in May, 1910. Examiners of the Chicago Clearing House Association refused to grant it membership in the Clearing House Association. The directors agreed, on the demand of the United States Comptroller of the Currency, to do certain things to strengthen the bank's condition, but failed keep their promise and by Oct. 12, 1912, the bank was in a bad way.

"Lorimer and his associates then decided to change their National bank into a State bank, to be known as the La Salle Street Trust and Savings Bank. They proposed to turn over the assets of their national bank to the new bank, along with its liabilities, of course, but they did not propose to put in any additional money. Much of the bank's money had been loaned to officers and directors and friends of Lorimer and his associates.

Many Lost Investments.

"The new bank announced a capital and surplus of $1,250,000. Under the State banking laws of Illinois it thereupon became necessary to show the State Auditor of Public Accounts that the new bank actually had $1,250,000 in cash. Lorimer's new bank did not have $1,250,000. Efforts were made to obtain that amount in Chicago and New York and failed. Then Banker Lorimer appealed to Banker Dawes, head of the Central Trust Company. Here's what happened:

"On the afternoon of Oct. 21, 1912, Dawes turned over to Lorimer's new bank the required $1,250,000. The agent of the State Auditor of Public Accounts counted it and issued a certificate authorizing Lorimer's bank to do business. Then the $1,250,000 was handed back to Dawes' Central Trust Company. All in one afternoon. The La Salle Street Trust & Savings Bank thus began business with an advertised and certified capital and surplus of $1,250,000, when as a matter of fact there was nothing in the bank to represent this sum.

"You people of Chicago know how long Lorimer's bank lasted. Within 20 months it had been closed and a receiver appointed. Its assets were found to be $2,000,000 less than needed to satisfy depositors and other creditors. There were 4000 of these depositors, mostly little folks. Three thousand of the depositors were in the savings department. In addition to the depositors a large number of small stockholders in the bank lost their investment.

"The part that Mr. Dawes had taken in this transaction became known when the receiver, appointed by the court, tried to find the $1,250,000 of cash which had been exhibited to the State Auditor's agent the day the bank was given permission to do business. So he brought suit in the Cook County Circuit Court to hold Dawes' bank liable for the full $1,250,000.

"Cheat Upon the Public."

"The court held that Dawes' bank must pay over to the receiver, for the benefit of the creditors, that $1,250,000 with interest, amounting in all to $1,487,854.16. Dawes naturally appealed and the case remained in the courts until July 12 of this year. The very day that Mr. Dawes was nominated, by long distance telephone from the White House, for the office of vice-president, the Supreme Court of Illinois handed down a final decree in the case. Seven years of fighting back and forth through the courts had whittled down the amount that Dawes' bank must pay to $100,000. He had succeeded in reducing his liability this much, but never for a moment did he escape the responsibility for his astounding cheat upon the public.

"So much for the record of Mr. Dawes, the banker. Now we come to his record as a General—as a General of the Minute Men of the Constitution. In April, 1923, he had a conference at Miami, Fla., with Attorney-General Daugherty. He came back to Chicago then and organized the Minute Men of the Constitution. Just how Gen. Dawes proposed to use his little army was not made clear until he issued his first call to arms. The first battle in behalf of the Constitution ordered by the General was here in Chicago a year ago when he directed his Minute Men to go to the polls and vote for two Judges, then up for re-election. One of these two Judges was the same who had been concerned in the litigation over Dawes' bank."

Dawes and His Minute Men.

"In his official call to the Minute Men, Gen. Dawes gave as his excuse the fact that certain labor leaders had attacked two judicial candidates as 'injunction Judges.' This was a local election and you are all doubtless familiar with the facts. Speaking of the labor leaders, Gen. Dawes said:

"'They assume that the acts and conduct of Judges in issuing injunctions are against the rank and file of labor. This is not the fact. Judges Sullivan and Holdom, under the law, were required to issue these injunctions when a proper bill was presented to them. While the law stands as it is, a Judge must issue an injunction when a proper bill is filed.'

"As commander-in-chief of the Minute Men, he then called upon them as follows: 'The twenty companies of Minute Men of the Constitution already organized in Cook County are therefore called in their first fight behind law enforcement and the principles of constitutional government upon a clear issue. Together with all good citizens, they must rally to the polls next Tuesday in support of Judges Sullivan and Holdom and stand together behind the laws of Illinois and our Constitution which guarantees the inalienable rights of the individual and liberty under the law.'

"Misrepresented the Laws."

"Now every lawyer knows, and every intelligent citizen ought to know, that General Dawes misrepresented the Constitution and the laws of Illinois, and what both require of Illinois Judges. There is nothing in the State Constitution or laws which requires any Judge to issue an injunction against labor unions or other organizations or individuals merely upon the filing of a bill in equity, as General Dawes would have us believe. Injunctions shall not be issued in any case unless it is apparent that irreparable damage will be done and there is no adequate remedy at law. And the enlightened view of the American Bar is that no injunction should ever be issued in controversies between labor and capital. If Dawes doesn't know that he is too ignorant to be vice president of the United States. If he does know better and made those statements knowing they are not true, then—well, he isn't honest enough to be vice president."

Democratic New York Sees the Prince of Wales

STENOGRAPHERS to the right of him, bookkeepers to the left of him, policemen around him, pushing and thundering. And so the Prince of Wales paid a visit to Wall Street, New York, about noon hour, Thursday, and democratic New York who had fought to discard his forefathers, fought just as strenuously to get one long distance peek at him.

COURTLAND YOUNG DENIED CUSTODY OF HIS DAUGHTER

Magazine Publisher Sought to Prevent Former Actress From Taking Child Pending Suit.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—A few hours after Mrs. Dorothea Campbell Young, former actress, had been served with a summons in a divorce suit brought by Courtland H. Young, magazine publisher, Supreme Court Justice Levy denied Young's application for the custody of his 2-year-old daughter.

Dismissing the writ of habeas corpus sued out by Young against his wife, the Court told Mrs. Young to "take the child and go." Justice Levy, summarizing the arguments advanced by Young in deter, pointed out that, although Mrs. Young had been represented as being indiscreet and inattentive to the child, there appeared to be doubt as to the veracity of several of the plaintiff's witnesses.

Mrs. Young was served with the papers in the divorce action as she was entering the courthouse. Mrs. Young last year began a suit for separation against her husband. This action was never closed.

PRINCE OF WALES' VISIT ENDS TODAY

Will Leave Long Island in Special Train for High River, Alberta.

By the Associated Press.

SYOSETT, N. Y., Sept. 20.—The Prince of Wales will spend tomorrow, the last day of his holiday visit on Long Island, quietly in the James A. Burden house, which has been his home during his vacation here, receiving farewell calls from friends. At about 10 o'clock tomorrow night he will board a special train placed at his disposal by Sir Henry Thornton, president and managing director of Canadian National Railways, which will take him all the way to High River,, Alberta. The plan to cross Long Island Sound by yacht and meet the train in New London, Conn., was discarded because of the greater simplicity of the present route.

The party will not leave the train in New York or at any other point between Syosset and Montreal, which will be reached at about 11 o'clock Monday morning. The Prince will arrive in Winnipeg at 6:15 a. m. Wednesday, finishing his trip at High River at 8 or 9 o'clock Thursday night.

Visits Roosevelt Home.

After spending slightly less than three hours in New York, playing squash at the Racquet and Tennis Club, and taking luncheon there with David Boyle, one of his secretaries, the Prince today made a pilgrimage to the Roosevelt home on Sagamore Hill, Oyster Bay, to pay his respects to the widow of the late President.

Kermit Roosevelt, second son of the Colonel, met the Prince at the door and introduced him to Mrs. Roosevelt. Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt and Miss Isabel Rockefeller, a niece of oJhn D. Rockerfeller Sr., were the only others present. The Prince inspected the famous Roosevelt trophy room during his 25 minutes call.

Sees Polo Games.

From the Roosevelt home the Prince drove to the Meadowbrook Club where a California polo team played against one led by Louis Lacey, the rBitish star, and Devereux Milburn and Thomas Hitchcock Jr., captained rival pickup teams. The Prince spent half an hour at the game, then bade adieu to a number of friends and strolled over to an adjoining field, where the Milburn-Hitchcock game had started before the other had been finished. He sat on a sideline rail with Maj. Metcalfe for a while, then crossed over to the side where a crowd from the grand stands had assembled as soon as his departure from his box had been noticed. The usual throng remained in his wake until he left the grounds, giving him a cheer as he stepped into his automobile.

James Beattie, 18-year-old caddy at the links golf club in Searington, who carried the bag for the Prince when he played 18 holes yesterday said today that the Prince appeared capable of making the 18 holes in 94 or 96. Seventy-two is par. No card score was kept, but Beattie, qualifying as an expert observer, gave it as his opinion that the Prince was a fair golfer.

Beattie found the Prince "a nice man to caddy for, not fussy or nervous. He doesn't holler at the caddies."

"He was pretty wild," he continued, "and lots of the time he was in the rough. His drives were not long, 175 yards at the most, and that was down hill. He putted fairly well, but the best ofall were his chip shots onto the green."

Local No. 1 of the International Printing rPessmen's and Assistants Union, New York, has the honors of being the second trade union to elect the Prince of Wales a member. The New York union issued a card to him after he had started one of the preses of the Herald-Tribune on Wednesday. The Prince's other labor card is that of the hammermen and ironworkers of Glasgow.

SIGNED CONTRACT TO GIVE WIFE ALIMONY IF SHE GETS DIVORCE

East St. Louis Man's Agreement Filed With Petition by Wife—Didn't Concede Her Right to Decree.

Mrs. Frances B. Kroger, 3905A Hartford street, yesterday filed suit to divorce Frederick Boken Kroger, 535 Veronica avenue, East St. Louis, alleging general indignities. Attached to the petition is a copy of a contract whereby Kroger agreed to pay $15,000 alimony in gross and an additional $75 a month for the support of two children in the event his wife obtained a decree.

The contract recites that she has announced her intention to sue for a divorce, and although he does not concede her right to a decree, he is willing, in the event she should divorce him, to set aside sufficient property "beyond the reach of the vicissitudes of fortune to the end it may be available to respond to any decree of allimony." The contract was executed on March 6 last.

In her petition, Mrs. Kroger charges that her husband refused to go home for his meals, and that finally he refused to live in the same house with her. She also charges that he associated with another woman in East St. Louis. The couple were married Nov. 27, 1920, at Hillsboro, Ill., and separated last November. She asks for custody of the children.

JUDGE REFUSES TO APPROVE HOLLAND BANK SETTLEMENT

Finds No Evidence E. L. Sanford Was Surrendering All His Property to Meet Obligations.

TRIAL OF BANKER OPENS TOMORROW

Court Declines to Accept $282,000 Appraisal of Property Made by Committee of Business Men.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 20.—Judge Guy D. Kirby, in Circuit Court here this morning, refused to approve a proposed settlement between E. L. Sanford, former president of the defunct Holland Banking Co., and John E. Cahill, Deputy State Finance Commissioner, whereby Sanford was to turn over to the State Finance Department property, the value of which had been appraised by a committee of five at $282,000, to meet obligations on his part to the bank, said by the Finance Department to be more than $700,000.

The Court said there was no evidence that the former banker was turning over to the Finance Department all his property, no evidence that the property to be turned over was worth anything like the appraised value, and that the committee which fixed this value, while made up of reputable business men, had not heard evidence and was without standing in law, as there are no statutes providing for such a committee. Judge Kirby commented that the Court would be "gullible, indeed," if it accepted the value placed upon the property Sanford proposed to turn over to the Finance Department.

The property the former banker proposed to transfer to the Finance Commissioner comprised 2015 shares of stock in the Hermann Sanford Saddlery Co., 150 shares of stock in the Bunker Lumber Co., 300 shares of stock in the State Savings Trust Co., and a 120-acre highly improved farm six miles east of Springfield.

Some Shares in Litigation.

The committee recommended acceptance of the shares of stock in each concern at par value of $100 a share, and the acceptance of the farm at a valuation of $36,000.

Judge Kirby commented that while the stock of the saddlery company had a book value of $100 a share, there were certain obligations of the company not shown on the books and that certain of the shares of stock claimed by Sanford now are in litigation in the local Circuit Court.

The obligations referred to are notes amounting to more than $100,000, claimed to have been given to the Holland Banking Co. by Sanford on the part of the saddlery company, without knowledge or consent of other officers, and to be now in the hands of innocent purchasers.

These notes, it was said, would reduce materially the value of the stock.

The saddlery company also asserts that stock may not be transferred, save on the books of the company, and the transfer of stock claimed by Sanford, it is set forth in the litigation in the local court, is not so shown. By-laws of the company, it is claimed, also provide that indebtedness of any stockholder to the company automatically is a lien upon stock owned by such shareholder.

The Court declined to accept the par value recommendation as to the 150 shares of stock in the Bunker Lumber Co. after W. G. Tillock, City Engineer and officer in the company since its organization, testified he would be glad to sell his stock in the company for 50 cents on the dollar.

Comments on Farm Value.

In commenting on the valuation of $36,000 on the farm, known as the "Sanford Place," the Judge said:

"This valuation might be all right if some wealthy man were at hand to purchase the place as a toy, but the Finance Commissioner cannot afford to hold the farm until some Prince Charming passes by."

In the proposal settlement, Sanford did not accept as his all obligations the Finance Commissioner said were due the bank from Sanford. Among these obligations are various notes said not to have been made by persons purported to have made them, and for the making of which Sanford is under indictment on a charge of forgery.

Also among them is a penal bond in the sum of $175,000 given by Sanford and E. N. Ferguson, former chairman of the board of directors of the bank, to the Finance Department when the bank was ordered in 1923 to get rid of certain paper said by the Finance Department to be without value but carried among the assets of the bank.

Refusal of the Court to accept the settlement is regarded here as having special significance, as the first case against Sanford will be called for trial in the Benton County Circuit Court at Warsaw tomorrow. This is one of the cases in which he (Sanford) knew the bank to be in failing condition.

When They Were Husband and Wife

MRS. IRENE CASTLE-TREMAN-McLAUGHLIN.

CAPT. ROBERT TREMAN.

WASSALL TO COMMAND 110TH OBSERVATION SQUADRON

Veteran of Air Service in World War Appointed to Succeed Maj. Robertson.

Capt. C. Ray Wassall has been appointed commander of the 110th Observation Squadron of St. Louis, Missouri, National Guard, to succeed Maj. William B. Robertson, resigned, according to orders received here yesterday from Adjt.-Gen. Raupp, commander of the State Militia.

CAPT. C. RAY WASSALL.

Wassall is credited with being one of the most expert aviators in St. Louis, being especially noted for his coolness in an emergency. During the recent guard encampment at Nevada, Mo., Wassall directed the rescue of an aerial acrobat, who was unable to climb back in Wassall's plane after performing a series of stunts at the end of a rope tied to the undercarriage. Wassall was finally forced to fly over a reservoir, into which the acrobat plunged safely after cutting the rope with a knife supplied him from another plane.

Wassall served in the Army Air Service with the rank of First Lieutenant during the World War. He is 29 years old, and lives at 2305 Belleview avenue. He is married, and is a salesman for an automatic stoker company.

Robertson resigned because increasing business duties prevented his devoting the necessary time to the Air Squadron. It is expected he will be transferred to the reserve with his present rank.

WON'T CAMPAIGN FOR FATHER

Davis' Daughter Returns from Europe to Be Near Him.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Mrs. Julia Davis Adams, daughter of John W. Davis, will not take any active part in support of her father's campaign, she said today upon her arrival from Copenhagen on the steamship Frederick VIII. She said she would give her father only her "moral support."

"I wanted to be as near my father as possible while he is fighting to win," said Mrs. Adams, "and so I am here." Mrs. Adams was disappointed when she learned that her father was in Indiana. There was no one at the pier to meet her.

EX-CONVICT SOUGHT AS SLAYER OF WOMAN

Alleged to Have Killed Benefactress Who Aided Him in Obtaining Release.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 20.—Harry Connor, alias Harry Garbutt, ex-convict of Joliet penitentiary, sought in connection with the slaying at Pasadena last night of Mrs Clifton R. Hunn, wife of a wealthy Chicago manufacturer, continued tonight to elude authorities of Southern California.

The murder suspect, alleged by two witnesses to have been seen last as he rushed from the bungalow court apartment in which Mrs. Hunn was killed, was the object of a widespread man-hunt, one of the most prominent features of which was an unproductive search of the home of Mrs. Frances Morehouse, Connor's aunt.

Jewels Not Taken.

From Mrs. Morehouse, police said they learned that Connors had told her that he "was through with crime" because it doesn't pay, but had added that "some crook is going to get Mrs. Hunn and get her good if she don't quit flashing her diamonds around the way she does."

More than $20,000 worth of jewels, thought at first to have been stolen from Mrs. Hunn, were found today in the slain woman's trunk, discounting, according to police, the theory that robbery was the motive behind the slaying.

Mrs. Hunn, according to relatives, had aided Connor both in obtaining his release from prison, to which he was sent for robbery, and in giving him money and clothes so that in California he might live down his record of crime.

Story of Woman's Cousin.

F. R. Gibson, a cousin of the slain woman was in the apartment when Connor called late yesterday, and was invited to stay for dinner. He told police the ex-convict had without warning locked him in the bath room and then had turned on his hostess and killed her.

Gibson finally managed to escape from the bathroom but reached the front door only in time to find Mrs. Hunn's body on the threshold and to see her slayer fleeing down the street.

His story was corroborated by Virginia Hunn, eight-year-old adopted daughter of the murder victim, who witnessed the killing.

Suspected Convict Had Been a Model Prisoner.

JOLIET, Ill., Sept. 20.—Harry Connor, believed to be the slayer of Mrs. Clifton R. Hunn, obtained his final discharge from the Illinois State penitentiary Dec. 19, 1923, while in California.

Connor was received from Cook County, Jan. 19, 1920, at the penitentiary, to serve a term of from 1 to 20 years for burglary. He was a model prisoner and early in 1922 he became an inmate at the honor farm. Connor was paroled to relatives in Chicago but obtained permission to go to California, where an aunt resides.

IRENE CASTLE SUES EX-HUSBAND AND HIS FATHER

Action for $40,000 Charges Robert E. Treman Converted Her Securities and Transferred Home.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 20.—Mrs. Frederick McLaughlin, the former Irene Castle, has sued her second husband, Robert E. Treman of this city, for $40,000, alleging conversion of her securities, and she has filed a second suit against her husband and his father, Robert H. Treman, banker and philanthropist of this city, seeking to set aside as fraudulent the transfer of her house she and her then husband occupied from son to father during their short marital career.

Pursuant to an order granted to her attorney, John J. Kuhn of New York, by Supreme Court Justice Aaron J. Levy, Sheriff Charles Green last night put young Treman under civil arrest but bail was promptly furnished by his family and he was soon released. He is under $40,000 bond.

Papers filed by the dancer's attorney with the order of arrest include a photostatic copy of a statement in the handwriting of young Treman that he took the securities valued at $35,000, belonging to his wife, without her knowledge or consent, and turned the proceeds into the Cayuga Pictures Corporation, which was organized in 1920 for the purpose of producing feature films starring the dancer. Treman, in his statement, admits his liability. In it he also states that he put $70,000 of his own money into the venture. The company produced several pictures, but the scheme was not a financial success and the money invested in it was said to have been lost.

Drew Salary From Company.

It also developed today that Irene Castle, then Mrs. Treman, drew a salary from the company larger than the amount she now seeks to recover from her former husband.

Treman declined to make any statement with reference to the litigation, but friends of the family said that their side of the case would be given in court and that both suits would be contested.

The second suit brought in Ithaca names young Treman's father, Robert H. Treman, as codefendant, charging that the transfer of Treman house by the son to the father, which occurred several months ago, was fraudulent and designed to prevent Irene Castle from collecting such money judgment as she may obtain against her husband presumably in the action for conversion.

House Sold to Fraternity.

The house has since been sold by the elder Treman to the Sigma Chi Fraternity. The deed had not passed up to noon today, but the elder Treman has given the fraternity, which has already taken possession of the place, a bond guaranteeing them possession and protecting them against any loss. The fraternity, it is alleged, paid $67,000 for the property.

The house in question is a handsome residence, beautifully located on Cayuga Heights road, overlooking the lake. It was landscaped to suit Mrs. Castle's taste, and a swimming pool especially built on the grounds for her. It was to this place that Treman brought his bride in 1919, and in it she passed quite a bit of her time in the first two years of her marriage. Then she went back to the stage and film, and Ithacans saw little of her. The title to the property has always been in Treman's name. On Dec. 31 last, six months after the dancer divorced him in Paris, Treman declared himself unmarried, and turned the property over to his father. It is this conveyance that Irene Castle seeks to have set aside. She also claims that $5500 of her money went into the property.

U. R. VALUE PUT AT $57,200,000 BY REORGANIZERS

Scheme Centered on Idea Company Will Be Allowed to Earn 7 Per Cent on That Amount.

The reorganization plan of the United Railways Co., which probably will be adopted in final form at a meeting of the Reorganization Committee in New York tomorrow, is centered about the idea that the company will be permited to earn 7 per cent on a valuation of $57,200,000. This will give the company an annual income of $4,004,000.

The Public Service Commisson placed a valuation of $53,000,000 on the property in its last survey and the reorganizers contend that $4,200,000 in betterments and improvements have been added since that time. They do not anticipate any difficulty in having this valuation accepted.

Will Retire Some Bonds.

As a first step toward making the income on that valuation sufficient, the committee will retire $19,443,000 of the $54,233,000 issue of bonds now outstanding. Outstanding bonds after this cut will amount to $34,800,000. The committee intends that the income representing the difference between 7 per cent on the total valuation and the interest charges on $34,800,000 bonds will leave sufficient to make the new stock pay. The old preferred stock has not paid a dividend in the last 12 years.

The new stock has been the source of great difficulty. Originally it was intended to arrange for a trade of old stock with an added payment for new. Later, the committee considered wiping out the old common and preferred stock, which at par, totaled $41,000,000. This matter will be ironed out finally in New York.

Holders of St. Louis Transit 5 per cent bonds, under which the foreclosure will be made, have agreed to accept new 7 per cent preferred stock, par amount for principal amount, for their $9,070,000 bonds. It is then proposed to pay off underlying bonds amounting to $4,100,000, $4,200,000 in receiver's certificates and $2,000,000 of the $6,500,000 Suburban bonds. This accounts for the reduction in fixed charges.

Plan to Raise Funds.

The money to accomplish this, under present arrangements, will come from the sale of stock. About $12,000,000 is required to pay off these obligations and provide working capital.

Frank O. Watts, president of the First National Bank, and chairman of the Reorganization Committee, said yesterday that the committee believed that co-ordination of bus and street car lines was inevitable.

The reorganization plan probably ultimately demand that this be done, on the theory that competition between ultilities supplying the same character of service is wasteful and should be eliminated.

The reorganization probably will be put into effect about Oct. 1, when the Transit bonds mature and foreclosure proceedings will be instituted in the Federal Court.

Man Shot Down in Home Dies.

By the Associated Press.

MARYVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 20.—Luther Wells, shot down in defense of his home by an unidentified man last December, died at a local hospital today from meningitis, the aftermath of an operation upon his brain for removal of an abscess that had developed as a result of the attack. Wells and his bride of a few weeks were shot down in the attack that was attempted against Mrs. Wells, the young husband fighting in a darkened room to protect his wife.

WILSON'S BODY TO REMAIN PERMANENTLY IN CATHEDRAL

Magnificent Shrine to Be Built for It—Thousands of Tourists Visit War Time President's Tomb.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Woodrow Wilson's body will remain permanently in the National Episcopal Cathedral at Mt. St. Albans here. This decision has just been reached and disposes of a widespread assumption that at some time a memorial on the lines of the Lincoln Memorial would be erected specially for the wartime president.

The present location of the body in the crypt under Bethlehem Chapel, the only part of the Cathedral in use, is not permanent. When the great edifice is completed, a magnificent shrine will be provided for the body in the main part of the Cathedral. As it will require five years to finish the Cathedral even if the $12,000,000 to $13,000,000 needed for that purpose is obtained, the body likely will not be moved for several years.

Mrs. Wilson during this last week had measurements taken in Bethlehem Chapel for a more fitting memorial tablet than the plain stone block now in a niche on the south side of the Chapel and bearing simply the name of Woodrow Wilson and the dates of his birth and death. This new tablet will remain as long as the body is in the crypt beneath the Chapel.

Heavy Tourist Travel.

Because of the heavy increase in tourist travel to the Cathedral since it became the resting place of Mr. Wilson's body, the office of Curator is to be created at once and the plans for directing and informing visitors enlarged correspondingly. The weekly attendance is from 2500 to 7000, with an average of 3500 or an annual rate of about 180,000.

Many touching scenes are recorded by the vergers on duty to guide visitors through the chapel. Some will lay a few daisies or violets on the stone marker, or single flowers, and then gorgeous wreaths will come from individuals, societies or foreign visitors. Not long ago one such wreath was sent by an admirer and the card said "To the known soldier."

Cathedral attaches keep a special book for the benefit of Mrs. Wilson to record these tributes. It is understood she derives much comfort from these manifestations of affection and admiration for her husband.

Mrs. Wilson Frequent Visitor.

Mrs. Wilson is a frequent visitor to the chapel. On National Defense day, Sept. 12, a considerable number of persons visited the chapel from an evident desire to emphasize Mr. Wilson's work for peace on that day.

Construction of the Cathedral goes on steadily under the driving direction of Bishop James E. Freeman. When it is completed there will be space for from 2000 to 4000 tombs. The foundation, where these tombs will be, already is finished. The Cathedral itself will rank in size, cost and appointments among the first five cathedrals in the world, according to its sponsors.

Compared with the interest shown in the other presidential shrines in the Washington area, Mount Vernon, home of Washington, and the Lincoln Memorial, the Cathedral, with 180,000 visitors annauually, is third. The Lincoln Memorial, up to July 31, this year, had had 368,860 visitors. From that date on no account has been kept. In 1923 the Lincoln Memorial had 495,192 visitors, more than any other public place in or about Washington. It, however, is the most accessible of the three shrines. At Mount Vernon, from May 15 to Sept. 15, this year, there were 185,000 visitors, an increase of 10,000 over the same period last year. Mount Vernon is 16 miles from Washington and an admission charge of 25 cents is made. The other shrines are free to the public.

MASSACHUSETTS DEMOCRATS LASH AT LA FOLLETTE AND KLAN

While Republicans in Their State Convention Adopt Coolidge's Principles as Platform.

By the Associated Press.

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 20.—Lashing out at the Republican administration, the Ku Klux Klan and the La Follette-Wheeler independent ticket, the Democratic State leaders repeatedly brought the State convention meeting here today to its feet with cheering.

Mayor Curley of Boston, candidate for the governorship, was greeted vociferously when he rose to speak.

John F. Fitzgerald, temporary chairman and keynote speaker, referring to the candidacy of Senator La Follette said:

"You who know La Follette's record know he betrayed Roosevelt while under the name of Republican. He has always played a long hand from 1912 to 1918. When 2,000,000 Americans were overseas, Robert La Follette pleaded for the Germans and was only saved from following Debs to prison by Penrose and Henry Cabot Lodge."

Republican State convention, also in session here today, took Calvin Coolidge, "his principles, his policies and his conduct in office" for their platform, adding among a few brief planks one that touched the klan issue but did not mention it by name. The platform contained 499 words. The brief plank touching on the klan said:

"We deplore any organized effort to create racial or religious prejudice."

President Coolidge sent to the convention a telegram setting forth "conomy, stability and common sense in Government" as the issues of the national campaign, adding that he knew Massachusetts could be depended on and the expression: "I believe we can depend upon the nation."

Chairman Frank H. Foss of the Republican State committee predicted a 400,000 plurality for Coolidge in his home State.

ALL VOTERS MUST REGISTER WITHIN NEXT FOUR DAYS OR BE DENIED BALLOT ON NOV. 4

Polling Places in Each Precinct of City Will Be Open From 8 A. M. to 9 P. M. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Every citizen of St. Louis must appear personally at the polling place in the voting precinct in which he or she resides for the purpose of registration on either tomorrow, Tuesday, Wednesday, or Thursday, in order to be qualified to vote at the general election on Nov. 4.

No unregistered person will be permitted to vote. Previous registrations are no longer effective. The law provides that all citizens must re-register once every four years, prior to the presidential elections, on dates fixed by Election Commissioners.

The only exception is in the case of persons who are ill or unavoidably out of the city on registration days. They will be permitted to register on dates to be announced later, providing they furnish a doctor's certificate in the case of illness, or affidavits of persons having personal knowledge of their absence from the city.

Polling places in the 624 voting precincts in the city will be open from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. on each of the four registration days. The 3744 election judges and clerks—six to a precinct—who will act as Boards of Registry, have been furnished detailed written instructions by the Election Board.

Must Have Final Papers.

Under a recently adopted amendment to the State constitution no unnaturalized person may vote. Formerly it was the custom to pemit persons to register and vote who had filed their declaration of intention to become a citizen, a process generally referred to as "taking out first papers." Under present requirements final citizenship papes must be obtained before a person may register or vote and these final papers must be produced at the time of registartion.

All citizens who are 21 years old, or who will have attained that age on or before Nov. 4, may register. Residence within the city for 60 days and within the State for one year prior to Nov. 4, is necessary for registration.

Under the heading "Additional qualifications for women," the instructions to election officials declare that "all registrants are required to state, as near as they can, their exact age." It has been the custom of many women voters to assert they are "of legal age."

By provisions of a Federal naturalization law, approved Sept. 22, 1922, alien women who marry citizens do not automatically become citizens, as was the law previous to that date, but must themselves become naturalized before being permitted to register and vote.

The same law provides that a woman citizen retains her citizenship although she marries an alien. Under the old law marriage to an alien automatically forfeited her citizenship.

The supplemental registration in June, prior to the August primary, listed 259,789 voters in St. Louis. The total registration in September, 1920, prior to the general election that year, was 312,501, which included 125,883 women and 186,618 men, women constituting about 40 per cent of the total. Women registered for the first time in September, 1920.

Figures Show Decline.

The figures show a decline in the total of registered voters of 52,712 from the general election in 1920 to the primary last month. Election Board records show, however, the slump is not abnormal for the four-year period following a general election. In the like period following the 1916 general election the total registration fell from 173,760 to 135,366. The decline following the 1912 general election was from 155,000 to 119,000.

The goal of the "Get-Out-the-Vote" campaign, being conducted here, as part of a nation-wide campaign of the League of Women Voters, is a total registration in St. Louis of 376,000. It is estimated that total is 75 per cent of the elegible voters in the city.

Numerous stickers, posters, pamphlets and banners have been and are being circulated by the league. One of the posters, a reminder of individual responsibility in registration, contains a hand in the center with the index finger pointing directly toward the observer. Above the hand are the words, "You Must Register, Sept. 22-23-24-25," and before the hand the words, "To vote for our next President."

Another of the league's posters contains the following:

> Every eligible voter must register—no previous registration counts.
> If you want to vote for our next President.
> If you believe in majority rule.
> If you are not a parlor patriot.

The league has enlisted co-operation of hundreds of civic organizations and business institutions. Homes and business establishments wherein every eligible voter is registered will be furnished with a banner announcing that fact.

Devices to Arouse Interest.

"Registration collars," small bands calling attention to registration, will appear on milk bottles distributed by several local dairies, during each of the four days.

Approximately 1000 Boy Scouts are expected to parade through residence sections of the city Thursday, to advertise the fact it is the last registration day. The Scouts will be assigned to small groups in each ward.

Cards calling attention to registration will be placed in all books issued by public libraries during the four days.

The League will maintain an information bureau at its headquarters, 701 Century building. Registration information may be obtained by calling the League at Olive 5609, 5610, 3008 or 2998.

SEPT. 30 AND OCT. 1 AND 2 TO BE REGISTRATION DAYS FOR ST. LOUIS COUNTY

SEPT. 30 and Oct. 1 and 2 have been set as registration days in St. Louis County. As in St. Louis, all residents of the county must register in order to vote in November. Registration became effective in St. Louis County last spring, under a recently enacted law.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 20.—Pittsburg climbed to second place in the National League today by beating Brooklyn, 5 to 4, in eleven innings, before 20,000 fans. Pittsburg has won the first two in the series of three and gained on both leaders, as New York lost to Chicago. Vance allowed the Pirates nine singles and a scratch double by Traynor that evolved into a run. It was his fifth defeat of the year, and the first by a Western team. New York has beaten him three times and Boston once. He has won 27. He had won 15 straight until today, when he fanned eight Pirates, but lost. Cooper allowed 11 hits, all singles.

Speed on the bases won for the Pirates. Twice they scored a runner from first on a single. Traynor started the winning run in the eleventh inning by a single with two out. On the hit and run, Traynor got a great start. Maranville singled to short center. Brown, with his weak arm had to relay to High at second, and Traynor beat High's relay to the plate.

Carey walked in the fourth. Cuyler's hot blow over second was deflected by Mitchell's glove into right center and Carey scored on the single, Cuyler taking second on Brown's throw to the plate. Cuyler was caught on Wright's grounder to short. Traynor walked. Maranville's hot grounder went through Mitchell for an error, scoring Wright. Grimm's single scored Traynor with the third run in that inning. Traynor doubled in the sixth and scored on Maranville's single.

High singled for Brooklyn in the third. He scored on Mitchell's single. Wheat's fielder's choice and Cuyler's bad throw to the plate on Fournier's fly.

Singles by Deberry, Vance, High and Mitchell, and Carey's wild throw to the plate gave Brooklyn the last three runs in the fourth inning. Cooper allowed four scattered hits in the last seven innings.

Yeatman and East St. Louis High in First Game of Season

Bob Harris, who scored the first touchdown for East St. Louis in yesterday's opening contest of 1924, is shown running back Yeatman punt in the first quarter. Randall and Korkorian are about to tackle him.

Yeatman Loses To E. St. L. High On Muddy Field

Harris and Graney Star as East Side Team Wins, 12 to 0.

Playing on a field ill suited to football, heavy with sticky mud and with no 10-yard marks and spectators encroaching upon the play, East St. Louis High School football team defeated Yeatman, 12 to 0, at Cleveland High campus yesterday morning.

A hard smashing fullback, Graney, and a wiggly halfback who can step 100 yards in 10 seconds, Bob Harris, caused the undoing of Yeatman. Harris ran around the Yeatman left halfback and eluded the safety man in a 40-yard dash to a touchdown in the second quarter. Graney plunged through the line for a score in the third quarter. Both attempts at goal after touchdown failed, principally because the thick mud made accurate kicking impossible.

Harris Clever Back.

It was the first real struggle of the season for either team and both coaches made numerous substitutions in trying to discover the talents and ability of each man. Harris proved himself the best backfield man of the day. The East St. Louis line, composed of big fellows, held fast as a rule. "Tiny" Schuhardt, at right guard, weighs 202 pounds.

Yeatman, with but two regulars of last season on the squad, was not expected to win the match. The teams showed evidence of good coaching but the East Side team, richer in experience, retained possession of the ball through a greater portion of the game.

MISS COLLETT RETAINS CANADIAN GOLF TITLE; SETS COURSE RECORD

By the Associated Press.

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 20.—Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, R. I., successfully defended her Canadian woman's open golf championship title here today, defeating Miss Ada MacKenzie of Hamilton, former title-holder, 9 and 8. Miss MacKenzie conceded the twenty-eighth hole.

Miss Collett's game was superb throughout. Incidental to defending her laurels, she set a new championship course record for women in the morning round, shooting the first 18 holes in 76. Miss MacKenzie played in bad luck almost from the first tee, and repeatedly drove into the rough and became involved in bunkers. This afternoon her game had improved and she held the champion steadily from further extensive gains, but she could not retrieve her morning losses.

Pirates Gain in National League; No Change in A. L

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—There was no let up in the terrific tension and little relative change tonight in the positions of the major league pennant rivals after a hectic day of battling that included three extra inning games.

Pittsburg provided a hrill by downing Brooking in 11 innings for the second time in a row and taking second place from the Robins by the slender margin of two points. While Pirate prospects thus were improved, the Giants, despite a defeat at the hands of the Cubs in 12 innings, were able to retain their game and a half margin at the top. Although their percentage total is less than Pittsburg's, the Robins also are within a game and a half of the champions.

Both Washington and New York were defeated in the American League struggle and as a result the Senators cling to their margin of one game. Washington lost to St. Louis in ten innings, although the Senators ran their two days total of runs up to 29, while Detroit conquered the Yankees for the second straight time.

OWNERS OF PENNANT CHASERS MEET TODAY TO DISCUSS SERIES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Club owners of the three leading teams in each major league will meet here at noon tomorrow with Commissioner Landis to discuss arrangements for the 1924 world's series.

Because of the uncertainty of the outcome of both races, no definite plans can be made, but the commissioner called the meeting to provide for the various contingencies that may arise.

Present prospects are that the first game of the annual classic will be played Oct. 2, three days after the close of the season, but this would be impossible in event of a tie.

President Johnson of the American League has announced that in case a tie exists at the end of the regular schedule a three-game series will be played to determine the pennant winner. The same method will be used in the National League, if a play-off is required. President Heydler said today.

TULSA TEAM SCORES 29 RUNS AGAINST LINCOLN

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 20—One of the unusually high scores in this season of records in baseball. came here today, when the local Western League club scored 29 runs in defeating Lincoln in the second game of a double header. The Oilers made a total of 33 safeties. Lincoln had 10 runs and 13 hits, which made a total of 39 runs and 46 safeties for the two clubs.

DALLAS GOLFER WINS SOUTH-CENTRAL TITLE

By the Associated Press.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Sept. 20.—Al H Badger of Dallas, Tex., won the south Sentral amateur golf championship today by defeating Tom K. Martin of Hot Springs, Ark., state champion four and two in the 36-hole final round of the tournament played over the course of the Hot Springs Country Club.

Walter Hagen Wins National Professional Golf Title by Defeating Jim Barnes, 2 Up

British Open Champion, Four Up After 18 Holes, Has Narrow Escape, His Lead Being Cut to One Up at the Twenty-Ninth Hole.

FRENCH LICK Ind., Sept. 20.—Walter Hagen of New York, added another title to his list today by defeating James Barnes of New York two up in the 36 hole final for the National Professional Golf Championship over the championship course at French Lick.

Hagen, who has won virtually every open title in the world and now is possessor for the second time in three years of the British open crown, had a narrow escape today at the hands of the tall Englishman who although he was four down at the end of the morning round got his putter going for a dozen holes this afternoon and managed to cut Hagen's lead to two up at the twenty-seventh hole and had him one up at the twenty-ninth.

Hagen finally became dormie two, only to drop a short putt at the thirty-fifth hole, but Barnes threw away the final hole by pushing his irons, overapproaching and failing to get down a long putt for a par. Hagen shot one under par this morning while Barnes took 75, but this afternoon Hagen scored a pair of thirty-sevens, while Barnes got a 71. Outside of putting Barnes played Hagen at least even and the latter got so badly trapped on the twenty-fifth hole that he had to pick up.

Barnes Putts Poorly.

A large gallery followed the match through the entire 36 holes and at times saw machine-like golf. There were a number of occasions, however, when Barnes missed putts that the ordinary dub could hole handily. In addition to his mediocre putting most of the way, Barnes had two stymies to negotiate.

There was some discussion during the match about lifting. The officials of the tournament yesterday ruled on account of rain that when a ball was interfered with by a hole made in the green where some other ball had dropped, the ball might be lifted and placed where it would escape the penalty. Barnes asked that this be done with his final putt yesterday when he defeated Larry Nabholtz and some of the spectators and golf critics made a great commotion. Today on the sixth green, Hagen asked permission to move his ball when he had a similar lie and Barnes consented. On the eleventh green, however, when Barnes desired to replace his ball Hagen objected on the ground that the depression was merely the result of a worm cast.

Hagen has played steadily throughout the tournament, qualifying in a tie for second place in 141 strokes and winning all his matches by a handy margin. His closest preceding contest was with John Farrell of New York, who carried the British champion to the thirty-fourth green, after he

California Polo Team Wins, 14-11

Eric Pedley Scores 8 Goals—Wanderers Also Qualify for Semifinals.

WESTBURY, N. Y., Sept. 20.—The Midwick Club, of California national polo junior champions, won a spectacular game today from the Hurricanes lead by Louis Lacey and qualified for the semifinals of the Amelcan open championship. The score was 14 to 11.

Eric Pedley, substitute on the American international team, was the individual star, scoring eight goals. A furious rally in the seventh chukker, in which the Midwicks scored three times gave them their victorious margin.

In the second match of the afternoon, Tommy Hitchcock's Wanderers defeated Devereaux Milburn's Freebooters 5 to 3, and also qualified for the semi-finals.

The lineup and score:

Richards Wins From Norton

Olympic Tennis Champion Defeats St. Louis Star in Straight Sets, 6-4, 6-3, 6-0.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Vincent Richards, Olympic champion, who faces William T. Tilden, national champion, on the Skokie Courts tomorrow, opened the two-day exhibition program this afternoon by backhanding the ball where B. I. C. Norton wasn't, winning three straight sets, 6-4, 6-3, 6-0. Norton, who now resides in St. Louis, was national doubles champion with Tilden a year ago.

In the other portion of the triangular bill, George Lott Jr. sledgehammered the ball to two victories over Frederick Kalms, Australian Davis Cup player. In the singles, Lott was victorious by a 7-5, 6-2 score. Paired with Alex Squair, veteran Chicago star, Lott defeated Kalms and Wray Brown of St. Louis, the latter being the holder of the Missouri Valley Championship, by a 6-4, 6-3 count.

Kalms is the third Davis Cup player who has met defeat at the hands of the young Chicago champion this year.

Richards marked up his victory with his backhand cuts and chops. His service was weaker than usual, and he did not open up with his forehand—at least he lost more points than he gained with it.

FLEISHER YARNS WIN FROM PHILADELPHIA

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 20.—Fleisher Yarns defeated the Philadelphia Field Club 2 to 1 in their American League Soccer game at Cahill Field this afternoon. A crowd of 1500 saw the game.

The first goal was scored by the Phillies when Cullen took a pass from Robertson on the 12-yard line and shot past Kucklick, about 20 minutes after the start of play.

Stradan made Fleishers' first goal on a pass from Hornberger. He faked a kick at the right, then booted into the opposite side of the net five minutes before the half ended.

The Fleisher team won out in the last half when Purvis took a pass from McGhee, twenty-one minutes after the start of the half, and booted it past Chapman.

Two-Base Wild Throw By Marberry in Tenth Decides Hectic Contest

Washington Makes Six Errors—Walter Johnson Batted Out in One Inning—Nine Pitchers Used by Two Teams.

By Herman Wecke,

Fred "Firpo" Marberry, a right-hander, serving his first season in the big tent with the Washington club, gained a place in baseball history along with Fred Merkle and other perpetrators of famous "bones" in yesterday's game betwen the Browns and Nationals. The Browns won, 15 to 14, in 10 innings only because of "Firpo's" bone, which probably will be remembered just as long as Merkle's failure to touch second.

When Marberry pulled his play, which will go down in the books, the Senators were leading in a contest, which, if won, would have put them two games ahead of the Yankees and with but eight more games to play that would have been a hard margin for the present world's champions to overcome. But Marberry overlooked a bet and as a result the Nationals today are still the sole possessors of first place, but by a margin of only one game. For that one game lead the Senators can thank the Tigers who won their second straight from the Yankees.

Marberry had a perfect setting to become a hero in that tenth inning yesterday. But instead of being a hero today, he is the man who perpetrated the season's best "skull." It all came about after "Goose" Goslin had put the Nationals in front with his second home run of the game.

Poor Mr. Marberry.

For the Browns, Sisler and McManus singled and moved up a base on Rice's error. Then Jacobson was purposely passed. Bennett went up for Gerber. The pinch-hitter sent an easy roller to Marberry. A toss to Ruel and the pitcher had an easy double play, a victory for himself and his club and a two-game lead for Harris' men.

But that is just what Marberry did not do. He wheeled and fired the ball in the direction of second base. No one was looking for a throw at the pivot station, so the ball rolled unmolested out to Rice in center. Sisler and McManus crossed the plate and a victory for the Nationals had been turned into a defeat.

The Nationals have not played as pennant contenders in the games here. Harris' supposed great pitching staff has been found for a total of 24 runs, while the defense of the club has cracked to the extent of 10 errors, six of the boots being charged in yesterday's alleged exhibition of the national pastime.

Those Brownies, ever bent on shattering winning streaks, made life miserable in the first inning, for Walter Johnson, adjudged the most valuable player in the American League for 1924, and owner of 12 successive triumphs. In fact, they made it so miserable that when it came to Johnson's turn to bat in the second, a pinch hitter was sent up for him.

How Johnson Was Treated.

The trouble for the "fire ball king" started with one out, and it occurred as follows:

Robertson walked and Sisler pounded a single to left. A wild pitch moved the runners up. Ruel went to the stand for Williams' foul and then McManus singled, scoring Robertson and Sisler. Jacobson hit between Bluege and Peck and then Gerber singled, McManus scoring. When Goslin let the ball get away, Jacobson counted with the fourth run of the round. Rego ended it with a roller to Pekinpaugh.

Harris' men did not quit. They came back strong against Shocker in the second.

Goslin smashed one into the right-field sun seats, Judge singled and Bluege's fly fell for a safety in short left. Then Peck crashed one between Williams and Jacobson for two bases, and Judge and Bluege scored. Ruel sacrificed, but Leffler, hitting for Johnson, rolled weakly to McManus, and Peck held third. McNeely drove Williams to the fence for his long drive, and the Nationals were but one run behind.

Joe Martina was Harris' pitcher in the second. He walked Shocker and Tobin singled. Attempting to sacrifice, Robertson forced Shocker. Sisler popped out, but Williams pounded one into the right field bleachers for his eighteenth homer of the year and Tobin and Robertson walked in ahead of him.

Shocker pulled up lame going into third, and when the Browns again took the field, Dave Danforth was on the hill for Sisler.

Danforth Pounded.

The Nationals' third turned into a hectic affair after two batters had been retired by Danforth. Goslin doubled, Judge walked and Bluege was hit to fill the bases. Peck with a 3—2 call, doubled, three runs coming across.

From the press box it looked as if Judge had passed Goslin between third and home and the Browns protested, but Umpire Owens and Ormsby would not allow the claim. When play was resumed, Ruel popped a single over short and Peck got home with the tying run.

More atrocious flinging from the supposed great pitching staff of the Nationals in the third: Zahniser walked Jacobson and Gerber for a starter. Rego rolled out, but Harry Rice, batting for Danforth, singled, scoring Jacobson. Judge made a sensational play when he took Tobin's bounder and tossed Gerber out at the plate. Robertson's triple scored Rice and Tobin and sent Zahniser on his way, Russell going in.

Sisler was safe when Russell failed to touch first after taking Judge's throw and Robertson registered the fourth run of the frame.

Two more for the Nats off Wingard in the fourth. One out, Harris singled and Rice doubled. Goslin rolled out and Harris scored. Judge's ace put Rice across.

Count Knotted in Seventh.

The Senators knotted the score against Wingard in the seventh. Judge and Bluege walked and

CLARKE CORKRAN, WITH 67, LEADS AMATEUR GOLFERS AFTER 18 HOLE

Eddie Held Shoots 75 And Is Among Leaders; Another Round Tomorrow

Thirty-Two Low Scores in 36-Hole Qualifying Round of National Title Tournament Will Start Match Play on Tuesday—Bobby Jones Second With Score of 72.

By the Associated Press.

ARDMORE, PA., Sept. 20.—Brilliant golf, including a record-breaking 67 by D. Clarke Corkran of Philadelphia, featured the first 18 holes of play today in the qualifying round for the national amateur championship at the Merion Cricket Club.

Out in 36, equal to par, and home in 31, three under par. Corkran led an international field in which most of the 10 stars of Great Britain's Walker Cup team fared poorly. He had an excellent chance to win the qualifying medal which will be decided when the field has played 18 more holes Monday.

Bobby Jones of Atlanta, competing at the club where he made a sensational debut in national golf eight years ago, seemed to have the lead without dispute with a 72, until Corkran turned in his surprising card. Bobby dropped to second place. Next came another prodigy, Roland R. McKenzie, 17-year-old high school student of Washington, D. C., with a 73, which was equaled by T. A. Torrance of the British Walker Cup team, the only visiting Briton to be in the low seventies; F. J. Wright Jr. of Boston, formerly of Los Angeles, and Dexter Cummings of Chicago, intercollegiate champion.

If the excellent conditions of today continue on Monday competitors must get well under 80 in order to be certain of being among the 32 who will continue in the tournament, starting match play on Tuesday. There were 49 scores of better than 80 after today's play, with 14 at 79.

The score of the 35 leaders, including six ties at 78, were:

Sweetser Takes 79.

Out in the danger zone with 79, ordinarily enough to qualify if supplemented with another round equally as good, are, among others, Jess Sweetser of New York, former amateur champion, and Cyril Tolley, captain of the British Walker Cup team. Eight other British Walker Cup players seem to have slim chances to qualify.

The champion of Panama, Edmund L. Koperski, took a 94 and is out of it. Three Canadians, including the dominion's champion, Frank Thompson, of Toronto, must have exceptional rounds on Monday in order to remain in the tournament.

Corkran, a semi-finalist at Merion in 1916 and a former resident of Baltimore, smashed the record for the new Merion course of 6815 yards, which hitherto had been par 70. He made six birdies and was over perfect figures but three times. He took 28 putts for the round and made six birdies. A bad lie caused him to go over par once, three putts were responsible at another hole and a hook to a trap was the cause on the third occasion.

At other times he was long and straight from the tee and accurate with irons and putts. Never has his 67 been equalled in national amateur golf.

Bobby Jones Second.

Bobby Jones was out in 35, one under par, but slipped a bit coming home. He scored 3 birdies. On the 523-yard second hole, his second with a spoon, carried him to the edge of the green and he was down in four, missing an eagle by less than an inch.

His worst hole was the eleventh, where he got a six after driving to rough in green clover. His second was foozled and it took him four to reach the green.

He had three one-putt greens and never exceeded two.

McKenzie hung up the best score of the day for the outgoing nine, his 38 being 2 under par. He had 2 birdies, used 31 putts and was over par on five holes in the round, once as the result of 3 putts and on the other occasion because of visits to traps.

Cyril Tolley Shoots 79.

Cyril Tolley, the mighty hitting captain of the British Walker Cup team, was wild with his tee shots. His 42 for the first nine holes, six over par, seemed to put him out of it entirely, until he took a brace in putting and holed several long ones that enabled him to do the last nine in 37, two over par, and just break 80 for the round. Dexter Cummings, out in 38, heard of the speed of the field, and managed to finish in 35, one over par.

Francis Ouimet played steady golf, and if long putts had dropped for him, he might have broken 70. He was straight from the tee, usually on the green in 2, and had putts on 14 greens for birdies. As it was, he took five over par for a 75.

Jesse Guilford of Boston needed to play the last four holes in even fours to get a 70, but slipped a bit from what otherwise was almost a flawless round, and took 74.

Evans Takes 8 on No. 11.

An eight by Chick Evans on the 378-yard eleventh hole which has a narrow fairway and a plateau green guarded by water cost him his chances of breaking 75 and he took 78. It was this same hole that prevented Bobby Jones from equalling par. Chick drove into a trap and put two shots into the water, suffering two penalty strokes.

George Von Elm of Los Angeles did well to get a 75, having cut his right hand with a safety razor a few days ago.

W. I. Hunter of Los Angeles, former British amateur champion, had his good 74 by his usual steady golf. Tony Torrance, of the British Walker Cup team with his 73 was six strokes better than any other visiting Briton.

Fred Wright, who returned to Boston to live after a few years of golf at Los Angeles, was out in 35, the same as Bobby Jones, but slipped to a 38 coming home. Out of 166 entries, the largest on record, there were 154 starters.

Held Leads St. Louis Contingent With 75; Watts, 78, Is Second

ARDMORE, Pa., Sept. 20.

EDDIE HELD of Algonquin led the contingent of golfers from St. Louis, with a score of 75, going out in 39 and coming back in 36. Lawson Watts of the St. Louis Country Club was the only other Mound City golfer who broke 80. Watts was out in 40 and came back in 38, for a total for 78. Jimmy Manion of Midland Valley was next, with 40-41—81; Bill Medart of Sunset shot 45 and 39, for an 84, an Donald Anderson of Normandie had 45-41—86.

Municipal Title Series Opens at Fairground Today

Curlees Oppose Freight Accounts With Fehringer Pitching Against Diel.

The first contest of the final series of three games to determine the champion team of the Municipal Baseball League will be played this afternoon at Fairground Park when the Curlees and the Freight Accounts meet in the second game of a double-header. The preliminary brings together the Igoe and the Heitz teams in the final of the intermediate class.

Because they are the present title holders and also because they have an unusually effective pitcher in Fehringer, the Freight Accounts are considered the favorites to win today's game. Fehringer last Sunday scored a brilliant victory in defeating the Shell team, which was looked upon as a likely winner of the title.

The Curlees will probably use their star pitcher, Leo Diel, with Schick in reserve.

The first game will start at 1 o'clock and the championship affair is scheduled to start at 3 p. m. with Bill Foley umpiring behind the plate and Tate Brady on the base. The same teams will complete their series next Sunday.

The contenders in the final game will bat as follows:

BROWNS BEAT SENATORS IN HECTIC CONTEST

Peck sacrificed. Ruel was at the plate as the Detroit victory over the Yankees was posted on the score board. He immediately singled through the drawn-in infield and Judge and Bluege scored with the tying runs.

The tie did not last long as in the Browns' half, Rego singled, Tobin tripled and Robertson singled for two markers.

In the Senators' ninth, Bluege singled and Peck doubled. Ruel went out, Bluege scoring. Shirley went up for Russell and was safe on Gerber's fumble, Peck scoring with the tying run.

The third and final game of the series will be played today.

CARDS SIGN ANOTHER SEMIPRO HILL STAR

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

STREATOR, Ill., Sept. 20.—Pitcher Jerry Prendergast of the Athletics here, has been signed by the St. Louis Cardinals and will report to the major club next spring. A scout recommended the youngster to President Branch Rickey and he agreed to give him a trial.

He is a brother of Michael Prendergast, formerly with the Chicago Cubs and who made his professional debut with Bloomington of the Three-Eye League.

WALTER HAGEN WINS PRO TITLE, DEFEATING JIM BARNES, 2 UP

had defeated Tom Harmon six and five and Al Watrous four and three. Hagen had his easiest match yesterday with Ray Derr of Philadelphia, whom he eliminated eight and seven.

Barnes Had Hard Matches.

Barnes has fought an uphill battle from the start, and that has been his fate ever since he came to America. He played in championships several years before he was able to win the national open three years ago and in this tournament after qualifying with 148, seven strokes higher than Hagen, his very first match was with Mike Brady of New York, who was runner up a few years ago in the national open. Brady carried Barnes to the thirty-ninth hole. He not only shot a sixty-nine in one round against Bray, but he notched a sixty-nine yesterday in defeating Eddie Towne. Barnes shot even par in the third round to defeat Emmett French, six and four, and yesterday had the second toughest match with Larry Nabholtz of Lima, O., who carried the former open champion to the home hole and allowed him to win by one up. Sarazen, who had held the national professional title for the last two years, although he qualified with 142, was put out by Nabholtz in the second round, two and one.

Shawkey's Wild Pitch in Ninth Defeats Yankees

Misplays Lets Manush Score From Third With the Winning Run.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 20.—Shawkey's wild pitch in the ninth inning let Manush home from third with the winning run, in Detroit's 6-5 victory over New York, today.

The game was a wild affair all the way, each team using 15 players. Four Tigers hurlers were sent to the front, while Huggins used three and also shifted six players' positions in the last frame.

Pipp's two errors in the eighth frame helped Detroit to two runs. In the last inning Meusel hit a homer, with none out.

Ty Cobb realized one of his two ambitions of the season when he hit out his 200th safe smash. It was a double and came in the fifth inning.

Langford Tells of Getting Some Instructions in Boxing And of His Beating Joe Gans

The "Boston Tar Baby" Got Under the Management of Joe Woodman After He Took Job as Porter at Latter's Club.

In the second article in Sam Langford's story of his life, as told to a representative of the Post-Dispatch, the "Boston Tar Baby," now out of the running because of blindness, relates how he got his first instructions in boxing and describes his victory over Joe Gans.

(Copyright, 1924.)

After I lost my job in Mike Foley's saloon in Boston, I began looking for another. But I just couldn't find any.

One morning I woke up in a park and I picked up a newspaper and read about there having been a fight up at the club which was run by a fellow named Joe Woodman. So I walked up here, with my little yellow dog, and I rapped on the door of the place. A fellow poked his head out and said: "What do you want?" and I said: "I want a job."

Well, this fellow, who was "Dowzer" Dowling, the janitor, said: "You stick around, and I'll let you know."

The place sure had been dirtied up by the crowd and "Dowzer" did want some help. So he got hold of the boss there came Joe Woodman. He said, "I'll take a chance; you can get busy."

A Job With Joe Woodman.

Along about 5 in the afternoon I had the place all shined up and Joe came back and I heard "Dowzer" say to him: "That boy is a good worker. We ought to keep him."

So Joe asked me: 'Where do you live?" and I said "nowheres in particular, but mostly in parks." Joe wanted to know if I'd like to be porter at the club and I said "yes sir, yes indeed, thank you." And then Joe said, "It might not be a bad idea to have you stick around here nights so you could be a sort of watchman."

I was working for Joe for a couple of weeks when a night came when one of the boys didn't show up for a fight. So I went to Joe and said: 'Mister Woodman, let me box that other boy tonight, I will be glad to oblige."

Joe said: "You can't box—not against tough boys like these. You've got to learn how to fight first. If you want to learn I'll get you an amateur's license and you can box over at the Roanoke A. C.

Joe got me the card. I went to the Roanoke A. C. the next Wednesday night and whipped a couple of boys. I thought it was all for fun, but just as I was about to leave, one of the officials gave me a lovely watch, telling me I won it.

Won Two Watches.

The next Wednesday I whipped two more boys. They gave me another watch. I was just becoming loaded up with watches, so I sold the first for $17.50 and the second for $20. The next day Joe heard about it—my whipping those boys, not about selling the watches.

"Maybe you can fight a little after all," he said. "Anyway I'll give you a chance next week at my club. You box Johnny McVickers for a $40 purse. The winner gets $25 and the loser $15."

Well, I won from Johnny and the next day Joe gave me $25.

In April, 1902, there was an accident at Woodman's club. A boy died after one of the bouts and the place was closed. So I lost my portering job. Just then I heard they needed men up in a New Hampshire lumber camp and I skipped right up there and got it. I worked there through the summer. In November it got cold so I quit my job and went back to Boston and hunted up Joe in a drug store he was running.

"Where you been?" asked Joe. I told him.

"Well, the next time you decide to take a run out you let me know where you're bound for," said Joe. "I think you have the makings of a good fighter and if you stick around here and don't go running your fool head off by going into the woods, maybe I can get you some fights and make you some money."

"That suits me, yes indeed," I told Joe "Are you going to manage me?" "Yes," said Joe, "I was thinking I might. Somebody's got to stop you from running into the woods whenever you get spring fever."

Ordered to "Knock 'Em Dead."

That's how Joe and I hooked up in a managerial arrangement that lasted for nearly a generation.

Joe had the idea that in my first fight with the McVickers boy I hadn't whipped him good enough. So he sent me against McVickers again. I beat him worse that time. Then I met and whipped Willie McDonald on decision in three rounds.

"This business of just winning decisions is punk stuff," said Joe. "Stop being so nice with the other boys. Knock 'em dead—that's the thing. Now I'll get you McVickers again and this time you go out and knock him out or I'll paddle you."

I knocked out McVickers in six rounds.

"Now you're doing something," said Joe. "Just keep right on doing it. Knock 'em out—that's the thing. And remember that the quicker you do it the less work you have to do. Never work any harder or longer than you have to. That's the idea."

Joe was a mighty nice boss and I surely did want to oblige him by busting everybody to sleep right quick. But I just couldn't do it. Couldn't seem to hit just right—or something.

Sam Learned the Trick of Slipping Punches and Had 26 Fights in Year

Just about then I met a fellow named George Byers, who had been fooling around the fight game for years. I guess I wasn't looking like a lovely spring morning when George met me and he said:

"Little boy, why is you so sad?"

So I said to him that Joe wanted me to knock out the other boys, and that I wanted to do it, but I just couldn't smack 'em right.

"Yes, indeed—you ain't smackin' 'em right," said George. "You ain't settin' when you hit. I been watching you and I know. Now you meet me tomorrow night at the gymnasium and I'll give you a few lessons."

George, who was one of the finest negroes that ever lived, worked along with me for weeks. He showed me how to trick the other fellow into position where I could hit him. He showed me how to "set" in the twinkling of an eye and how to put all my force into blows. He showed me how to hit short punches and all the while he was teaching me a lot about boxing.

George showed me tricks that I could use to save myself from getting hit.

In 1903, when I was 17, and when Byers had just "graduated" me as a pupil, Joe Woodman said:

"Now you get to work and do your stuff."

26 Fights in a Year.

In that year I fought 26 battles. I fought for any kind of money Joe could get, $5, $10, $25, $50 and once or twice for $100. Every time I fought for $100, I felt pretty sure that the promoter either was crazy or that he wouldn't give Joe the money when it was over. But Joe always collected.

During the early part of the year, before I could get the tricks working that George taught me, I didn't do so good in knocking boys dizzy. I'd win my fights all right against most of them, but I just couldn't quite smack them hard enough to put them to sleep.

But after a while things got going better and I could hook with the left like George showed me. Then I began shortening the evening's entertainment for the customers. Eight boys that I hit went down.

In 1903 I met Joe Gans—and won the decision in 12 rounds. Many years have gone since then, but I've never seen a greater fighter than Joe. I think of him as the greatest battler of his weight and inches that ever lived.

Joe wasn't so good then as he was in the later years, when he really developed. But even then he was wonderful. He was so fast that you'd have to leap around to get near him when you were after him—and you'd almost have to leap over the ropes and out of the building to get out of his way when he was after you.

Gans could hit. He had power in his blows and perfect marksmanship. And he was clever. There never was a man more so. His brain was working all the time, his generalship was great and he could stand up under punishment, when he had to, with all the ability of Battling Nelson, Frank Moran, Joe Grimm and the other "iron men."

Gans was the coolest, calmest fighter I ever saw. No matter what was happening to him, he never lost his temper, never changed the expression of his face. Many fighters, when hurt, show it in their faces. Joe never did. Many fighters, when ready to hit, tighten their lips, half close their eyes, or give a tip-off in some way as to what's going to happen. Joe never did.

A wonder of wonders—that was Joe Gans.

Many often have wondered how it was that I, just a beginner, whipped the experienced and wonderful Joe that night. Here is the real story.

Gans thought he had something "soft" in tackling me. So, on his way up from Baltimore, the night before the fight, he played poker all night and climbed into the ring without havin had any real sleep.

Danny Duane, the Ghost.

I lost one fight of the 26 in 1903. Danny Duane whipped me. That's one little mixup I don't remember much about. For that boy wasn't a human being. He was just a spook and when you have anything to do with spooks, you don't remember much about it.

Danny came to town and we were matched up, but he said he wouldn't fight unless there was a side bet of $500. Joe seen that boy at work, $500 on me—and that he ever saw of it.

I saw Danny when through the ropes, a looking boy, and I thou too bad I've got to mus face. Well, the bell Danny come skipping that's the last I ever saw

He was so fast that I follow him, and I couldn —all I could do was fe ting me. I don't know times that boy hit me, that twelfth round counted up to 1,000,000.

LADKIN

Epinard's Rival Steps Mile and Eighth in 1:49.3

Belmont's Son of Fair Play Gallops Away From a Fine Field.

SPOT CASH IS SECOND

Takes Lead of Five Lengths at Start and Is Never Approached.

By G. F. T. Ryall.

Of the New York World Sport Staff

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Horses for courses! Aqueduct is Ladkin's track. Running as amazingly brilliant a race today as he did in the Dwyer Stakes, last July, Ladkin won the Edgemere Handicap from about the best field of older horses, barring the First International Special, that has gone to the post in two months.

It wasn't a race—it was just a gallop for the big son of Fair Play. Taking the track at the break, he opened up five lengths in the first furlong and that was as close as the eight other runners ever got to him. Spot Cash was second and King Solomon's Seal was third. Cherry Pie, the favorite, practically was left at the post.

Epinard's Owner Present.

Pierre Wertheimer, owner of Epinard, watched the race from the grandstand and he was loud in his praises of the winner, but what he thought the coming meeting of his horse and Ladkin a week hence he did not express. Ladkin was third in the First Special and was running on at the end that day.

Today he broke with the track and stepped the first quarter in 0:23 1-5, the half in 0:46 4-5; six furlongs in 1:10 4-5, and the mile in 1:36. He was eased up at the end, the time for the mile and a furlong being 1:49 3-5.

Spot Cash ran a bang-up race to be second, racing first Rialto then Catalan into submission and standing off the closing rush of King Solomon's Seal.

The Greentree entry and Ladkin were about equal favorites. It was interesting that all three Greentree horses were trained by different men, Rialto by Clyde Phillips, Cherry Pie by Vincent Powers and Barbary Bush by Jimmy Rowe.

The Rancocas stable won a heat with Finn Lag, in six furlongs event, third on the card, beating Carlton, Nautical and some others not so good.

Fraternity beat Rockpocket, Maryland Belle and Bargold in the mile and five-sixteenths event, fifth on the card.

Balance Sheet Pays 12 to 1.

Balance Sheet, from the stable of G. D. Widener, started the favorites playing in the big crowd off on the wrong foot in the five furlongs event for 2-year-old fillies. She broke on top and stood a hard drive in the last furlong to beat Myrtle Belle, which broke slowly, but which moved up fast on the rail in the last quarter. Frank Hitchcock's Mixture, which forced all the pace, tired at the end, but was third. Those who followed Jack Joyner were made glad for Balance Sheet was 12 to 1.

Sam Louis won the jumping race with Boatman, a subscription jumper, which he claimed earlier in the season. Boatman had more rigging than a ship of the line. He took the track and at one time was more than 30 lengths in front. He tired a bit at the end, and Pirate Gold closed fast to be second with Ruine third.

GO-FOIN, AT ODDS-ON, VICTOR IN FEATURE HANDICAP AT AURORA

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Favored by the heavy going, the 3-year old colt Go Foin, owned by the Jones Stock Farm Stable, well-rated by Jockey C. Gross, won the featured Edgewater Beach Handicap at five and a half furlongs here, this afternoon, with Alleden second and Doc Horn third.

The biggest crowd of the meeting, 12,000 witnessed the sprint which had its thrills despite the sloppy condition of the track.

Go Foin was first to leave the barrier, with Kerry Girl and Alleden starting out in close pursuit. Doc Horn appeared unprepared and was as good as left; but with a great burst of speed, he caught up to the field at the three-quarter pole. Meantime, Kerry Girl was relegated to the rear, with Go Foin rated along nicely in front. Alleden was forced wide on the turns, but once straightened out in the stretch, challenged Go Foin and made a desperate attempt to overtake the leader, only to hang right at the end. Go Foin was a 3 to 5 favorite.

MISSOURI ALUMNI IN WINDY CITY ORGANIZE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Missourians of Chicago will meet at the Hotel Sherman at a dinner and reception, Oct. 3, to organize rooters for the Missouri-Chicago University football game here, Oct. 4.

This match will open the season in Chicago. The Missouri Alumni association and the Missouri society of Chicago are co-operating in giving the dinner.

Gov. Hyde, Congressman H. B. Hawes, and other distinguished Missourians are expected to accompany the "show me" team to Chicago.

Alexander Beats Giants, 7 to 3; Frisch Injured

New York Infield Crippled for Pittsburg Series, Which Starts Monday.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.— Cubs, with Grover Alexand pitching one of the best games his career, beat the Giants in on of the crucial games of the 192 season this afternoon in 12 ho innings by a score of 7 to 3. The Giants scored their two last runs the tying one, in the ninth, on errors by Grantham. The Giants used five pitchers, and Maun, the fourth selection, blew in the twelfth, allowing four clean hi and a sacrifice for four runs.

A bigger blow than the loss of the game, which now puts the Giants even with the Pirates, wh won in Brooklyn, in the matter of games lost, was the breaking of finger by Frisch in the eleventh inning. He was hurt sliding to the plate, and the third finger of hi throwing hand was driven back into the knuckle. It was stated in the Giant dressing rooms that he will not be able to play again for a week, which means the season.

With Groh also out, the New York infield is shot to pieces for the important Pittsburg series which begins on Monday. Though the Giants hit Alexander for 15 hits he would have had but little trouble but for the lapses in his support. The Cubs made five errors behind him, and their general pl was sloppy. More than 20,000 sa the game.

I saw Danny when he climbed through the ropes, a nice, lovely looking boy, and I thought, ain't it too bad I've got to muss up his nice face. Well, the bell rang. I saw Danny come skipping at me—and that's the last I ever saw of him.

I never saw Danny afterward. He never fought again. His pal fought a boy in New York and that boy died after the fight. So Danny and his chum quit the game. So there passed the fastest man I ever met in all my fighting lifetime.

LADKIN SETS BURNING PACE AND WINS EDGEMERE HANDICAP

Epinard's Rival Steps Mile and Eighth in 1:49.3

Belmont's Son of Fair Play Gallops Away From a Fine Field.

SPOT CASH IS SECOND

Takes Lead of Five Lengths at Start and Is Never Approached.

By G. F. T. Ryall.
Of the New York World Sport Staff

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Horses for courses! Aqueduct is Ladkin's track. Running as amazingly brilliant a race today as he did in the Dwyer Stakes, last July, Ladkin won the Edgemere Handicap from about the best field of older horses, barring the First International Special, that has gone to the post in two months.

It wasn't a race—it was just a gallop for the big son of Fair Play. Taking the track at the break, he opened up five lengths in the first furlong and that was as close as the eight other runners ever got to him. Spot Cash was second and King Solomon's Seal was third. Cherry Pie, the favorite, practically was left at the post.

Epinard's Owner Present.

Pierre Wertheimer, owner of Epinard, watched the race from the grandstand and he was loud in his praises of the winner, but what he thought the coming meeting of his horse and Ladkin a week hence he did not express. Ladkin was third in the First Special and was running on at the end that day.

Today he broke with the track and stepped the first quarter in 0:23 1-5, the half in 0:46 4-5; six furlongs in 1:10 4-5, and the mile in 1:36. He was eased up at the end, the time for the mile and a furlong being 1:49 3-5.

Spot Cash ran a bang-up race to be second, racing first Rialto then Catalan into submission and standing off the closing rush of King Solomon's Seal.

The Greentree entry and Ladkin were about equal favorites. It was interesting that all three Greentree horses were trained by different men, Rialto by Clyde Phillips, Cherry Pie by Vincent Powers and Barbary Bush by Jimmy Rowe.

The Rancocas stable won a heat with Finn Lag, in six furlongs event, third on the card, beating Carlton, Nautical and some others not so good.

Fraternity beat Rockpocket, Maryland Belle and Bargold in the mile and five-sixteenths event, fifth on the card.

Balance Sheet Pays 12 to 1.

Balance Sheet, from the stable of G. D. Widener, started the favorites playing in the big crowd off on the wrong foot in the five furlongs event for 2-year-old fillies. She broke on top and stood a hard drive in the last furlong to beat Myrtle Belle, which broke slowly, but which moved up fast on the fall in the last quarter. Frank Hitchcock's Mixture, which forced all the pace, tired at the end, but was third. Those who followed Jack Joyner were made glad for Balance Sheet was 12 to 1.

Sam Louis won the jumping race with Boatman, a subscription jumper, which he claimed earlier in the season. Boatman had more rigging than a ship of the line. He took the track and at one time was more than 30 lengths in front. He tired a bit at the end, and Pirate Gold closed fast to be second with Ruine third.

GO-FOIN, AT ODDS-ON, VICTOR IN FEATURE HANDICAP AT AURORA

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Favored by the heavy going, the 3-year old colt Go Foin, owned by the Jones Stock Farm Stable, well-rated by Jockey C. Gross, won the featured Edgewater Beach Handicap at five and a half furlongs here this afternoon, with Alleden second and Doc Horn third.

The biggest crowd of the meeting, 12,000 witnessed the sprint which had its thrills despite the sloppy condition of the track.

Go Foin was first to leave the barrier, with Kerry Girl and Alleden starting out in close pursuit. Doc Horn appeared unprepared and was as good as left; but with a great burst of speed, he caught up to the field at the three-quarter pole. Meantime, Kerry Girl was relegated to the rear, with Go Foin rated along nicely in front. Alleden was forced wide on the turns, but once straightened out in the stretch, challenged Go Foin and made a desperate attempt to overtake the leader, only to hang right at the end. Go Foin was a 3 to 5 favorite.

Coach Tad Jones of Yale Reviews Football Prospects in the East

Yale Weakened by Loss of 22 Men Through Graduation — Harvard Expected to Have Stronger Team Than Last Year—Princeton Has More Lettermen Than Its Rivals.

This is the first of a series of articles by Tad Jones, coach of Yale's undefeated football team. An article by Coach Jones will appear every Saturday in the Post-Dispatch during the football season. Weekly articles by Knute Rockne, Notre Dame coach, will be printed on Thursdays and by Glenn Warner of Stanford University on Tuesdays.

By Tad Jones,
Coach of Yale's Undefeated Champions.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 20.—Every football season, about this time, the popular question put to the coaches is: "What about the rule changes?"

As far as the spectator is concerned, the difference between the 1924 code and that of last year, will consist merely in the elimination of the mud "tees" on which the ball used to be balanced before kick-offs. The "tee" is ruled out this year. The spectators will be sure to notice that. But the ordinary observer will not detect any other changes in the play.

More interesting, no doubt, to the average football fan, is a preliminary survey or size-up of the teams of the East.

Here at Yale we are bound to feel keenly the loss of so many veterans that graduation has taken from the squad. Twenty-two in all, and among them the players who made football history last year, are gone. This is no "bear" story. The loss of such players as Capt. Bill Mallory, Lyle Richeson, "Whitey" Neale, Newell Neidlinger, Charlie O'Hearn, Marvin Stevens, to say nothing of linemen galore, cannot be laughed off.

Yale Needs Quarterback.

From the present outlook, Yale is in need of a quarterback, and must develop some tackles, too, though there is a certain likely tackle from last year's freshman squad, and a pair of good backs from the same source. Yale may be forced to take a guard from last year's frosh, too.

From what I learn, Harvard is facing brighter prospects than last year. A formidable back-field is Fisher's this year, and whatever problems he has to work out, will be limited to the line.

Princeton has more letter men back than either Yale or Harvard. But Roper figures on a lot of shifting about of his veterans, from positions of last season, and no one can say definitely what the outcome will be.

Cornell Must Build Anew.

Cornell's outlook is a good bit like Yale's. Graduation has swept away the great Pfann, and Sundstrom is gone, as well.

Dartmouth will have to be reckoned with this season. The team loses few good men, and Hawley in his second year is going to begin to get results. It would be no surprise to me if Dartmouth has the best team in years. We are prepared for a grim struggle when they come to the Bowl, Oct. 18.

I feel that Columbia will flash a much improved team this year. Haughton built on a firm foundation last fall, and ought to show something this season. Dartmouth and Columbia may well be the teams to upset a lot of the dope.

Army is going to have a terrific punch. Make no mistake about that. The West Pointers have acquired the wonderful Wilson of Penn State, to add to "Tiny" Hewitt, and the others. Army will be up and doing all the time.

Navy can be dismissed in a few words. Navy always had a good team. This year is not to be an exception.

Lou Young did a fine job at Pennsylvania last year, and I have an idea he is going to be heard from this season. There is a lot of football in store for the Penn lads this year, for they have an inter-sectional game scheduled at Berkeley, Cal., with the University of California team on New Year's day. Unless the Tournament of Roses Committee at Pasadena, Cal., decides to hold another one of its annual games on that holiday, no other two teams in the country will stretch their season as long as California and Penn.

Colgate Has Great Star.

Colgate is very apt to raise havoc with a lot of coaches' hopes. In Tryon this team has a remarkable player. He was to be classed last year with Pfann and Richeson. My idea of a real All America arrangement would have picked Richeson at quarter, and Pfann and Tryon at halves. What a combination that would have been!

Syracuse will be strong. Here is another team that has a long season ahead, for on Dec. 6 the team is scheduled to play the University of Southern California at Los Angeles. This game, and the Penn-California contest assures the coast of two excellent inter-sectional battles, regardless of whether the teams happen to attain so-called "championships" in their own territory.

YALE'S GREAT COACH, WHO WILL WRITE FOR THE POST-DISPATCH

TAD JONES

SAYS JOCKEY CLUB OWES $10,000,000 UNDER STONEHAM'S RULE

By the Associated Press.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 20.—Petition for appointment of a receiver for the Cuban-American Jockey and Automobile Club has been filed in Federal Court here alleging mismanagement on the part of Charles S. Stoneham, owner of the New York Giants, and others of the Jockey Club's board of directors, by counsel for Harry D. Brown Sr., well-known race track man and one of the stockholders of the company. Brown resides in Los Angeles.

Brown, the petition alleged, asks the appointment of a reciver for the club, because, he claims, if the management of the club continues under Stoneham he will lose $115,000 he has invested.

Since Stoneham has become director of the club, the petitioner alleges, the club has become indebted to the extent of $10,000,000.

Football Teams To Open Up, This Year, Camp Says

Veteran Authority Believes Coaches Will Take Longer Chances Than Ever.

By Walter Camp.
(Copyright, 1924.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The strange part about the opening of the football season of 1924 is that the various coaches throughout the country, almost without exception, are confident that they are going to build a better attack than last season. Talk with any one of them and you will be convinced of this.

It is queer in a way how this feeling began at the end of last season and has sprouted more and more through the summer. The truth of it is this, that there was a decided loosening up of line play and a spreading of the base of attack, almost all teams working steadily away from the old close formation plays, and for the most part finding good results. It happened to most of the teams along toward midseason and such is the tendency of human nature that instead of feeling anxious about developing a defense to this wider spread form of attack, most of the coaches finished up the season with the belief that if they had a week or two more they could make these plays, which were fairly effective, really almost sure ground gainers.

More Venturesome Attack.

That spirit and thought has been with the coaches through the winter, spring and summer, and now bids fair to have its fruition this fall. The attack will certainly be more venturesome, even from the very beginning of the season, on almost all the gridiron fields.

The question remains to be answered whether the defense has received sufficient consideration and whether many teams are not going to find that the opponents' looser and more venturesome plays are going to be as good ground gainers as their own. In other words, the writer expects the defense will have to work harder in the early weeks of the season in order not to lag behind. True, scoring may not be increased in the minor games, for these minor games have always resulted for the big fellows in big scores. But when midseason is reached and they begin to meet those of their own caliber, how far they will be able to offer a defense that will keep pace with the attack is the main question.

There is one comfort for the coach who has not been studying hard upon this problem of defense, and that is that the looser and more venturesome attack is more likely to gain such ground as it acquires in midfield than when approaching a goal line, and no coach yet has devised a sure system whereby when his team gets to the 10-yard line they can always and inevitably carry the ball over. Many a time the coach thinks that he has devised a play that will do it, but that thickening up of the defense inside the 10-yard line proves too difficult a hurdle.

The Hardest 10 Yards.

Notre Dame showed in her Army game last year an ability to slip over quickly from this point, but the majority of teams had all they could do to convert an advantageous position into points that could be put up on the score board.

The writer looks to see a great search for heavy fast wing men this season, the burden of this looser attack putting a premium upon that type of man for defense. A tendency toward this was displayed toward the latter part of last season, and a good many coaches are looking for tackles just as heavy as guards and they all want ends who are powerful enough to smash interference without much help from the tackle. For with the loosened line of attack the tackle has all he can look out for without helping out an end much.

A limitation placed on the end is that while coaches would all like him big, he must also be fast, for he has to get down the field under kicks with celerity. This puts a stop to picking him for weight alone and is a good balance wheel in the selection.

Energy First in Autumn Handicap On Muddy Track

Despite the Heavy Going, Winner Beats Fine Field in 1:12 2-5.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 20.—Energy, with L. McDermott in the saddle, demonstrated his speed and ability in running through the mud, when he won the Autumn Handicap at Latonia racetrack this afternoon.

The winner made his own pace and ran a remarkable race. He won by four lengths from Certain, Baffling and seven others.

The winner is the property of J. B. Respess, Erlanger, Ky., and he won $5680 for his owner through the triumph. It was a wonderful afternoon for the thoroughbred that reveled in the mud.

The distance of the Autumn Stake was six furlongs, and the winner ran it in 1:13 2-5.

Baffling, pride of the Idle Hour Farm Stable, was the favorite, but could do nothing better than third. Alice Blue Gown did not like the going, while the others were outpaced the entire distance.

The winner paid $22.60 to win, $10.30 to place and $6 to show. Certain paid slightly more to place, the figure being $10.70, and the show money was $6.30. Baffling paid $3.50 to show.

CARDINALS, USING YOUNG PITCHERS, BREAK EVEN WITH BOSTON

Rhem Loses, 1 to 0, but Fowler and Shields Win Second Contest, 5 to 2

John Cooney Is Victor in Opener, in Which Only Run Is Scored on Double Steal—Hornsby Held Hitless in One Contest.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, Sept. 20—The Cardinals and Braves exchanged buffets here today in a double bill, which finished the Cardinals' season here. The Braves won the opener, 1—0, and the Cards copped in the second, 5—2.

In the second battle, Fowler started, but a newcomer named Shields relieved him and, pitching wonderfully well for five frames, during which he permitted only three hits, was credited with the victory.

Hornsby was held hitless in the first game, but slammed out a pair of safeties in the second.

First Game Pitchers' Duel.

The first game was a real pitching duel between Flint Rhem and Johnny Cooney, the brilliant Boston southpaw. Each of these youngsters allowed five hits, four of which were singles and one a double. John Cooney was never even threatened, not a Missourian getting close to the plate.

Rhem had only one bad inning, and it was not his fault that when the lone Boston tally was scored in the third. In this inning he walked O'Neil, who advanced on John Cooney's sacrifice. Things looked easy enough for the young Cardinal when Thomas popped out, but Wilson's infield hit put O'Neil on third. Then, to the amazement of everybody, a double steal succeeded, O'Neil scoring.

There was no disgrace in the trimming Rehm got, however, as he showed he does possess control as well as his vaunted skill. He walked only three men and his fast one and curve were hopping in nicely at all times. He did not allow more than one hit in any one inning, and, in the final four frames, only 12 men stepped up to the plate. Both teams were in perfect defensive form, though no hard chances were offered.

The best fielding play of the game was made by "Tubby" Clemons, who hung over the Cardinal dugout to catch Thomas' foul in the fifth.

Fowler and Shields Shine.

For the first two innings of the second game, all seemed set for another scrap between two good hurlers, but in the third Yeargin, the Boston curver, made a bad throw and passed Douthit to fill the bases and bring up Hornsby who, hitless all day up to this time, crashed a single to left and put a pair of tallies across. Fowler, the young Card southpaw, worked very sweetly in the first three frames, letting but one Brave see first. That was on a pass to Cunningham in the first.

Fowler suffered from non-support in the fourth and saw two runs scored by Boston. Two were out when McInnis singled. Tierney hit to short and Thevenow kicked the ball around, after he had thrown McInnis' hit way. Bob Smith then came through with a double and the two runs were in.

Two pinch-hitters—Dyer and Jack Smith—failed in the fifth, but Blades scored on R. Smith's bad throw and a double by Douthit, who was nailed trying for third. Shields, a recruit underhander from up Nova Scotia way, went in to pitch for the Cardinals and Gonzales to catch in the last section.

Rookie Singles in Pinch.

Shields proceeded to show a lot of stuff and, permitting only two hits in three innings, easily held Boston, while the Cards picked up one in the sixth on hits by Hornsby and Bottomley and a sacrifice by Mueller. The eighth produced nothing for either club, though the Braves started by bunting safely off Shields.

A run came across for the Cards in the ninth, and it was Shields' single which scored it. There was no further scoring.

Players Return Home.

The following players were allowed to go home after today's game: Jess Haines, Bill Sherdel, Allan Sothoron, Hi Myers, John Hallahan and Eddie Dyer.

After exhibition games tomorrow and Monday the Cardinals open a three-game series with the Phillies next Tuesday.

WRAY'S COLUMN

May Prove Nothing.

NOTE that Jack Renault has signed to fight another recently exposed "logical candidate," Harry Wills. We don't fathom the reason unless the bout is to decide the championship of Bartley Madden, so to speak. Bartley caused the semi-disgrace of both battlers in recent fights.

Renault's picture is on the front page of a widely distributer boxing guide of the current year. But word has gone forth in New York boxing circles that he won't do. They say the man who can't stop Madden has no right to talk of title bouts.

Dempsey and Madden yet may have to fight it out, to settle how bad Renault and Wills really are.

Dempsey Ruined Fight Fans.

TEX RICKARD, disappointed at the recent half million dollar fight house (he expected $1,000,000) attributed it to the Firpo trouble.

We differ. We hold Jack Dempsey entirely responsible. Jack Dempsey educated the New York public to what a fighter can be expected to do who is willing to hit and CAN hit.

Now they want no other. They sneer at the safety-first candidates like Gibbons, Renault and Wills; and the reason they stayed away from the Wills fight was that they believed the black boy would not "open up," even against a foe whom he scientifically and physically surpassed.

Age of the Wallop.

SOMEWHERE back in history BOXING was sidetracked. The "manly art of self-defense" is gone forever and fans are showing more and more each day that they do not want to see expertness in blocking, side-stepping and master craftsmanship in the art of PREVENTING unless it is accompanied by equally masterful punching.

They will pay to see Dempsey because they know he can deliver and that he will not resort to a safety-first defense.

Can't Pick This Winner.

ON one pretext or another the Leonard-Walker fight, which the New York Boxing Commission filched away from New Jersey and ordered moved over to New York, has been shifted out of the picture, for the present.

At present time it appears that Leonard and Walker have won the battle to have their own way despite the New York Commission. Walker has grown tired of being pushed about the map, and arranged other bouts, regardless of more threats of excommunication.

The commission appears to have given Walker the worst of a deal or two in the past in its continued effort to lean backward in rule enforcement, even outside of its own State jurisdiction.

Walker and Leonard are two boys that New York would pay well to see fight.

Invincible.

THE pastime of tooting the national horn is with us. Tennis, golf and polo have gone the usual and annual way, with victories for America.

However, Yankee Doodling our supremacy blatantly is not in such very good taste. With population, money, the world's greatest sport propaganda system and our great school athletic incubators, we would present a rather sorry spectacle if we did not maintain leadership.

It's difficult to see any overthrow for the United States in branches of sport that are popular in this country, except in isolated instances.

126 ELEVENS TO PLAY IN U. S. F. A. TITLE STRUGGLE THIS YEAR

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—At a special meeting of the National Challenge Cup Committee of the United States Football Association today the draw for the preliminary round of the competition was made. William Patrick of Bayonne presided, others present being John C. Ross of Bridgeport, Conn., and National Secretary Andrew M. Brown of New York. A total of 126 entries were received which, considering that the St. Louis and American Soccer League Clubs refused to enter the competition, was only eight behind the record of 134 made last year.

The Boston Soccer team, the only American League club to enter made application to withdraw its entry, but was not allowed to do so.

The news that the Boston F. C. which competent experts regard as not only the best in the country, but the best that was ever put together here, had entered will be a surprise to the other clubs in the American Soccer League.

The club has been exempted from the first round, this being the first time on record where a newly formed club, making its first appearance in organized soccer was granted this distinction.

The Boston club has just acquired Mickey Hamill, regarded as the greatest internationalist Ireland ever sent on the field.

WASHINGTON STAFF OF COACHES COMPLETE

With the addition of Tom Hennings, Jr., former Soldan High and Cornell University track star, as track coach at Washington University, the Piker staff of athletic instructors is increased to nine. Dr. "Bill" Edmunds, director of athletics, yesterday announced that Hennings will begin his duties by taking charge of the cross-country runners in their first practice Wednesday afternoon.

Hennings, who is now a student in the Law School at Washington University is the holder of several local interscholastic track records. While at Cornell he was a member of the cross-country team and also specialized in the 220, 300 and 440-yard dashes. Last year the Piker track team, which was coached by George Rider placed second in the Conference meet and enjoyed the best season in its history.

Dr. Edmunds has also issued a call for freshmen football candidates to report for their first workout tomorrow afternoon. Dr. Edmunds will coach the freshmen while Byron Wimberley will have charge of the varsity squad.

With the addition of Hennings, the Piker array of coaches is as follows:

Football—Byron Wimberly and Dr. "Bill" Edmunds.
Baseball—John E. Davis.
Boxing—"Kid" Alberts.
Wrestling—Al Wasem.
Track—Tom Hennings
Basketball—Don White.
Swimming—Vincent Johnson.
Gymnastics—William Summers.

Records Broken In Swim Meet

Third United and Kingshighway Presbyterian Boys Win Sunday School Event.

Third United Presbyterian and Kingshighway Presbyterian Sunday schools shared the high honors at the annual swimming meet for boys held Friday night at Wilson pool, Washington University, by the St. Louis Sunday-school Athletic Association.

One hundred and three swimmers were entered from 16 churches in the three-age divisions. In the senior meet Third U. P. captured 29 points, Zion Evangelical, 10, and Kingshighway 8, Christ Church Cathedral following with six.

Kingshighway intermediates earned 24 points to St. James' 19, and St. John's Evangelical 7. And the juniors gave Kingshighway 31 points, Tyler Place coming second with 16, and Bethel Evangelical third with 14 points.

H. Heideman of Zion broke two Sunday-school Association records when he won the 200-yard free style in two minutes 47.2 seconds, and the 50-yard back stroke in 34.3 seconds. Keeps Hair Combed

Even obstinate, unruly or shampooed hair stays combed all day in any style you like. "Hair-Groom" is a dignified combing cream which gives that natural gloss and well-groomed effect to your hair—that final touch to good dress both in business and on social occasions. "Hair-Groom" is greaseless, also helps grow thick, heavy, lustrous hair. Beware of greasy, harmful imitations.

Mrs. Hurd's Come-Back as Women's Golf Champion, Credited to Shorter Swing

Titleholder of 15 Years Ago Won 1924 Championship Because She Discarded Gloves and Changed Style, Gene Sarazen Writes.

By Gene Sarazen.
(Copyright, 1924.)

IN WINNING the National Women's Golf Championship after a lapse of nearly 15 years, Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd has set an example which thousands of other golfers who are desirous of improving their games, might well follow. When Mrs. Hurd won the national title back in 1909 and again in 1910 she was wearing long skirts; she wore gloves and she used the old-fashioned palm grip. What is more, she took a very full swing in which she took the club away back over her right shoulder.

This style enabled Mrs. Hurd to hold her own with the best women players in the game when she was title-holder 15 years ago. But with succeeding years and the entrance of a number of younger players who were swinging the club properly, such as Miss Alexa Stirling, Miss Glenna Collett, Mrs. Edith Cummings and others, Mrs. Hurd saw she would have to improve her own game in order to keep pace with this group. And so, in order to continue as a contender in championships, she proceeded to change her style of play.

Develops Shorter Swing.

First she threw away the gloves. None can grip a club securely and firmly with gloved hands. Then she worked on the overlapping grip and also practiced hard constantly in shortening her swing. Eventually she was able to feel comfortable in her new game which is considerably more compact than the old style.

To her great surprise, Mrs. Hurd found she was getting greater distance than ever before and apparently with less effort. Now she drives right up with Glenna Collett, Edith Cummings and the other long-hitters and her direction is wonderful. As a result of these changes, Mrs. Hurd can be counted on as a contender for the next four or five years at least.

All golfers who are experiencing trouble with their games should do some experimenting along proper lines, just as Mrs. Hurd has done. If you are not getting good results with your present style you can't lose in attempting a change.

Overswinging Is Bad.

The fault of the average golfer, as I have said before, is due largely to overswinging. And overswinging is the result of lack of compactness. Going further into this trouble it can generally be traced to an improper stance, a poor grip, or a combination of the two. Any golfer who learns the fundamentals of the swing thoroughly will not have much trouble straightening out the kinks in his swing. But when you are gripping the club with one hand held far under the shaft and the other well over it and when you are constantly shifting your stance there is little chance of your swinging the club in the same groove each time. Consequently you are always laboring under a handicap.

First, make sure of your grip; then practice on addressing the ball the same way on each shot; and finally work on hitting the ball with as short a back-swing as is possible. You may lose a little distance but you will better your control. And when you are playing right through the fairway all the time you will find good scores will come in a surprisingly easy manner.

LITTLE TREND TO MARKETS DURING WEEK

Continued Ease in Money Rates Factor in Situation —Industrial Condition Reviewed.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20—The Evening Post in its copyrighted financial review, says:

"Another week of comparative stagnation has passed in the markets. Flurries that carried values in both directions have occurred, but there has been nothing resembling a definite trend. On the one hand, money is too plentiful and cheap to permit much of a recreation in securities while, on the other, business prospects are not bright enough to stimulate another major advance from current levels. The reaction that set in a few weeks ago seems to have corrected the technical position, but the public shows little inclination to take the buying side as yet. All this is perfectly natural. The extraordinarily cheap money of the early summer raised prices to a level at which a liberal recovery in business was discontinued. Meanwhile industry has rebounded from depression, but still leaves the question open as to whether the recovery is to be carried through into full prosperity. With the effects of the impending European settlement still indefinite, and with the election result several weeks off, business men and market followers consider a waiting attitude best.

Easy Money Persists.

"In one important respect at least the events of the last few weeks have set at rest any apprehensions that may have existed as to what the fall might bring forth. The money market, after a slight and brief hardening, has relaxed to the previous condition of ease. Several reasons exist for the renewed cheapness of credit. The increased industrial activity of August was carried on with efficiency and speed. The large deliveries by steel mills in that month probably liquidated a certain amount of inventory. In similar fashion the unusually heavy grain shipments have liquidated indebtedness at country banks. The crops, in other words, are not making large demands for fresh credit. Meanwhile general trade continues on a moderate basis. And the large pieces of foreign financing have yet to appear, while increased exports are keeping a moderate amount of gold flowing westward across the Atlantic. The sum total of these factors is continued ease—an ease that is likely to be maintained until foreign financing assumes large proportions or until domestic business expands in more robust fashion.

Industry Works at Fair Pace.

"Industrial news is fairly good. The steel mills are operating at about 60 per cent of capacity, with railroad buying the encouraging feature of the situation. Steel prices do not show, however, any convincing tendency toward firmness. Surplus capacity is still too large and competition is too severe. Textile mill operations still are at a low level, but the decline in cotton prices holds out prospects for better things. Fresh cuts have appeared in petroleum and its products, but the redundant situation in this industry is not due to poor consumption but to excessive production. Consumption of oil, as a matter of fact, is at record high levels. Altogether the industrial picture is one of fair activity, strong competition, small profits and fair prospects. The better conditions in the agricultural sections are being maintained.

Foreign Outlook Encouraging.

"Cables from London speak encouragingly of the progress being made toward a German loan. There is no doubt that the London protocols clear much of the ground for such an operation. The rest of the work of preparation is now in progress. While it would be premature to talk as if the details had been agreed on, there is reason to believe that the operation is drawing closer. An offering within the next two months would not be at all surprising. When a loan has been sold and the Dawes plan actually put in operation we probably shall have an early indication of the trend of things in the international markets.

"More activity and greater firmness in stocks and bonds marked the week-end trading. The movement in bonds, was, perhaps, more significant inasmuch as it indicates buying resulting from more confidence in the continuance of cheap money. In the early stages of the summer's recovery, stocks usually followed bonds, sooner or later, in their various stages of activity and dullness. However, the consensus of opinion in the street is that the market is unlikely to get anywhere in particular until it receives sufficient stimulus to bring the public in. Meanwhile alternate reaction and recovery mean little as to future trend. At the close today stocks were irregularly higher.

Exchanges Firm.

"Trading in the foreign exchanges waned further in the short session, but quotations were somewhat higher, both here and at London. Sterling was ¼ of a cent higher at $4.46 3-8 and French francs gained 1 point at 5.31½ cents. Other Europeans were higher, Dutch and Danish currencies being particularly so. The pressure of autumn purchasing from abroad on the exchanges is somewhat lighter for the moment, while recent speculative operations also seem to have diminished for the time being.

"In the absence of news affecting them, commodities moved in a narrow range. Cotton traders are disposed to wait the next crop report, on Wednesday, while the feeling is growing that prices have discounted all known factors. Corn ruled generally lower, a good portion of the short interest having recently been eliminated. Wheat, on the other hand, met with fair support, but held to a trading area.

"The statement of the New York Clearing House as of the close of business September 20 showed the following changes: Loans, discounts investments, increased $133,881,000; net demand deposits, increased $109,356,000; time deposits, increased $33,852,000; circulation, increased $95,000 and excess reserves, increased $22,746,130.

GRAIN MARKET UNSETTLED WITH PRICE FLUCTUATIONS IRREGULAR DURING WEEK

Cash Wheat Gains on the Futures—Corn Sags as Season Advances Without Heavy Frost.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—The grain market was unsettled and fluctuated irregularly during the week ending Sept. 20, according to the weekly grain market review of the United States Department of Agriculture. Corn declined sharply as possibilities of early frost failed to materialize. Wheat declined with corn and was influenced by an estimate of the Manitoba Free-Press, giving the total Canadian crop as 321,000,000 bushels, but rallied and closed Friday above last week's close. Export business, although smaller than last week, continued good and domestic demand continued active, while the pressure of new crop movement decreased. Cash wheat was wanted and cash prices gained upon futures. Although the choice quality showed the most improvement at Minneapolis, the ordinary grades were up also. Rains in the Northwest interrupted threshing and hindered the movement of grain to market, while still further retarding the late movement of the Canadian crop. Mills competed actively for the choice high protein offerings. Spring wheat was scarce at Chicago, and was wanted by mills and shippers. Offerings were readily absorbed at Kansas City, with mills buying to replace grain milled. Southwestern mills operated at full capacity, with fair domestic trade and broad foreign demand. Northwestern mills continued to make high protein winter wheat. Demand continued fair at Wichita, with mills seeking choice milling wheat, while the gulf export demand was active. Soft winter wheat was unchanged to 2 cents higher at St. Louis. Export inquiry was lighter at Toledo, with domestic trade holding up well. Mills took only an occasional car at Cincinnati and elevators absorbed most of the offerings. Durum wheat continued in excellent demand and No. 1 amber sold 2c to 9c over the Duluth October, which closed Friday at $1.28¼.

Traders had been cautious with corn at last week's levels, and as serious frost damage failed to develop, the futures market lacked support, and a wave of selling uncovered stop-loss orders and prices declined from a high of $1.14¼ to a low point of $1.05¾ for Chicago December, but rallied, closing Friday at $1.08⅛. The corn crop, especially in the corn belt, is even more backward than it was a month ago, according to the department's Sept. 15 crop notes. It now seems practically certain that much of the crop will not mature before killing frosts. Growth has been greatly checked by cool weather and a lack of sunshine and a large part of the crop needs from three to eight weeks of warm weather to mature grain. Cash corn was in excellent demand and prices did not suffer the full decline of futures. Inquiries fell off with the sag in future prices, but strengthened at the close of the week. Feeding demand continued light, with the movement mainly to industries.

Oats futures declined in sympathy with corn, but rallied at the close of the week. The movement of new oats apparently had passed its peak and receipts, while liberal, were less than for the preceding week. Farmers were still reported to be holding a supply of oats pending the outcome of the corn crop. Local grinders and shippers were active buyers at Minneapolis, with a fair amount of export business. Good oats sold readily at Chicago, but poor grades were draggy. Demand from the South was only fair at Omaha and Kansas City.

The rye market displayed independent and declined very little in the mid-week sag. Milling demand was steady and export business continued good with Great Britain and Norway the heaviest buyers. Shipments overbalanced arrivals at Minneapolis and Minneapolis elevator stocks decreased 760,000 bushels for the week. Number one and two rye at Minneapolis sold at ¼ to 2¼ cents over Minneapolis December, which closed Friday at 96¼ cents, an advance of 3¼ cents for the week. Supplies were readily absorbed at Milwaukee and Chicago with the quality variable at Milwaukee on account of the wet season.

The barley market continued practically steady. Arrivals have been liberal, but shipments have been heavy. Maltsters were accumulating stocks and export trade was active. European supplies of good malting barley are reported short. Offerings were readily absorbed at Minneapolis, except Monday when receipts were heavy and the cash range on Friday was very slightly higher than last week. Malting and feeding barley were in good demand at Chicago, and the quality of arrivals improved. The market was 1 cent to 2 cents higher at Milwaukee, with good export and domestic business.

The flax market was mainly firm during the week. September flax declined 4 cents, closing at $2.26. Receipts were readily taken with number one seed selling at the September price to 2 cents over. While arrivals have been fairly liberal the heavy movement is still to come as the crop this year was late and harvest was delayed. Minneapolis October closed Friday at $2.23½, 2¾ under September.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Sept. 20.—Week-end liquidation caused a lower close to grain prices on the local market. A substantial increase in wheat visible supply was expected to be shown in Monday's report and this exerted influence on prices. There was liquidation in corn.

The early wheat market was under the conflicting influences of favorable crop advices from Argentina and Australia and wet Canadian weather. Liverpool wheat closed ⅛@⅜d higher. Corn was affected by warm weather.

December wheat opened at $1.32⅛, May wheat $1.38½, December corn $1.07½ and May corn $1.08¾.

The three Northwestern markets combined had 964 cars of wheat, compared with 1112 a week ago and 2584 last year, Minneapolis receiving 366 cars, Duluth 333 and Winnipeg 265.

Local wheat receipts, which were 221,000 bushels, compared with 226,427 a week ago, and 71,191 last year, included 53 cars local and 115 through. Corn receipts, which were 42,000 bushels, compared with 121,800 a week ago and 81,900 last year, included 19 cars local and 11 through. Oats receipts, which were 42,400 bushels, compared with 12,000 a week ago and 98,000 last year, included 20 cars local and 1 through. Hay receipts were 25 cars local and 13 through.

Primary receipts of wheat were lighter than a week ago and heavier than a year ago. Corn receipts were lighter than a week ago and heavier than a year ago. Oats receipts were lighter than a week ago and heavier than a year ago. Wheat shipments were heavier than a week ago and heavier than a year ago. Corn shipments were lighter than a week ago and lighter than a year ago. Oats shipments were heavier than a week ago and heavier than a year ago, being 1,021,000 bushels.

Primary receipts of wheat were 2,498,000 bushels, compared with 2,631,000 bushels a week ago and 1,552,000 last year. Corn receipts were 711,000 bushels, compared with 792,000 a week ago and 604,000 last year. Oats receipts were 1,450,000 bushels, compared with 1,565,000 a week ago and 843,000 last year. Wheat shipments were 3,625,000 bushels, compared with 3,004,000 a week ago and 759,000 last year. Corn shipments were 435,000 bushels, compared with 509,000 a week ago and 473,000 last year. Oats shipments were 1,012,000 bushels, compared with 912,000 a week ago and 710,000 last year.

The demand for soft wheat was slow in the local cash grain section of the market Saturday and scattered cars did not sell. Prices were 1c to 2c lower. There were a few mill orders for No. 2 red and good No. 3 red, while the cheaper grades met a little local demand. Hard wheat offerings were small with demand only fair, prices declining 1c to 1½c. Low grades were taken by elevators. The cash corn market dragged with prices steady to 1c lower. There was moderate buying by glucose people, but aside from this there was only a few local and shipping orders. There was only a narrow inquiry for oats and prices were steady to 1c lower. Several cars were carried over. A few cars of No. 3 white were taken by shippers. In the wheat feed market local sales were reported of 5 cars of hard gray shorts (to arrive from the West) at $31 quick shipment, 6 cars hard bran (do) at $25.50 prompt shipment and 3 cars do (do) at $25 quick shipment, 1 car soft bran at East Side mill at $25.50, 1 car hard bran at $26. There were sales to go out of one car of hard bran at $26, 1 split car soft (by Illinois mill, direct sale) bran at $27.50, mixed feed at $30 and middlings at $33.50. Sales were reported also of a car of white hominy feed at $39.50 sacked and 3 cars do at $38 bulk.

WEEK-END LIQUIDATION IN WHEAT ON CHICAGO MARKET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Grain list closed near the bottom prices of the day and week. The action in the markets was indifferent most of the day but liquidation set in during the last hour. Lack of outside trade was the depressing factor. Provisions finished a shade firmer.

Wheat at the close today was ⅛c higher to 1⅜c lower than a week ago and 2⅛c to 2¼c lower than the previous close. The feature of the week was the closing up of the September-December spread from 5¼c a week ago to 4¼c today. This was a reflection of the urgent demand for cash wheat throughout the week. The markets were irregular most of the time and reflected the smaller volume of trading. The bearish factors were the Winnipeg Free Press Canadian crop estimate and the heavy spring wheat movement. The markets today were featureless until the last half hour when liquidation set in and buying power was lacking. Longs did not care to carry their lines over the week end. They feared the liberal increase in the visible supply expected to be shown on Monday. World wheat stocks increased 27,931,000 bushels during the month of August and a total on Sept. 1 of 219,958,000 bu. compared with 161,916,000 bu a year ago. Exporters bid ⅝ better than yesterday for wheat in this market but they were unable to buy even at the advance. Shipping sales were only 2000 bu.

Corn was weak throughout the week and registered losses of 5¼c to 7¼c. The feature was the inability of the market to interest new buyers and the desire of holders to liquidate because of the staleness of the crop damage issues. Market today was weak and losses of 1⅜c to 1¼c were shown. Liquidation and deficient buying powers were the factors. Cash corn demands was good and sales of 70,000 bushels were reported for shipment. The weather was wet all over the corn belt and continues to retard the maturity of the crop.

Oats were 1⅛c to 1⅜c lower than week ago and ⅛c to ¼c lower than yesterday. The action of corn and wheat was the governing influence. Shipping demand has slowed up and sales of only 30,000 bu were reported. The cash oats, however, was ⅛c to ⅛c better.

Provisions were better and showed little change. For the week lard was 12½c to 17½c lower, ribs 12½c to 22c lower and bellies 5c higher. For today lard closed unchanged to 2½c higher and ribs unchanged. No trade in bellies.

Foreign Exchange

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The Evening Post, in its weekly copyrighted foreign exchange review, says:

"Although there were some intervals of strength in the market for European exchange during the past week, trading conditions indicated a disposition to sell leading exchanges. Large offerings of grain and cotton bills are expected to be a factor in the market in the near future. It was also understood that the English Government is arranging for the December payments of interest by the sale of bills whenever a good opportunity is presented.

"Sterling was held in close control all through the week, first selling as high as $4.48 for demand and then yielding to below $4.46, showing a little net change from the range prevailing at the end of the preceding week. French exchange showed strength for a time, checks on Paris selling as high as 5.38½, but after the discussion over the terms of the bankers' loan, weakness developed, causing a decline to below 5.30.

"There were advances and declines in other continental rates, the widest movement being in guilders, which, after advancing to 38.50, yielded to 38.32. Spanish exchange also had a wide range, becoming heavy toward the end of the week.

"Silver exchanges were directly influenced not only by the advance in silver to a new high record for recent years, but during the first half of the week the market on Shanghai and Hongkong was a nominal character, no supply being in hand around the quoted rates because of an indisposition to draw with the conflict in progress. Yesterday, however, the situation was materially changed and offerings were of a more substantial character. Japanese exchange was weak, yen checks falling ½c to 40.37. India was strong, rupees selling as high as 32.87. A firmer tone was shown in Canadian exchange following the successful financing. The South American exchanges, after showing strength, reacted."

"Trading in the foreign exchanges waned further in the short session, but quotations were somewhat higher, both here and at London. Sterling was ¼ of a cent higher, at $4.46⅝, and French francs gained one point at 5.31½ cents. Other Europeans were higher, Dutch and Danish currencies being particularly so. The pressure of autumn purchasing from abroad on the exchanges is somewhat lighter for the moment, while recent speculative operations also seem to have diminished for the time being.

HOG RUN INCREASES AND PRICES LOWER

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.	Last Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
Cattle and calves	40,757	44,432	46,404
Hogs	73,693	55,008	86,916
Sheep	9,093	14,382	16,078
Horses and mules	1,607	1,613	2,197
Totals	125,150	115,435	151,595

Total livestock receipts were of fair volume at the St. Louis National Stockyards last week, the six-day supply aggregating 125,000 head. Hogs and lambs closed lower for the period, sheep steady and cattle lower in some kinds, higher in others. Receipts of cattle and calves were 40,757 head, with the offering running largely to the plainer kinds. Supply of strictly fat steers and yearlings was not large and prices as a result advanced 25c to 50c in a fairly active trade. Most of the best consignments available cashed in the $10 column, although choice to prime droves were quotable as high as $11.25. Medium and common native steers failed to share in the advance and closed, if anything, a shade lower in some quarters. Western grass steers embraced 200 cars, with Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas contributing to the run. Trade in this department broke 35c and in most cases 50c, with prices varying mostly from $4.15 to $7.50. There were virtually no choice light steers and heifers included in the receipts and few good kinds. Some of the best cashed in $3.50 to $6. Beef cows declined 25c, the Grass offerings, which comprised almost the entire receipts, ruled slow, weak to 25c lower, many selling in a range of $3.50 to $6. Beef cows declined 25c the bulk selling at $3.50 to $5, while canners and cutters, on the other hand, advanced 25c, cutters selling largely at $2.50 to $3.25 and canners bringing $2 to $2.50. Bulls likewise scored a 25c advance, heavy beef offerings moving late at $4.50 to $5 and bolognas scoring $4 to $4.50. Stocker and feeder steers, in fair supply and moderate demand, closed barely steady. Most of the steers during the week cashed at $4 to $6, some higher. Veal calves topped the week at $12, while bulk of lights made $11 to $11.50. Closing top was $10.50, or 50c under that at the close of last week. Heavy calves were draggy under an indifferent demand throughout the week, although Southern canner yearlings were steady at $2.50 to $2.60.

Hog Receipts Increase.

Receipts in the swine department last week showed a material increase over the previous week's supply, the last six days showing a total of 73,693 head, while for the previous week there was 55,008 head received. For the corresponding week last year receipts in this department aggregated 86,916, a generous quota. There was a generous proportion of the lighter grades on the market last week, with a goodly proportion of the half-finished green kinds on sale also. Buyers discriminated greatly against these grades, with salesmen finding it hard to secure anything like satisfactory prices for them and in many cases difficulty was found in getting the buyers to bid on them. The first few sessions of the week saw prices holding to a level about steady with the previous six-day close, but later on buyers proceeded to force prices downward under the increased number of offerings. From Wednesday until the week's close prices showed a lower trend and sales for the week closed approximately 25c to 30c lower on the medium-weight butcher hogs from 190 to 250 lbs, offerings of these weights selling generally in a spread of $10 to $10.10. The heavy butcher hogs from 250 lbs. and up show a loss of 25c to 35c, sales of these weights at the close from $9.80 to $10 largely, depending, of course, on the weight and quality of the individuals. Light hogs that found the best demand throughout the week showed the least decline, sales of the 160 to 180 lb. grades at $10.10 to $10.25 on the close showing a loss of 20c to 30c. Pigs are unevenly steady to 25c lower for the week, with the lighter grades showing the least loss. The strong-weight kinds from 130 to 150 lbs. average are 25c off, at $9.75 to $10.10 largely, medium-weight kinds from 110 to 130 lbs. showing the same degree of decline at $9 to $9.75. Light pigs and peewees showed very little change throughout the week, with sales of the offerings from 110 lbs. and down about steady at $8 to $9 largely, the wide spread in price being due to the difference in weight and quality of the various offerings. Packer sows are 15c to 25c lower, at $8.50 largely, stags steady at $6.50 to $7.50. The week's close finds the different classes of swine selling in the following spreads: Best heavy hogs from 250 lbs. and up at $9.80 to $10, medium-weight butchers from 190 to 250 lbs. at $10 to $10.10 largely, and light hogs and shippers from 160 to 180 lbs. at $10.10 to $10.25. Strong-weight pigs from 130 to 150 lbs. at $9.75 to $10.10, medium-weights, 110 to 130 lbs. at $9 to $9.75, and lighter pigs and peewees from 110 lbs. and down at $8 to $9. Packer sows quotable at $8.50 largely, stags at $6.50 to $7.50.

Light Run of Sheep.

There was a light run of sheep and lambs at this market last week, receipts for the entire six-day period totaling only 9093 head, compared with a good run of 14,382 for the same six days previous and 16,078 for the corresponding period a year ago. In the matter of quality offerings ran about like usual, offerings for the week grading generally good. Southwest lambs were here in fair proportion, with some half-fat natives, these grades meeting with a limited demand from the buyers at prices far from satisfactory in most cases. In spite of the light run on hands, buyers proceeded to press prices, forcing the market down to a basis mostly 50c to 75c lower than the previous week's close, the decline on lambs. Best lambs grading from good to choice in quality show the full amount of the loss these grades quotable at $12.25 to $13.25 largely. Medium to good kinds quotable in a spread of $11.25 to $12.25, show a decline of 50c, with the plain to medium quality kinds at $9.25 to $11.25 showing the same degree of loss. Some of the plainer lambs sold lower than $9.25, prices depending, of course, on the weight and quality displayed by the individuals. Culls are quotable at steady prices, mainly $7, skips, too, selling unchanged at $3 to $5. In the aged classes prices show practically no change, receipts of these grades continuing light in volume. Buyers are taking the best light fat ewes for killing purposes at $5 mainly, the medium and heavy kinds changing hands in a spread of $3.50 to $4.50, according to weight and quality. Choppers and bucks quotable at $2 to $3, and canners at $1 to $1.50. Breeding ewes are selling mainly around $6 to $8.50, the latter price for choice blackface offerings.

Horses and Mules.

Horse and mule receipts the past week were of fair volume, combined run aggregating 1600 head, over 1000 of which were on a commission. Offerings sold on the alleys and at auctions and a fair clearance was eventually made. Top Southern horses and the better classes of cotton mules held to a generally steady level under another good demand from the South. Other classes and particularly the common horses and mules, however, sold on a lower basis. Some big work horses sold to good advantage, but they were of a good kind. Demand for mules was mostly in the cotton types, although some big, strong work mules sold to good advantage at auction.

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The upward movement in the Stock Exchange was resumed today but in a selective way. Such important groups as the steels, coppers and can shares were comparatively neglected and changed very little on the day. Oils were distinctly heavy.

The Bond Market.

The week in the bond market closed with prices firm and trading moderately active. In U. S. Government securities the Treasury 4¼s were in the heaviest demand, a fact which has some bearing on the outlook for money when it is remembered that this is the longest term Government obligation outstanding. Today's quotation came within measureable distance of the high record. Other Liberty issues sold around the best prices of yesterday or a little higher. On the week every active Government bond has made substantial gains.

Strength in Libertys was shared by the high-grade savings bank railroad mortgages. Atchison Adjustment 4s sold today a point above the low of the week; Big Four debenture 4½s, and New York Central 5s, the last named a mortgage bond, also were higher. Rock Island refunding 4s have been actively bought all the week, the net gain being about a point. Here the investment demand was strengthened by reports about the proposed consolidation with Southern Pacific. The low rate coupon bonds, such as New York Central 3½s and Lake Shore 3½s, are both up on the week on bank buying.

The leaders in the so-called semi-speculative rails today were still the two that have attracted the most attention all the week, International Great Northern adjustments and Missouri Pacific general 4s. The former at 63, which by the way is a record high, were up six points in a week, the largest gain made by any listed railroad bond. Missouri Pacific general 4s at 62 were up over a point. Missouri Pacific 6s also touched the high of the week today. On the week all the junior St. Paul bonds show losses, the refunding 4½s and the convertible 5s both long term obligations, being down more than 2 points.

Foreign bonds were generally steady today. Hungarian 7½s crossed 88 for the first time since the additional block acquired by the bankers from institutions in Hungary was marketed. Apparently the new bonds have been absorbed. French bonds held their gains fairly well.

New financing of the week totaled over $163,000,000, the largest amount for any one week since February. This increase is largely due to the offering of the 4 per cent one year notes of the Dominion of Canada, which alone accounted for $90,000,000.

UTILITIES FEATURE TRADE AT WEEK-END ON CURB

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Speculative attention was devoted to the vigorous advances in several public utility securities on the curb exchange today. The forward movement lifted quotations in these issues to new high records and added materially to the steadily rising prices during the week. United Light and Power "A" opened with an overnight gain of three point American Power and Light new made a like advance on brisk dealings. Gillette Safety Razor new rose to a new high and the old shares improved 1½ points, selling to 298.

Fractional recessions were noted in the petroleum group with trading in small volume and lacking in market importance in ascertaining a definite trend. An exception was Buckeye Pipe Line which advanced 4 points to 60.

Dealings on the curb during the week were of the most important character since trading has been conducted under present conditions. The higher-priced stocks and substantial issues generally occupied the most prominent position and many of those issues moved up vigorously, a large number making new high records.

The bakery group at first demanded most attention, United Bakeries moving up from 92¼ to 110, a new high record compared with a low record for the year of 43. Ward Baking "B" ranged from 30 to 34¼ compared with a low for the year of 14¼. After the denial of current reports of mergers trading in these issues abruptly decreased and reactions took place. Among the stocks established at new high records were Hudson & Manhattan, Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Coal, Swift International, Dux Inc. and a number of the utilities.

Nickel Plate issues were dealt in on a small scale. The list of industrial stocks alone that were traded on Thursday amounted to 104 different issues, a new high record number.

Oil stocks were irregular all through the week. Prairie Oil first advanced from 204½ to 210 and then lost its gain and a number of other issues moved in the same way. Indiana Pipe Line made a recovery of part of its loss in the previous week, ranging from 67 to 73½.

Saoud, Mighty Arabian Sheik, Is Moving His Army on Mecca And May Unite Moslem World

Beloved Sultan of Nedj, Noble, Fearless and Gallant, Has Swept All Before Him Until Caliphate Is Just Beyond

By ERNEST BRENNECKE.

ALL Arabia is in an uproar.

Ibn Saoud, Sultan of Nedj, gigantic and bearded, is moving on Mecca, Holy City of Islam. Two million fanatical Arabs are at his heels.

The Caliph himself, Sherif Husein Ibn Ali of Mecca, Emir and King of Hedjaz is fleeing for his life. Whipped in battle he seeks security under British naval guns at Jeddah. The British are uncomfortable; they have no wish to intervene in the internal quarrels of the Moslem world.

Ibn Saoud, victorious in a series of fierce desert encounters, has already captured the strategic town of Taif, and a triumphal conqueror's procession into the capital of Mohammedanism is now within his grasp.

The above was but a minor item in the news of one day last week. But behind it lurks a drama of intensest excitement and fire, a romance of breathless thrills, played out on the burning midday sands and weird Oriental oasis nights. A genuine sheik is the hero—Bismillah.

At the same time, he possesses the grace and elaborate charm of a born Oriental Prince. He is now just in his prime; he is about 45 years old.

Twenty-two years ago this Ibn Saoud, a youth of 23, was living in enforced seclusion at the court of the aged Sheik Maharrek, in the town of Kuweit. He rode horses madly, "like the devil himself"; had become an expert marksman and had proved his courage in those wild nightly raids against caravans and neighboring tribes which are life's blood to the noble Arab.

For the young Saoud was a noble by birth and when he was not riding or shooting, he indulged in dreams of the power which should one day be his. He was the direct descendant of the great Sheik Saoud, who had held together the whole peninsula in the stormy days of Abdul Wahab in the middle of the last century. He was the heriditary head of the most distinguished family of rulers in all Arabia. He was the rightful Sultan of Nedj, the central kingdom.

But his line had fallen upon evil days. A rival family, the Rashids of the Northern plains, had usurped the ancient powers of the Saouds. Mohammed Ion Rashid had captured Riadh, the capital city of Nedj, had driven out the governor appointed by the elder Saoud and placed his own underling in charge, himself ruling from his own city of Shammar.

Steal Out on Desert.

Young Saoud, banished at Kuweit, dreamed revenge on Rashid. He hated his ancient army, nursing his hatred as only an Arab can. He dreamed of recovering the glory of his fathers. He believed that destiny was with him. Secretly he laid his plans, as he pored over his Al Koran in the library of his protector.

Gradually he gathered about him a few trusted friends, all kindred spirits. They mapped out their plans. At last one night came when they mounted quietly and stole out into the desert—and Ibn Saoud had embarked on a career which he swore would end in the caliphate or death.

The little groups of horsemen, their robes flapping in the moonlight, cautiously approached the walls of black. Silently they surprised and overpowered the sentinels at the gates, then dashed for the castle, slaughtering the guard—and Saoud himself assassinated the Governor who had been installed by Rashid.

One of the raiders mounted to the roof of the palace.

"The Kingdom," he cried, "belongs to Allah and to Ibn Saoud."

And with that cry began a career which for brilliance and power has seldom been equaled in Arabia since the days of the prophet himself.

The Rashid took refuge in Shammar. Saoud immediately began to extend his power, to assimilate into his own band the tribes dwelling around Riadh. His procedure was simple. He would invite a tribe to send in its tribute to himself, "the great chief at Riadh, the Sultan of Nedj." If the taxes were sent in, it signified that another addition had been made to his realm. If not, he awaited a favorable opportunity to chastise the unsubdued.

Builds Great Empire.

His army was always in readiness. No extra military preparations were therefore necessary. Plans were confided to no one. Suddenly every man in the capital city even remotely connected with the tribe in question was arrested and thrown into prison. At the same time, the army was put on the march, with the chief at its head, at such a pace that no messenger or spy could keep up with it. Men rode day and night. Many would drop from the saddle, worn out with fatigue and loss of sleep, but the pace never slackened. Tactics were not elaborate. The tribe must be struck before any warning of the attack could reach it. It was a simple plan and astonishingly effective. Punishment was severe. Such a tribe was left stripped bare.

In spite of the apparent harshness of these methods, the personality of the new ruler invariably drew from his new subjects the same passionate devotion that characterized his original followers. His military success was continuous. Gradually the whole of inland Arabia came under his sway. Tribes who rebelled were punished without mercy. Tribes who tendered submission became members of a great Arab empire and among these allied tribes petty raids and forays and thieving operations ceased. Life and property became secure as they had not been for decades or even centuries. A "Pax Arabica" settled down over the peninsula.

For 15 years this process continued. The star of the Saoud waxed brighter and brighter. Still he remained only a local Arab chief, albeit the greatest by far in the whole land. Then he conceived a plan that had in it the daring of genius, and its success made him at one stroke an international figure.

Strikes at Turk.

For 50 years the hated Turk, nominal ruler of all Arabia, had held sway in Hassa and Kateef. These provinces were the richest in the eastern portion of the peninsula. They sent yearly revenues to Constantinople. Three regiments of Turkish soldiers were quartered there. These regiments were chronically depleted, so that at the time of Ibn Saoud's coup there were probably not over 2000 men in the garrison. Some estimates put the figure as low as 1200. But even at the lowest figure, Saoud's achievement was considerable.

With a scant 300 picked horsemen he attacked the capital city of Hothoof where the garrison was stationed. Confederates within opened the gates and the city fell into his hands almost without bloodshed. The province fell with the city and thus at one stroke the independent Arab chief perhaps doubled his revenue and at the same time entered the arena of world politics.

He treated his defeated enemies with great consideration and assisted them to embark and get away to Bahrein. Those who de-

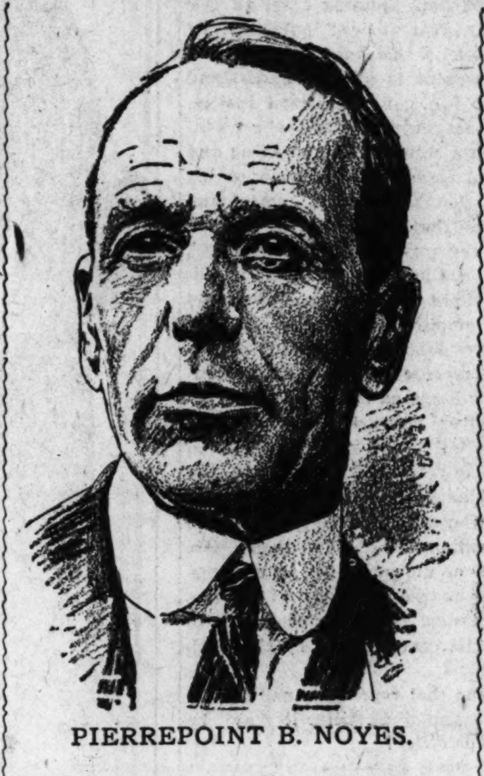
Nothing More Important to America Now Than Helping Europe to Keep Peace, Says Former Rhineland Commissioner

With Preparations for War Renewed on Every Hand, an Explosion Is Bound to Come Unless We Join Hands in Movement to Prevent It and Lend All Our Efforts in That Direction.

And, if Another World Conflict Comes, It Will Be Against Civilization and the Few of Us Left Will Be Glad to Crawl on Hands and Knees Into League of Nations—Next Attack Against Civilians.

By CARLOS F. HURD



PIERREPOINT B. NOYES.

"THERE may be one more great war, but there will be only one. After it, all of us who are left will be glad to crawl into the League of Nations, on our hands and knees."

Pierrepoint B. Noyes of Oneida, N. Y., silverware maker and former member of the Interallied Rhineland Commission, pointed his discussion of European conditions with this prophecy, while he was in St. Louis Thursday.

Noyes withdrew from his official position in 1920, and says he has since been trying to forget world politics and devote himself to making and selling spoons.

"But I haven't been able to keep out of it," he told City Club members here, in a luncheon talk which began with transoceanic concerns, and ended with a frank appeal for votes for John W. Davis, as the candidate most likely to lead this country into proper relations to European affairs.

Before he spoke to the club lunchers, a local speaker had been introduced for a five-minute get-out-the-vote talk, and the chairman had mentioned the coming registration of voters as something of "more immediate concern here" than the state of Europe.

"That's why I can't keep off this subject," Noyes said in his luncheon talk and in a later interview, "because I find people everywhere thinking their own local concerns are of more immediate importance than the conditions in Europe. People don't realize, even since the last war, that there can't be anything more important or more dangerous to every one of us than a condition such as prevails in Europe now.

"We must realize that we are dependent on Europe for peace, and that a European war would soon mean war for us.

"France is spending $877,000,000 on its army this year, or $60,000,000 more than in 1920. Italy is spending $300,000,000 on its army, whereas it spent $68,000,000 in 1920.

Next Main Attack Against Civilians

"If it were the old problem of war, such war as we have had in the past, killing soldiers by retail, we could stand it. It would be a bad thing, but it wouldn't wipe out our civilization.

"But the next war will be wholesale killing, and the main attack will be upon civilians. The soldiers at the front will probably be safer than the women and children at home.

"That isn't a debatable matter—something which may be so and may not be so. It is so. The last war ended before methods of wholesale killing had been perfected, but it showed that some nations will always use any means that promises quick results, and that after one uses it, the others will have to take it up. Fear makes men cruel, and fear is driving Europe toward war. They cannot think, plan and talk war as they are doing, without getting it.

"A special commission of the League of Nations has investigated this matter, and its report is just out. Chemical experts from the Universities of Paris, Rome, Florence, Copenhagen, Harvard and Columbia prepared the report. These men say that the dangers of the next war cannot be exaggerated.

"Protection of combatants against deadly gases will be difficult, they declare, and protection of civilians will be impossible. They see no conceivable limit. Attacks on civilians will be as common as attacks on soldiers, they predict, and the dropping of the most deadly disease germs upon cities is a possibility which awaits only a new war to make it a reality.—In New York City, every human being and even the rats could be killed through aerial attacks.

"All this is what the League of Nations is trying to head off. It is trying only feebly now, because the league as constituted is a feeble affair.

"If you are forming an organization of concerns in a certain branch of business, and there is one big, predominating company in that business, you must have that company in your organization, or the organization will not accomplish much.

We Could Make Our Own Terms

"The United States is the big, predominating concern in the business of insuring peace. If it doesn't help, the League of Nations will continue to be a feeble affair, doing some good, perhaps, and exerting an influence in the right direction, but too weak to be a decisive force for peace.

"The Benes plan for outlawing war, and the protocol being discussed by the disarmament committee of the League of Geneva, are measures of the sort that are needed. But their practical effect depends on us.

"As to getting into the League, we could get in today on our own terms. They would change the League in a dozen ways, to meet our wishes. And the idea that the European countries, through the League, would make us do anything we did not wish to do, can only be considered one of the grossest of misapprehensions.

"If we were in the League today, the danger would be, not that we would be made to do things, but that we would be tempted to act as the bully."

Because he believes that Candidate Davis is sound on this issue, Noyes is supporting Davis, though he says, "I was a Republican until I was 42 years old." That means until somewhere back in President Taft's time.

Davis' harmony interview with Senator Reed, in Kansas City a few days ago, was mentioned to Noyes, but without affecting his view of Davis' attitude. That view, he says, has been formed through a close acquaintance and recent prolonged talks. Reed, it will be remembered, has indorsed Davis on the basis of the New York platform, which calls for a popular referendum as a preliminary to entering into new relations with the League of Nations.

Thinks Davis' Candidacy Fortunate

"I watched Senator Lodge smash the peace of Woodrow Wilson," Noyes said, "and I have watched two Republican Presidents, one of whom assured the voters that he was for an association of nations, slump back into an easy and cowardly policy of isolation. I have listened to the Republican leaders, in and out of Congress, jeer at Europe's pitiful attempts to operate and strengthen a league of peace. And when Gen. Dawes and Mr. Young went to Europe, I read the official statement from the White House, that the administration disclaimed all connection with the Dawes mission, and all responsibility for what it might do and say.

"I coupled this with our devastating lack of foreign policy, and blindness to the dangers threatening us, and I prayed for a man of brains and brawn. I had little hope that the parties would let us vote for such a man—but the nomination of Davis was a cheering evidence of the ultimate soundness of our democracy."

Noyes, whose most recent visit to France and Germany was made a year ago, sees hope in the acceptance of the Dawes plan.

"It was adopted, simply because Europe didn't dare to go any farther in the way it was going," he explains. "The European Governments are yielding somewhat to the pressure of their people, who see bankruptcy ahead even more immediately and clearly than they see war ahead.

"Herriot, in France, would not have succeeded in the course he has now taken, but for the fall of the franc, with its menace to the economic structure of France. If Herriot had proposed such action a year ago, Poincare could have driven him out of office.

Ruhr Occupation Embitters Germany

"The Germans show a more reasonable attitude, too, and there is a better chance of their sticking to it than there was a year ago. The new currency, the rentenmark, has helped them greatly. A year ago, the German Government was about at the end of its rope—it was the butt of the country. Now, the peril of the left, that is the communist movement, does not seem so great as it has been, and the monarchist movement doesn't look very strong for the time being.

"It may be"—this in reply to a suggestion—"that the Ruhr occupation helped to put the Germans into a frame of mind to accept the Dawes plan, and thus did some good. But in another way, the Ruhr episode has made the problem more serious, for it has made the hatred five-fold what it was. Such acts as the deportation of great numbers of workers, men with families, from the Ruhr and the Rhineland to the unoccupied territory, leave great scars of hatred, even though the deportations have ceased.

"The French take the view that the 15 years of occupation of the Rhineland, prescribed by the Versailles treaty, have just begun, with the acceptance of the Dawes plan. Such an occupation, though conducted with the best intentions and in the best manner possible, makes a festering place.

"However, the impasse over the Ruhr situation is over, and I doubt if either nation will kick up quite such another situation. A settlement has been made possible, but much depends on whether it is carried out in the manner of the Congress of Vienna, or on the Wilson basis.

"The peoples of Europe do not want war, and their war-thinking is not for fun or from choice. They are governed by fear, and they feel that they must have security. A conference on armament, such as President Coolidge has suggested, would not give them security. And until they have security, they will say one thing and do another, as we would in their place.

"A strong League of Nations, and that can only mean a League which includes the United States, is the surest means of security for Europe, and for us."

Missouri's New Capitol, Eleventh in 104 Years, Is To Be Dedicated on Oct. 6

Historical Pageant Will Feature Ceremony at Structure Costing $5,200,000—Former Governors to Speak.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

Jefferson City, Sept. 20.

DEDICATION of Missouri's new State Capitol, the eleventh occupied by the State Government during Missouri's 104 years of statehood, will take place here Monday, Oct. 6, seven years after the completion of the building.

The building already is a mecca for tourists and visitors because of its striking architecture and beauty of its art decorations. Several thousand persons from all sections of the State are expected to attend the formal dedication.

Slightly more than $5,200,000 has been expended by the State for the building, furnishings, art decorations, site and development of the grounds, but its replacement value is estimated at $10,000,000 by the State Capitol Commission. Included in the cost figure are art works to cost approximately $700,000, which have been contracted for by the Capitol Decorations Commission. More than half the paintings and works of sculpture have been permanently placed in the building, and artists are at work on the remainder.

Forty-Seven Governors Invited.

Invitations to attend the dedication ceremonies have been broadcast to citizens of the State, Gov. Hyde has sent out 5250 special invitations to present and former State officials, county officers, distinguished Missourians and the executives of the 47 other states. President Coolidge and John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for the presidency, have been invited, but no assurance has been received that they will attend.

All former Governors of Missouri now living have been requested to participate, and wives of several former Governors will take part in a historical pageant in connection with the ceremonies.

Dedication of the building has been delayed for several reasons since the Capitol was turned over to the State Capitol Commission Sept. 8, 1917. During the World War preparations for a dedication ball were made, but the project was abandoned because of war activities. Further delay resulted after the war, because of a desire to postpone the ceremony until improvement of the grounds was completed and the greater part of the art decorations were in place.

114 Counties to Be Represented

Each of the 114 counties and the City of St. Louis are to be represented in the ceremonies by Queens to be chosen in local contests. The various committees are arranging for special railroad rates to Jefferson City from all points in the State and preparations are being made to house many of the visitors in the homes of the city.

Final details of the program have not been completed. However, a parade will be held in the morning, made up of floats, exhibits, school children, National Guard troops, bands, county Queens, participants in the pageant and others.

The dedication ceremonies will begin at 2 p. m. on the Capitol steps. Addresses will be made by the four Governors under whose administrations the building was completed and grounds developed—former Govs. Herbert S. Hadley, Elliott W. Major, Frederick D. Gardner, all of St. Louis, and Gov. Hyde. Former Gov. A. M. Dockery of Gallatin also will deliver an address.

Gov. Jonathan Davis of Kansas and Gov. Trapp of Oklahoma have accepted invitations to attend the ceremonies.

Pageant in Four Epochs.

The historical pageant, written by Mrs. Frank S. Leach of Sedalia, will be presented at night on the Capitol grounds. The pageant will be in four epochs, presenting the periods of the pioneer, of development, of the World War, and of progress. Mrs. Herbert S. Hadley, Mrs. Elliott W. Major, Mrs. Frederick D. Gardner and Mrs. Arthur M. Hyde will preside as epoch Queens. The county Queens and several hundred dancers and characters will take part.

A fireworks display from a point across the Missouri River from the Capitol will conclude the program. The set pieces in the display will include reproductions of the plainsmen crossing Missouri during the gold rush to California, the first steamboat making its way up the Missouri River, Indian battles and engagements during the Civil War.

Cost of the dedication had been estimated at $15,000 to $20,000, and money is being raised by private subscriptions in cities of the State, as there is no State appropriation for the purpose.

History of State's Capitols.

The history of Missouri's various Capitols, located successively in St. Louis, St. Charles and Jefferson City, is an interesting one. Following passage by Congress March 6, 1820, of an act by which the territory of Missouri was organized as a State, the first Legislative body charged with making laws for the new State—a Constitutional Convention—met in July, 1820, at a St. Louis hotel known as the Mansion House.

For five weeks the 41 members of the Constitutional Convention met in the dining room of the hotel, which was called the first Capitol. The Mansion House, located at the northeast corner of Third and Vine streets, was a three-story brick structure, and at that time was regarded as one of the most pretentious buildings west of the Mississippi River.

The second building used as a Missouri Capitol was the old Missouri Hotel, which stood at the southwest corner of Main and Morgan streets, St. Louis. The first Legislature met there in September, 1820. That Legislature canvassed the election returns and announced the election of Alexander McNair as the first Governor of Missouri. The Legislature was composed of 14 State Senators and 43 members of the House. It elected David Barton and Thomas Benton as the first United States Senators from Missouri.

During that session an act was passed designating St. Charles as the State Capitol until October, 1826, and also provided for appointment of a commission to locate a permanent seat of Government.

Permanent Capitol Site Chosen.

In June, 1821, a special session of the Legislature was held at St. Charles. The building in which it met, the third Capitol, was a two-story brick structure, about 20x30 feet in dimensions. At St. Charles the Legislature passed an act, approved Dec. 31, 1821, which specified the permanent seat of Government should be located at a point to be selected on the south bank of the Missouri River, within 40 miles of the mouth of the Osage River. The site selected is now Jefferson City.

A year later three trustees were appointed to build at the new site a two-story brick structure, 40 by 60 feet, for a State Capitol. The trustees chose a hill now occupied by the Executive Mansion. The League or Association of Nations.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

YOUR editorial of Aug. 31, with the caption "Europe's New Day" contained sound judgment and a clear insight with reference to the importance and widespread beneficial effect that the Dawes agreement will have in settling the tremendous accounts, re-establishing actual peace in Europe and stabilizing conditions throughout the world.

The question of our membership in the League of Nations in its present form was emphatically not acceptable to the great majority of the people of the United States as demonstrated by the 7,000,000 majority at the last presidential election, and until a plan is devised that will be acceptable to the majority of the citizens of the United States, our membership in such an association cannot be expected.

The present League of Nations would not now enjoy as large a membership as it does if the new, small and weaker nations of Europe had not feared the dominant European Powers and had not seen in the organization a measure of protection against exploitation by the central states and other Powers of Europe.

Former President Wilson's fine ideals were entirely submerged in the strong nationalistic and avaricious attacks of the European statesmen during the peace conference sessions and, as a consequence, in their present form, the articles of the League of Nations are un-American and, therefore, remain unacceptable to the majority of American citizens.

If an association, League of Nations or similar organization would include the membership of every nation and province on earth and through proper representative sessions and amicable discussions, warrant the approval of the nations of the earth; I feel sure that every citizen and official of the United States, regardless of former nationality, creed or political conviction, would rise to the cause and give the movement their support.

Caverly's Priest's Criticism.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

MONDAY morning's paper contains an account of a sermon delivered by the pastor of Judge Caverly, in which the reverend speaker bitterly scores the jurist for not condemning Loeb and Leopold to the gallows.

As a Catholic, I fail to understand Father McNamee's attitude in the matter. If his words voice the feelings of the great body of the Catholic priesthood on the question, then I have been mistaken in my church, whose mission has ever apparently been the reclamation and salvation of all sinners, and particularly the most hardened criminals. What a shame that a "white-haired" priest of God should rise before the blessed sacrament and attempt to call down confusion and humiliation on Judge Caverly, because—braving the scorn and anger and threats of a bloodthirsty rabble, even as did our divine Lord on his cross—he dared to utter the words of mercy that left open to the miserable young wretches before him their one chance to yet earn forgiveness and favor at the hands of their Creator! What a shame, I repeat!

Moreover, Father McNamee, in thus discussing personalities from the pulpit has established a precedent that is hardly likely to meet with the approval of his fellow-priests. It is the practice of the Catholic Church to preach God and Christian charity, and to leave outside interests and issues to those qualified to handle them.

Grade Crossing Elimination Possible.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

YOUR able editorial in your edition of Sunday, Sept. 14, 1924, on the elimination of grade crossings on railroads is to be commended. This is not your first on this subject. Careful automobile drivers find perennial wonder in the question of how it is possible to accomplish the feat of being wrecked or killed at a railroad crossing; but since the careless motorist is always with us, the movement that you advocate seems necessary.

That the expense of its accomplishment will be small is demonstrated by the practice of the Burlington Railroad in St. Ferdinand Township of St. Louis County, where there are no crossings at grade. Cheap bridges cross the Burlington on even unimportant roads, while permanent bridges span all more important highways. The money thus saved by the Burlington in the course of years must have far exceeded the cost of the bridges.

An automobile accident is a demonstration of the law of nature that two solid objects cannot occupy the same place at the same instant of time, and is preceded by total inattention and absence of carefulness by both parties and followed by absolute disclaimer by both of responsibility.

This does not apply to railroad trains, because they run on their own right of way, and the necessities and convenience of the larger number of passengers carried by them (not to mention the mails, etc.) entitle them to run at higher speed and without interruptions such as stopping at each grade crossing for the convenience of the relatively fewer passengers in an automobile.

CONSTITUTION DAY.

The celebration of the One Hundred and Thirty-seventh Anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution, which fell on Wednesday but will be celebrated today, has a double significance; it is both a proof and a promise.

The celebration is a proof of an awakening of the people to the value of the Constitution as a bulwark of the rights of individual citizens, the rights of the States, and of local self-government, against the usurpations of Federal power. It is a promise of a revival of devotion to the Constitution, not as a historic document but as the embodiment in written law of those inherent rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, and of government by consent which the Declaration of Independence affirmed were essential to free government.

Signs have been multiplying of late years of the revival of popular interest in and devotion to the fundamental principles of American institutions embodied in the Constitution. Organizations have been formed to defend the Constitution against assault and to oppose encroachments by the Federal Government upon the rights of the States and the rights of citizens. Popular sentiment is being aroused to the menace of the march of Federal empire.

Unfortunately there has been a profound apathy with regard to constitutional guarantees of human rights, personal liberty and popular sovereignty in relation to our Government. The Constitution has been amended in such a way as to endanger the separation of the powers of the Federal Government and the State Governments, and the restriction of the former within the sphere for which it was originally intended and organized. There has been reason to fear that the vital doctrines of free republican government which the fathers fought for and the safeguards which they threw around the exercise of Federal power had become mere empty formulas in the minds of living Americans, applauded in theory but ignored in practice.

It is perhaps fortunate that an attack is being made by Mr. La Follette and his followers on a fundamental and vital part of the Constitution, the power of the Supreme Court to declare invalid any act of Congress which is contrary to the principles and the rights of the people and the States embodied in the Constitution. It has made necessary a defense of the Constitution, and an explanation of the theory and purpose of the fathers in establishing constitutional restrictions on the power of the Federal Government, and in creating the Federal Judiciary to defend individual and State rights.

The founders of the Union of States and the framers of the Constitution established the United States not as a centralized government of all the people but as a union of States, with powers divided between the Federal Government and the State Government. In order to avoid a centralized empire and to preserve local self-government, which is essential to liberty, the framers of the Constitution restricted the Federal Government to only those powers granted to it by the people. Its sphere of power was embraced solely by foreign and interstate affairs, reserving to the States the right of self-government in State and local affairs.

To safeguard these reserved rights and restrictions, the Federal Judiciary was created, as one of the main branches of the Federal Government. It was established to interpret the Constitution and safeguard it from encroachment by the other two branches—the executive and legislative. The destruction or weakening of the power of the Federal Judiciary to restrain the Federal Government from going beyond its defined powers and functions would break down the barriers of the reserved State and individual rights, and open the gates to Federal usurpation of every kind.

Fortunately, the Constitution has able exponents and defenders in the field against this assault. John W. Davis, the Democratic candidate for the presidency, is expounding the Constitution and defending its guarantees with a clarity and force that have not been surpassed in American political history. Able defense is not lacking on the Republican side of the campaign. The people are being enlightened.

The celebration of Constitution day is the popular side of the movement. It invites the people themselves to a revival of their devotion to the Constitution by a thorough understanding of its meaning and value. If every citizen will read the Constitution today and annually on its birthday, there will be no doubt of the continuance of constitutional free government in the United States.

DIRECT ACTION AT LAST.

A physician of Battle Creek, Mich., has discovered the mystic formula for taking off flesh. It consists of laying the patient on a table and removing the unwelcome tissues in slices. Nine such slices, each an inch thick, were taken from the frontal elevation of a New York theater owner. He will go back to Broadway 40 pounds lighter.

The child is teacher to the man. To diminish the size of a man or a turnip what is more obvious than to whittle down the same. Yet enough money and energy has been spent evading the issue and sparing the tissue to win a young war. After centuries of rolling, running, bathing, mauling, dieting and, latterly, the reducing corset, it has taken man to this late age to survive the shallow superstition that the way to take off fat is not to take it off.

CARL SANDBURG ON STATE LAUREATES.

Strange things continue to happen. An Illinois poet, none other than Carl Sandburg, protests in vigorous prose against the suggestion that the Legislature at Springfield create the honorary office of Illinois poet-laureate. Mr. Sandburg makes his protest in Miss Hattie Monroe's magazine of verse, a Chicago by-product.

"A decent and honest-working laureate in Illinois, for instance," he points out, "would have been required to glorify Frank O. Lowden one year and Len Small the next year."

Incidentally, let us suppose an official poet-laureate in Missouri. For the past four years, if he attended strictly to his job as poetic mouthpiece for the reigning family of the realm, he would have had to indite odes and sonnets to Gov. Arthur M. Hyde. That, of course, would be in the nature of cruelty to the subject, the poet and the people.

Mr. Sandburg opposes the State laureate idea on the ground also that such offices pay no salary. The poet-laureate "finds" himself, being supposed to live on the glory of his job. One Western State laureate is mentioned by Mr. Sandburg as having had to leave his own State "and go to Missouri to live and earn his way." This laureate probably is John G. Neihardt of Nebraska, who some time ago was announced as having settled in the Missouri Ozarks. So far as we are aware, Mr. Neihardt did not quit Nebraska because he balked at making madrigals in honor of Gov. Bryan, although that is unthinkable, so we take it that he came to Missouri because he found the Ozark environment more favorable to the production of poetry than that of his own State.

WHO OWNS THE POSTOFFICE?

The organizations of postal employes back of the postal salary increase bill which President Coolidge vetoed, but which had the general support of the press and the public, charge that the real reason why the poorly paid postal servants make no headway in their movement for better pay is the existence of a powerful bureaucracy at Washington which is not responsible to public sentiment.

This bureaucracy appears to be made up of the Postmaster-General and his staff, the well-paid department heads, and the executive assistant and confidential adviser to the Postmaster-General, Joseph Stewart, whose word, according to the postal employes' representatives, is final on all questions of salary for the rank and file. Quoting from an editorial in "The Railway Post Office," published by the Railway Postal Clerks: "To know Stewart and to understand his viewpoint is also to understand why the postal service has gone backward instead of forward during the last ten years; and why postal employes have had such a struggle over working and salary conditions. And as long as he occupies his present position, it is just as well that postal employes should understand that they are going to have to fight every inch of the way for what they want."

Tracing the hand of this bureaucracy in its insidious hostility and persistent propaganda against the welfare of the postal employes, it is charged that the veto message of President Coolidge, denying the reasonable increases embodied in the salary bill passed by Congress, was based on the ideas and arguments of Special Adviser Stewart. However this may be, in vetoing the bill which would have given relief to over 300,000 faithful public servants, the President alone is to blame. He may have been influenced by the men who act as if they owned the postal service, but he cannot hide behind them. His veto was an exhibition of niggardliness as unnecessary as it is injurious to the public service. The public finances are not now in such a shape as to demand the sort of thrift contemplated by the Coolidge veto message.

But as regards a clique that represents neither the public nor the body of postal workers, it may be asked Who Owns the Postoffice?

A MATTER OF PERSPECTIVE.

Pierrepoint B. Noyes of New York is a man of big business. He originated "Community Plate" cutlery. During the war he was assistant to the Fuel Commissioner. After the war he was American member of the Rhineland Commission. He has made a study of European political conditions in the field which has won him recognition as an authority on the subject.

Mr. Noyes, in addressing members of the City Club Thursday, appealed for a revision of American perspective. He declared that the issue of the present which affects Americans most vitally is not domestic but foreign. The multiple nationalities of Europe, some of them under foreign rule, are in constant expectancy of war and live sleeplessly in preparation for that eventuality. They do not want war, but if there is gun play, which seems unavoidable, none wishes to wait for the other fellow to shoot first.

American isolation is a proved fiction. It will be more difficult to avoid the next war than it was the last. The civilized nations of the world must survive or perish together. The next war will be as much more destructive than the last as the last was more destructive than the trivial quarrels of long ago. The use of deadly gases and disease germs and the destruction of civilian populations, begun in the late war, will be carried to the efficiency of general annihilation in the next. And the few of us who survive that conflagration, says Mr. Noyes, will be glad to crawl on our hands and knees into a League of Nations.

The question, he maintains—and rightly—is not political unless by "political" is meant the protection of our lives and our civilization. It is a matter of seeing facts not only within our provincial horizon but wherever, from shore to shore in this world of diminishing distances, there are facts which may rule our destinies.

TEXAS GOVERNORSHIP FIGHT.

Having won the Democratic nomination for Governor by more than 80,000, on a platform strongly condemning the Ku Klux Klan, Mrs. James E. Ferguson, wife of the impeached ex-Governor, now faces an injunction suit, to be heard Sept. 22. The suit is brought by Charles M. Dickson, a San Antonio lawyer, who alleges that if "Ma" Ferguson is made Governor, her impeached husband will be the real executive, and also that limitations in the State Constitution make women ineligible for executive offices in Texas.

Women having the full suffrage right in Texas, it is doubtful if any court would hold that a woman could be debarred from holding an executive office on constitutional grounds. That part of the injunction proceeding appears to have been injected as a sort of forlorn hope.

But the charge that, if "Ma" Ferguson is elected Governor, "Jim" Ferguson will be not only the power behind the throne but the power on the throne is a challenge to the women of Texas, whose votes were very largely instrumental in nominating Mrs. Ferguson, and also a challenge to the chivalry of all the Texas men voters who rallied to her cause.

If Mrs. Ferguson is barred from office through an injunction suit, it will be a blow to Texas suffragists, who, in the early days of the fight for suffrage, had James E. Ferguson, then Governor, as their bitter opponent. The women fought him in State conventions, before the Legislature and denounced him as a tool of the liquor interests. They rejoiced when, in 1917, the impeachment proceedings were successful in removing him from their path.

That, in spite of this record of her husband, the women of Texas are now up in their thousands for Mrs. Ferguson is due to the fact that she is a woman of a character of which every Texan can be proud. And she says: "If I'm elected, Jim will be around to talk things over, and we will talk them over, as we did when he was Governor, but I'll be Governor."

It will be a victory for the Ku Klux Klan and the antisuffragists if Mrs. Ferguson loses the injunction suit and the opportunity to show that she can be a real Governor.

I saw her on Monday—
I've forgotten the place;
She was silently feeding
Her beautiful face.

With bonbons on Tuesday,
In a car's crowded space,
She was daintily feeding
Her beautiful face.

In a hash-house on Wednesday,
At a terrible pace,
She was noisily feeding
Her beautiful face.

In the office on Thursday,
'Mid ribbons and lace,
She was rapidly feeding

With humor—a trace,
She deftly was feeding

At a time when war is under the microscope, it is interesting to examine the war in China. Not that a war in China is a very sanguinary affair, but because the one they are having over there now conforms to the usual type. It is not about anything that interests the Chinese people. China has several rival tuchuns who naturally cannot abide one another, and they have decided to go to the mat about it. If this is silly, so was the siege of Troy. So have most wars been silly. Probably at length history will decide that no other sort of war has ever been fought. It took war like the one we recently had in Europe to arouse the world to a realization that this is the case. This realization is growing every day. It accounts for the interest attaching to the present session of the League of Nations Assembly at Geneva. It accounts for the unique action of Denmark, which has abolished her army and navy. It will account before very long for an actual concert of nations in opposition to any country starting a war. Nothing better could happen at this critical hour, when peace stands at the threshold of world politics, than that the Chinese should put on exactly such a war as one reads about in the Old Testament. It is time this folly were stopped, and the best assurance of action is to be freshly reminded how foolish it is. Atta boy, China!

On the "Rubber-Neck" Bus in Toronto.

Guide: Toronto is known as the "City of Churches"; you will notice that the square we are now passing is filled entirely on one side with churches; the other side is lined with boarding houses—salvation on one side of the street, starvation on the other.

The building on that opposite corner is called the Smooth Flatiron Building (a Chinese laundry).

That mansion on the left covers three acres—Mr. and Mrs. Acre and their daughter.

We are now passing the Home for Old Maids, 75 years old—I mean the building.

The street we are now on is occupied principally by bankers, real estate dealers and brokers—notice how crooked it is.

The celebrated Manchester Guardian, applauded by journalists all over the world for its accuracy, tells us in the following who are running for President over here. Maybe you don't know yourself:

"The American presidential campaign, which is now in full swing, differs in one notable respect from its predecessors. The vast and exhausting oratorical trips made by candidates in the past have been abandoned, partly because neither Mr. Coolidge nor Mr. Davis is temperamentally the man for a whirlwind campaign from a sleeping car, but mainly because the use of wireless to broadcast political speeches has made it possible for the candidate to address millions of his countrymen from one rostrum. In the early stages of the campaign the third candidate, Senator La Fayette, has had most of the publicity. Behind him are mobilized a great part of the more "radical" political writers and the United States Federation of Labour has declared in his favour. But with the entry into the lists of Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Davis the La Fayette chorus has dwindled."

One of our readers says: "Now is the lady from Wisconsin vindicated in her appreciation of Pershing for his immortal words: "La Follette, we are here."

A LETTER.

Dear love, these inner eyes that you have seen,
Scorn now the barren miles that lie between Us two. This morn I saw the sun
Around my room with laughing footsteps run,
And, lo, it seemed you stood beside me there.
I caught the sparkling sunlight on your hair.
And yesternight, when merry grew the dance,
A stranger challenged me with daring glance.
I saw your smile, beloved, it was your eyes
That thrilled me with a sudden, sweet surprise.

An appropriation of $18,573 to pay for this fourth Capitol was passed by the Legislature Feb. 18, 1825, and about two years were required to erect the building. The State Government moved to Jefferson City in October, 1826, according to records.

The Ninth General Assembly made an appropriation of $75,000 for a new Capitol to be built on the hill west of that occupied by the fourth Capitol, and provided for a building commission comprising the five elective State officers. Before work was started the fourth Capitol, with all its contents, was destroyed by fire Nov. 17, 1837. The State then utilized the Cole County Courthouse, which was the fifth Capitol, until 1840, when the building authorized by the Ninth General Assembly was completed. The latter building, the sixth Capitol, was erected at a cost of approximately $350,000.

This sixth Capitol was used until 1887, when growth of the various departments necessitated remodeling and additions. The reconstruction was finished in 1888, and the building was called the seventh Capitol. The remodeling and additions cost $220,000.

Fire Destroyed Seventh Capitol.

The seventh Capitol was destroyed by fire Feb. 5, 1911, after lightning struck the dome. Following the fire, the Senate temporarily was housed in one of the courtrooms in the Supreme Court Building, and the House of Representatives met in St. Peter's Hall in Jefferson City. State historians call these two buildings the eighth and ninth Capitols.

A temporary Capitol building was erected in 1912, at a cost of $51,000, on the edge of the present Capitol grounds. This tenth Capitol was razed in 1917, upon completion of the present structure.

The Forty-sixth General Assembly was in session in 1911, when the seventh Capitol was destroyed, and immediately passed an act authorizing a bond issue of $3,500,000 for a new building. The bond issue proposal was ratified by the voters in an election Aug. 1, 1911.

Gov. Hadley, now chancellor of Washington University, St. Louis, appointed a bipartisan State Capitol Commission to supervise construction of the new Capitol. It included E. W. Stephens of Columbia, and J. C. A. Hiller, Glencoe, St. Louis County, Democrats; A. A. Speer, Jefferson City, and Theodore Lacoff, Nevada, Republicans. The commission began work Oct. 6, 1911. It has remained intact and all the members will participate in the dedication.

Architect's Plans Cost $200,000.

After holding a competitive contest in which 69 architects participated, the commission awarded the architectural contract to Tracy & Swarthout of New York. This firm received $200,000 for drawing the plans and supervising construction. Principal contracts for construction were let to T. H. Johnson & Sons of Sedalia, for the foundation; A. Anderson & Co., St. Louis County, for the powerhouse, and John Gill & Sons Co. of Cleveland, O., for the superstructure.

Ground was broken May 6, 1913, and the completed building was turned over to the State Capitol Commission Sept. 8, 1917. Control of the building now is vested in the Board of Permanent Seat of Government, comprising the five elective State officers.

Cost of the building was $3,775,000; grounds, $190,000; furnishings, $250,000; a concrete terrace around the building, $133,000;

Cost of the building was $3,775,000; grounds, $190,000; furnishings, $250,000; a concrete terrace around the building, $133,000; steps, $23,000; development of the grounds, $150,000 and the art decorations contracted for, $700,000.

Capitol Covers Three Acres.

The building is an imposing structure, surmounted by a massive dome, and has fronts in three directions. It faces the Missouri River on the north. The main entrance on the south faces a park, which separates the Capitol from the Supreme Court Building. The Capitol site comprises 17 acres.

Standing at the top of a 120-foot bluff, the building on the north overlooks the Missouri river and the fertile lowlands of Callaway County. It is visible for several miles from roads approaching Jefferson City, and at night the dome and building are illuminated by flood lights, making it visible for a considerable distance.

The building is five stories in height, including a basement, and measures 437 feet in length, 200 feet in width at the wings, and 300 feet in width at the center. The height from the basement floor to the apex of the dome is 262 feet. The dome itself is 90 feet in height and 104 feet in diameter at its greatest dimension. The building covers approximately three acres of ground and contains 500,000 square feet of floor space, nearly 10 times the floor space of the building burned in 1911. The structure is considered fireproof.

Built of Missouri Products.

Stone used in the structure is Burlington limestone from quarries at Carthage, Mo., and marble from the Phoenix quarries in Greene County, Mo. Some marble was brought from Vermont and Georgia. Virtually all the building materials were produced or fabricated in Missouri, or purchased from Missouri dealers.

Approximately one-fourth the stone used in the building is in the 134 columns. Fourteen Corinthian columns, 48 feet in height, adorn the porticos of the north and south fronts, and 200 carved medallions are on these fronts.

A grand staircase, 30 feet wide and 120 feet in length, leads from the ground level at the south front to the third floor, where the legislative halls are located. A great bronze door, 13 by 18 feet, said to be the largest of its kind since the Roman era, stands at the main entrance. This door and two small adjacent bronze doors cost $15,000.

A great rotunda, 68 feet in diameter, is at the center of the building, and is open from the first floor up to the dome. Two large rooms, each 120 feet in length, and two stories in height, open off from the rotunda, and are used for the Missouri Resources Museum and the Soldiers and Sailors' Memorial Hall. The Senate chamber and hall of the House of Representatives open into the rotunda on the third floor.

Decorations Chief Feature.

The outstanding feature of the interior of the building, aside from the architectural beauty of the grand stairway, rotunda and dome, is the art decoraiton. The decoratting has been done under the supervision of the Capitol Decorations Commission, comprising Dr. John Pickard, Columbia; W. K. Bixby, St. Louis; J. F. Downing, Kansas City; Arthur Kocian, St. Louis, and Mrs. W. R. Painter of Carrollton.

The most noted art works, according to members of the Commission, are the paintings in the dome by Frank Brangwyn of London, famous Welsh artist, to whom the contract for all the interior decorating of the dome was awarded by the Commission.

In the eye of the dome are four large Brangwyn paintings, depicting Education, Labor, Art and Commerce. In the lower part of the dome are four pendentives by Brangwyn, showing division of progress. They show the landing of Laclede at St. Louis, the pioneers, the construction of the home, and the builders of the State.

Brangwyn now is at work on eight other paintings to be placed below the pendentives. These paintings largely will illustrate the importance of labor in human progress. Brangwyn received $25,000 for the four pendentives and the four paintings in the eye of the dome, and will receive approximately $45,000 for the eight other paintings.

Next to the Brangwyn paintings, the outstanding decorations, are in the Senate and House chambers. In the House is a great battle scene painting, entitled "Missouri at War." It is by Charles Hoffbauer of Paris, noted painter of military subjects. The painting is 49 by 20 feet. A large stained-glass window by H. T. Schladermundt of New York, depicting the glory of Missouri in peace, is in the House chamber, together with 10 small stained-glass windows by Schladermundt.

In the Senate chamber are four mural paintings by Richard E. Miller of St. Louis. One of these shows Daniel Boone at the judgment tree. Another depicts the scene when Capt. William Clark and Capt. Meriwether Lewis reported to President Jefferson at the White House, in 1806, on results of their Western expedition across the continent. Another panel shows Thomas Benton addressing the famous Pacific Railroad meeting in the St. Louis Courthouse in October, 1849. In the audience are Mayor John H. Crum of St. Louis, Stephen A. Douglas, Thomas Allen, first president of the Pacific Railroad; Isaac Sturgeon, first president of the North Missouri (now Wabash) Railroad, and Truster Polk, later Governor of Missouri. The fourth panel shows Francis P. Blair making his famous speech at Louisiana, in 1866, in opposition to the Drake Constitution.

Four large panels painted by Carl Melchers, New York portrait painter, are in the Governor's reception room. They show Susan Blow, of St. Louis, pioneer in kindergarten work: Mark Twain, famous Missouri humorist, as pilot on a Mississippi River boat; Eugene Field, Missouri poet, and Maj. S. S. Rollins, founder of the University of Missouri. The artist received $20,000 for the four paintings.

Sixteen Lunettes in Corridors.

In the corridors overlooking the Soldiers and Sailors' Memorial Hall at the east end of the building are eight lunettes by various artists. Two by Oscar E. Berninghaus picture the surrender of the Miami Indians to General Dodge at Malta Bend, in 1814, and an Indian attack on St. Louis in May, 1780. The stockade shown in the latter picture is said to have stood on ground near Sixth street and Franklin avenue, St. Louis.

The other lunettes are of the Battle of Sacramento and the entry of Missouri troops into Havana during the Spanish-American War, by Frederick Green Carpenter, of St. Louis; the Battle of Wilson Creek and the Battle of Westport, by N. C. Wyeth of New York; the storming of Vauquois Heights in the World War, painted by Adolphe Blondheim of Provincetown, Mass., and a naval painting by H. Reuterdahl, typifying Missouri service at sea. Artists painting these pictures received from $2500 to $3500 for each picture.

In the corridors overlooking the Missouri Resources Museum, at the went end of the building, are eight other lunettes. They are "Wealth of the North," by J. F. Humphrey Woolrych of St. Louis, a Missouri farming scene; "Gateway of the West," by Robert Edward Ball, a Kansas City scene; "Riches of the Mines," by Tom P. Barnett of St. Louis, a Southwest Missouri zinc mining picture; "Power From the Hills," by Ralph Chesley Ott of Springfield, Mo., in which appears the White River power dam at the foot of Lake Taneycomo; "The Father of Waters," by R. A. Kissack of St. Louis, a Mississippi River view from the Alton Bluffs; "The Artery of Trade," by Frank Nuderscher of St. Louis, showing Eads Bridge from the St. Louis side and a levee scene, suggestive of the commercial value to St. Louis of the Mississippi River; "Hahatonka" by E. H. Wuerpel of St. Louis, a view of this beauty spot of Missouri; and "Reclamation in the South," by Charles F. Galt of St. Louis, a Southeast Missouri farming scene. The artists were paid $2000 each for these paintings.

Frieze Depicts State's History.

Oil paintings of the Governors of Missouri are on the walls of the Soldiers and Sailors' Memorial Hall.

A large frieze, 138 feet in length, by A. Stirling Calder, New York sculptor, presenting Missouri history in 15 episodes, is on the exterior of the building, over the main entrance. Calder received $50,000 for the frieze. Another frieze, 140 feet in length, portraying the progress of civilization, is being cut into the bay of the building on the river front. The sculptor, Hermon Atkins MacNeil of New York, will receive $50,000 for the frieze when completed.

The Decorations Commission has awarded contracts for 23 other lunettes to various artists. They will depict historical incidents and places of interest. A contract has been awarded to Sherry Frey, New York sculptor, for a bronze figure of Ceres, goddess of grain, to adorn the Capitol dome. Robert Aitken, New York sculptor, has been given a contract for two bronze figures to adorn either side of the exterior main entrance. One, of a woman, will represent the Missouri River, and the other, of a man, will represent the Mississippi River. The figures will be seven feet in height and 15 feet in length, resting on pedestals.

New Structure Already Crowded.

Although planned to meet the growth of the State departments for many years, the State Capitol now is crowded and when the Legislature is not in session virtually all of the committee rooms are used for the overflow from the departments.

On the first floor are the offices of the Public Service Commission, Finance Department, Insurance Department, Highway Commission, Department of Agriculture, Commissioner of the Permanent Seat of Government, the Resources Museum and Memorial Hall.

The second floor houses the offices of the Governor, Secretary of State, Department of Education, State Treasurer and State Auditor. The third floor is taken up with the halls of the Senate and House of Representatives, House and Senate lounges, legislative library, office of the Lieutenant-Governor, committee rooms and miscellaneous offices.

On the fourth floor are the State Tax Commission, Labor Department, Game and Fish Department, State Board of Health, Adjutant-General's Department, Board of Charities and Corrections, Oil Inspection Department, Museum Commission, State Veterinarian, Pure Food and Drug Department, Eleemosynary Board, Negro Industrial Commission, and other miscellaneous offices. The radio broadcasting equipment of the Department of Agriculture is in a room near the dome.

The basement is used for storage, laboratories and automobile parking.

He ordered a whole caravan to be beaten into unconsciousness with green date rods, because they had committed the crime of insulting a common citizen. Men who robbed caravans were decapitated in the public bazaar and their bodies left lying in the dust for a whole day for all to see and meditate upon.

Stops Desert Robbery.

Roads became safe. A sack of rice dropped by accident from a caravan would be left untouched until the Government officials arrived to claim it. One day a Bedouin came to the terrible Governor and reported that he had seen a sack of coffee lying in the road at a certain place.

"How did you know it was coffee?" asked Ibn Jalouse.

"I felt it with my toe," replied the Arab, illustrating the action as he spoke.

"Bring the executioner," shouted the Governor. "Now hold out your foot." And to the executioner: "Cut off his toe." The executioner obeyed.

"Now," concluded Jalouse, "when you see a sack in the road, I want you to understand that you are not to touch it with your big toe. You are to leave it alone."

In such manner did the lieutenants of Ibn Saoud check highway robbery and thievery, heretofore the steady profession of the tribesmen.

Thus, at the beginning of the war, the Sultan of Nedj, tamer of the untamable, was perhaps the outstanding figure in Arabia. His court was a byword for hospitality. He was never entertaining less than 150 Nomad guests in his perpetual "open house." Often there were 10 times that number at Riadh. Although ferocious in battle, he affected within his court a winsome manner and a smile that attracted and fascinated timid children. His generosity to the poor kept his treasury at a low ebb, in spite of his relatively enormous revenues. At one feast, 400 sheep and 93 camels were consumed by a band of visiting pilgrims.

Loved by Subjects.

No wonder that his 2,000,000 half-starved subjects loved him and were, many of them, ready to die at his bidding. For the desert life is a harsh one. A few swallows of goat's milk and a handful of dates—that is the Arab's usual daily fare. Water is extremely scarce; there is almost never enough to drink freely and none at all for washing purposes. The men wear two garments; a loin cloth, indescribably filthy, caked with grease and dust, and the familiar fluttering nightgown-like "Sheik's" robe, always badly frayed and tattered. But they live by warfare, are intensely religious, and their average culture is surprising: a majority of them can read the Koran with ease.

By 1914, the only source of discontent in Nedj was the feeling that the country was too peaceful. The impetuous warriors felt irked by the lack of stirring action. And the Saoud's bitter lifelong feud with Rashid was still unsettled. The Rashid still held Shammar to the north.

The outbreak of the war, then, came as something of a relief to pentup energies in Riadh. Rashid immediately declared for the Turks. Saoud was up in arms instantly. Both Turks and Rashids were his ancient foes. Thus the Sultan of Nedj became and remained throughout a staunch supporter of the allies. He entered into relations with the British Government. The London War Office detailed a Capt. Shakespeare its political representative in Kuweit, as its military agent for Nedj.

Rival Gains Power.

Saoud soon engaged Rashid. After smaller skirmishes, a drawn battle was fought at Mejma on Jan 24, 1915. Capt. Shakespeare, "on special duty" there, was killed in the action. This did not dampen the ardor of the Sultan, however, and Rashid, with all his Arab and Turk cohorts, was decisively defeated.

Meanwhile, farther to the west, along the shores of the Red Sea, Sherif Husein Ibn Ali, a chief who had risen to be Emir of Mecca in 1908, had declared for the allies and had likewise received British support. The Turks soon lost all hold on Jeddah, Mecca and Taif—and were thus practically driven out of the peninsula.

Husein, swelled by his success, declared his independence, and entitled himself "Sultan of the Arabs" in 1916. The allies recognized him as "King of Hedjaz" and allowed him representation at the peace conferenece and at the earlier meetings of the League of Nations.

Ibn Saoud instinctivly recognized in this Husein a dangerous rival who threatened the sovereignty of Nedj by his assumption of the title of "Caliph," nominal head of all the Mohammedans. The Sultan of Nedj, to put it plainly, waxed jealous of the Emir of Mecca. Still the two were ostensibly fighting on the same side. They could not quarrel gracefully, at least not while the war lasted, much as they would have liked to fly at each other's throats. Their relations were described as "friendly, but formal."

Routs Caliph's Army.

In 1919, however, this quasi-friendly feeling was abandoned. A dispute arose over the boundary between Nedj and Hedjaz. Without more ado, the two chiefs came to grips. A battle was fought, in which the Caliph's army lost 4500 men. But European efforts at conciliation stayed further hostilities until this year.

A few months ago Nedj again rose up in arms. Pilgrims to Mecca had complained of ill treatment and lack of hospitality suffered at the hands of the Caliph. They saw in Ibn Saoud the ideal man for this august office, a religious fanatic, a commanding military figure, a romantic personality, a generous chieftain. And Saoud saw his bright opportunity to remove the last obstacle in the way of his supreme ambition, the actual leadership of the whole Moslem world.

Accordingly he gathered all his strength for a mighty effort, the greatest of his career. He defeated the Caliph—King Husein. And at this moment he stands dramatically poised over the Holy City.

To millions of Mohammedans this Prince, son of Princes, from the arid Arabian interior, is a veritable Messiah for their militant faith. His star is still in the ascent. Egypt, Turkey and India are on tiptoes. His next move may have the most vital, perhaps the most awful, consequences for the Western as well as for the Eastern world.

MOUNTAIN SHEEP AND LYNXES FOR ZOO

Animals From Canadian Rockies Were Donated Through Local Taxidermist.

Some new residents of rare personality and unique zoological interest are soon to be added to the Zoo in Forest Park.

They are two mountain sheep, two mountain goats and two bay lynxes—all from the wilds of the Canadian Rockies—and they are expected to arrive, presumably mated as in Biblical history, in the latter part of October. These animals are a gift, costing only freight charges, to the St. Louis Zoo, and under similar terms, there may be expected shortly another consignment of species of Canadian wild life, including grizzly bears and timber wolves.

Supt. George Vierheller, in charge of the Zoo, was informed last week of the prospective shipment of the goats, sheep and lynxes and inquiry, by a Post-Dispatch reporter, developed that the gift of the animals was quite a casual accident and a material contribution, inasmuch as each animal is valued, for zoo purposes, at $1000 each.

Recently, Frank Schwarz, consulting director and one of the founders of the St. Louis Zoo, together with Park Commissioner Pape, journeyed to San Diego, Cal., to attend a meeting of zoo representatives, and later visited San Francisco, where they inspected the aquarium to get ideas for the proposed $400,000 aquarium, voted last year for the St. Louis Zoo.

Their business finished, Schwarz recalled that the St. Louis institution had long been seeking some specimens of the Rocky Mountain timber wolf, whose best known habitat is in Canada. Accordingly, it was suggested they route their return through Canada.

Animals Offered.

At Banff, Shwarz recalled that he had done business in years past with a hunter and trapper living there, and upon inquiry, they learned the former hunter was the town's leading citizen, sharing with another citizen the lease rights of the entire municipality, which is located on the Banff reservation of the Canadian national park system. This park is roughly 150 miles long and 50 miles wide and embraces some of the wildest sections.

Schwarz, who is a taxidermist at 1809 Lafayette avenue, with a clientele from all parts of the world, met his former customer, for the first time, in person. A visit to the Banff headquarters of the park followed, and it was there the St. Louisans were made the astonishing offer—to them—of the animals mentioned. The only consideration, other than the cost of shipment, was that the Canadian National Park System be recognized as the donors by a suitable inscription in the St. Louis Zoo.

Further, the St. Louisans were offered, on the same terms, any of the species of wild life indigenous to the territory. Accordingly, the visitors mentioned particularly the grizzly bear and the timber wolf, their original cause of inquiry. They were informed that timber wolves were to be found, but were wary of capture. They also were promised live specimens of the brush wolf, which Schwarz thinks is a species of timber wolf.

Sees Herd Feeding.

The mountain sheep has long been recognized by hunters as an animal of exceptional agility and is hunted only with long-distance, high-powered rifles. He recounted that their host drove them in an automobile about 50 miles into the mountains, where they dismounted, and leaving the small road, proceeded on foot for about 500 yards.

There, on a mountain slope, were to be seen, through parted foliage, a herd of the sheep, in which he counted 64. Above, on a knoll, but separated from the main herd of young rams, ewes and their young, were a number of old rams, of majestic mien, looking on in placid and superior fashion.

With the notice received at the zoo last week the first consignment of animals was by way of being prepared for shipment, explanation was made that it would require at least 30 days to acclimate and domesticate the animals to zoo environment. It was said that such animals, in certain cases where they have been sent to other zoos, pined away and died within a few months. The local zoo authorities have been seeking all available information as to care and treatment, hoping to avoid such misfortune.

CITY ACTS TO BLOCK SALE OF $3,300,000 OF LACLEDE STOCK

Also Seeks to Intervene in Application of Company to Sell Electric Plant.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Sept. 20.—An application was filed today with the State Public Service Commission by the City of St. Louis, for permission to intervene in an application filed by the Laclede Gas Light Co. of St. Louis, seeking authority to issue and sell $3,300,000 in common stock.

The city also asked permission to intervene in the application of the Laclede company for permission to sell its electric generating plant and down town distributing system to the Phoenix Light, Heat and Power Co., a Laclede subsidiary. This proposed sale, it was said, is to permit segregating the gas and electric properties controlled by the Laclede company in separate corporations, to facilitate financing.

The purpose of the $3,300,000 issue of common stock, it was stated, is to finance numerous improvements planned by the company.

DEEDS TO MAJESTIC HOMES

34 Executed Yesterday ......and to Whom?

NOTHING to equal this has ever before happened in the history of St. Louis home building. Thirty-four deeds executed in a single day—within ten days thirty-four more happy families will move into their Majestic Homes. Remarkable indeed! As remarkable as Majestic Homes, as the plan of home buying and the people to whom the thirty-four deeds were delivered. And who are these fortunate thirty-four? They are busy, ambitious folks engaged in many lines of endeavor. Maybe in one of them you will find your own family counterpart. These are some of the remarkable thirty-four.

MAJESTIC HOMES

IN the thirty-four we find virtually a little community of many vocations, young men on the road to success, settled old couples who have achieved their goal, business men and professional men, men devoting their energies to the arts and sciences; vocations as varied as the needs and interests of our big city, but all with one interest in common, a life of happiness and contentment in a home of their own. In this many-sided happy community we find men of extreme interests; one of the thirty-four is the owner of a chain of gasoline filling stations, another one is an artist.

And in the group we find a number with kindred interests. There is a manufacturer of furniture, a wholesale dealer in drugs and a well-known sales executive and two or three salesmen.

Men who stand high in the affairs of the big corporations are among the group. A railroad executive, three branch managers of big Eastern concerns, the editor of one of our daily papers.

Men of unusually keen judgment in home selection are represented. One of the new Majestic home owners is himself a contractor, one an architect, one a building material jobber, another a real estate dealer.

On the professional side of this little community we find physicians and dentists, an investment broker, an efficiency engineer and a certified accountant.

An Appreciation of Majestic Homes and the Majestic Buying Plan

The object of the Majestic building method is to produce better homes at lowered cost—to build entire communities, but to build each home with a distinctive individuality of its own. And the Majestic buying plan removes the traditional barrier to home ownership. The down payment is no longer necessary. Without penalty or additional cost, a Majestic home can be bought entirely on monthly payments of but little more than rent for the same property.

GANNONDALE

(University City)

A community of the finest homes. At Delmar between the Hanley and North and South Roads. People's Motor Bus, University City line, or University car line to Hanley.

LOS ANGELES

(St. Louis)

A two-hundred acre homeland of true California bungalows, two hundred of them building. Drive out Natural Bridge Road to Lucas and Hunt Road, then three blocks west. Kirkwood-Ferguson car line or bus from Wellston.

Visit the Majestic Communities and the Four Furnished Homes

Two of the homes at Gannondale and two at Los Angeles (St. Louis) have been completely furnished by the interior decorating staff of Stix, Baer & Fuller. Both Gannondale and Los Angeles (St. Louis) are brilliantly illuminated for evening visitors.

MINERS NEED U. S. AID, FARRINGTON ASSERTS

Require Legislative Relief More Than Farmers, Says Head of Illinois Union.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 20.—"Legislation to relieve thousands of miners, who are powerless to appease the hunger of their children with even the cheapest of food, is much more necessary than legislation to help the farmer," according to Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois Mine Workers, who has prepared an article on the subject for the Illinois Miner, official organ of the Illinois Mine Workers.

Legislation for the farmer is being pushed, Farrington charges, because there are approximately 42,000,000 farmers who vote, and only 1,000,000 miners.

"Both the farmer and the miner are suffering from the same cause — overdevelopment, Farrington says. "The farmer cannot find markets for all he grows, or the miner for all he mines. Although both serve the nation with equal devotion, they are not treated with impartial consideration by the politician. The condition of both is desperate. The plight of one is less desperate than the other, yet the politicians' concern is for the one whose burden is the least heavy.

Fight to Get Enough Bread.

"The farmer is always assured of enough to eat. The miners' fight is to get enough to ward off the pangs of hunger. The farmers' problem is to gain enough to repay money borrowed to buy land and other chattels that go to create a lasting state of prosperity for himself. The miners' problem is to get enough to eat to sustain life from day to day. The farmers' battle is to acquire property, the miners to obtain bread. No farmer's home need to be disturbed by the famished cry of hungry children, with anguished parents standing by in despair and powerless to appease their hunger with even the cheapest food; thousands of miners' homes are thus disturbed.

"Of the two the miners' plight is indeed the most desperate and precarious. Ever ready to work, but denied the chance, rendering service surpassed by no other class, the miner lives from hand to mouth in hunger and destitution, bearing with fortitude privations greater and more vital than the poorest farmer has to bear. Yet no politician has come forth to raise his voice in the miners' behalf. The papers teem with stories of governmental anxiety over the plight of the farmer and the reason is 42,000,000 farmers and only 1,000,000 miners.

Barred From Organizing.

"Out of his distress, the farmer boldly proclaims that he will combine to control the selling price of grain and the Government encourages the plan. If the miner were to even look like he was going to control the selling price of coal he would be arrested for criminal conspiracy. We have already had that experience, though we were not guilty of the charge. The Government advises the farmer to organize for his protection and the courts grant injunctions to restrain the miner from doing the thing the farmer is encouraged to do.

"Farm boards and bureaus have been created by the Government to finance the farmer with the people's money and now a governmental commission is to be appointed by the President to devise means of helping him and Congress is to again apply itself to the task of solving his troubles, and remove the obstacles from his path to prosperity, and while this is going on the mental capacity of every one is being taxed to evolve some scheme whereby the miner may be forced to surrender part of the pittance he now has. With increased prosperity for the farmer will come increased poverty for the miner. If the farmer gets more for his wheat, the miner will be forced to pay more for his bread.

Miner No Less Deserving.

"The farmer is a deserving citizen, but so is the miner. Because of the service he renders, the farmer is entitled to a condition of prosperity, but the same is true of the miner. The miner is no less deserving and of the two, the miner, is the most in need of help. What is to be held legal if done by the farmer should not be illegal if done by the miner. If the farmer is to be allowed to design his own way, in the interest of his own prosperity and if he is to receive Government aid to accomplish his salvation, then the miner should be accorded equal consideration, and if he is not given equal consideration those responsible will be guilty of manifest discrimination and must be regarded by the people as nothing more than plain vote-hunting politicians pandering to the largest group of voters, instead of worthy public servants honestly trying to treat all classes of our citizenship with equal justice without regard to the number of votes involved.

"We envy the farmer nothing. We want him to have everything he can get, but if he is to be the recipient of governmental bounty we want the miner to share in the bounty and anything less will not be equal justice.

"Hunger, want, poverty and privation is present in the home of every mine worker. Congressmen and Senators should be aroused to the fact, that the miner, as well as the farmer, is in need of governmental aid."

CARPENTERS IN TOKIO HAVE AFTERNOON TEA

Practice Is Not Social Function—Conversation Is Rarely Heard at That Time.

By Mail From the Tokio Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

TOKIO, Sept. 2.—There are at least two reasons why most members of the building trades in America never in the world would get along with their Japanese fellows.

For example, I'd like to see Maurice Cassidy or Harry Lindeman going over a job along in the afternoon and find all the boys having tea!

But that's what you can expect among the workers over here. Members of the building trades, like every other person in Japan, it seems, have to have their tea at 4 o'clock each and every afternoon. Just as regularly as that time comes 'round they stop for about 20 minutes and take tea.

Those that I can observe out of the office window here squat not 10 yards from this desk. They squat, too, never using chairs, which are part of the "foreign" culture. Feet apart, bodies forward, they ease down on their haunches and go to it.

Just Sip in Silence.

It's interesting to watch. Rarely do they say anything. Just open their little boxes, pull out food of one sort and another, pour their own tea into tiny little cups and munch and sip away in silence.

The idea isn't to have a social. They don't have the "gabfest" so much a part of tea as it is known about 3:30 each afternoon in some society in America. That goes on at the Imperial Hotel, where the "foreigners" foregather. It may go on at Japanese houses. But the hard-working carpenters that are my neighbors go about tea with a sort of silence that makes it a ritual—and a source of no little nutriment.

The other reason is that these boys work all the time, it seems. They don't have strikes one after another and they apparently don't have to bother about whether metal trim belongs to the carpenters or the lathers. They invariably are at work whenever anybody comes down to the office in the morning, and they work until it's too dark for them to see in the evening.

Wage Scale Lowered.

That would be against the "big idea" in America. It may not be right, from one point of view. Perhaps these carpenters that are putting up this little tea-house get paid by the job and when they get through they can do another one. At any rate they are apparently mighty eager to put the buildings up and go at it with some of the intensity of beavers.

You have to admire that will to do, even though you may believe in a 45-hour week and $1.50-an-hour wages.

The wage scale for building tradesmen in Tokio has dropped in recent months, the influx of carpenters and kindred crafts folowing the earthquake having glutted the market. These men were paid six to seven yen a day, or about $2.75 to $3, but this "exorbitant" scale now has dropped to an average of about four to four and one half yen daily.

There are some 23,000 carpenters in Tokio, a city of 3,000,000, while the other crafts in building trades are estimated to total less than 5000. Mat makers, plasterers and masons are reported to have been receiving an average of about four yen a day, or less.

Have No Labor Union.

This is something that stands out against the same scales in the United States, where a plasterer has been getting more than a carpenter and each makes enough before lunch to pay a Japanese tradesman for a couple of days.

They have no labor unions, however, over here, so it may be that is the cause. They tend toward it however, and there is a Japanese Federation of Labor, although it has no membership among the building tradesmen.

The carpenters have a sort of clan system which is the nearest thing to a union over here. They work for a man as an apprentice and after he has taught them the trade they continue to work under his direction. He gets the jobs and gives assignments to members of his clan or guild.

In return for their loyalty, he usually takes care of them in times when there isn't enough work to go around. He is a sort of subcontractor, and he is the labor leader of these workers.

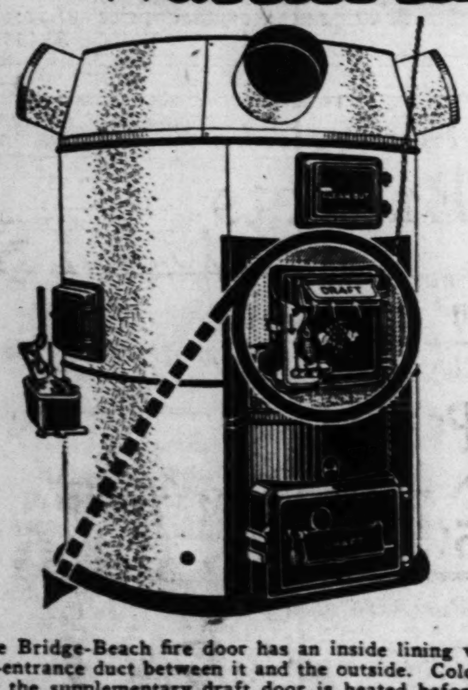
SUPERIOR STOVES & RANGES

For nearly 90 years Bridge-Beach has built stoves, ranges and heating appliances. This long experience, and the ability of an old established organization combine to make the Bridge-Beach Furnace the outstanding heating system of today. To this add a low first cost and small upkeep cost and you have the reasons for Bridge-Beach popularity.

BRIDGE-BEACH
Warm Air Furnaces



What do you know about heating? Do you realize that dry, dead oppressive air in a home causes even hardy house plants to wither and die? Have you ever thought that this kind of air in your home is harmful to you and your family just as it is to plants?

Bridge-Beach means lots of live, moist, healthful heat—always. A Bridge-Beach Furnace heats the air to the proper temperature, automatically adds just the right amount of moisture and then circulates it throughout your home.

Be sure—be safe! Insist on Bridge-Beach for healthful heat. Reduce the chances of nose irritations, colds, sore throats, influenza, grippe and other ailments that start with improper heating.

The Bridge-Beach fire door has an inside lining with a 2-in. air-entrance duct between it and the outside. Cold air entering the supplementary draft door is heated before it passes into the combustion chamber—it mixes freely with the hydro-carbon gases and aids combustion. Chiefly valuable when burning soft coal, especially after a fresh charge is added. Reduces smoke nuisance.

Before you buy any furnace, investigate the Bridge-Beach. Send for illustrated book, "Bridge-Beach Furnaces." Write, or phone Colfax 300—ask for Furnace Department.

LUMP COAL FASHION COSTLY TO BURNERS

Size More Wasteful, but Popularity Increases Its Price 25 Cents.

Fashion in coal this season is lump coal. Most domestic consumers want it and nothing else, and the result is that lump has advanced 25 cents a ton. With lump popular, the egg and nut coal market is falling off, St. Louis' smoke screen promises to be heavier than before, and the small dealers are likely to have a hard time making ends meet.

Like most fashions, the prevailing preference for lump is based on no good reason. It has no sounder foundation for existing than a vogue for bobbed hair or short skirts. It just comes about. Furthermore, it is injurious, and coal experts say its use can only be attributed to the ignorance of the average buyer.

Lump coal burns more wastefully than any other domestic size. Coal, to burn properly, must have the proper amount of oxygen, or more broadly, air. When lump is thrown on the grate, large waste spaces between the lumps follow. When smaller pieces of coal are thrown on a grate, the bed is certain to more compact.

These large air channels in lump beds are injurious. The coal is not burned thoroughly for the air regulation is disproportionate. Unburned gases in too great proportion to be burnt at the top of the fire, are given off, and these potentially inflamable and heat-producing elements fly out the chimney as soot and become dirt producers.

The Southern Illinois coal district is to a great extent, a lump coal district. At present it is selling at the mine for $2.25 or $2.40 a ton, and being retailed here for about $4.75 or $5 a ton. Some retailers are trying to convince their patrons that egg and nut, and not lump, is the coal to us if they wish to keep fires burning efficiently and with a minimum of smoke.

LINDENWOOD COLLEGE WILL HONOR REV. ROEMER TUESDAY

Tenth Anniversary of Educator as President of School to Be Celebrated.

"Roemer day" will be observed at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Tuesday morning, to honor the tenth anniversary of the Rev. John L. Roemer as president of the college.

The Rev. John W. MacIvor, president of the board and pastor of Second Presbyterian Church, will preside. The Rev. David M. Skilling, vice president of the board and pastor of Webster Groves Presbyterian Church, will give the principal address. Others who will participate are the Rev. S. C. Palmer, retired; the Rev. R. S. Calder of the Bible chair at Lindenwood and the Rev. B. P. Fullerton, for many years home mission secretary of the Presbyterian Church in the South.

Dr. Roemer became president of Lindenwood shortly after large donations were made to the college by the late Col. James Gay Butler, whose gifts and legacies to the college, with those of his wife, totaled about $4,000,000. Four large buildings have been erected since Dr. Roemer became president. The campus has been enlarged from 34 to 138 acres. The college has grown from a junior college to an accredited four-year college for girls. Its attendance has quadrupled.

WEDS GIRL WHO TOOK POISON FEARING MARRIAGE DEFERRED

William Safron Takes Mabel Hyman, 19, to Justice of Peace, When Suicide Attempt Fails.

Miss Bessie Hyman, 19 years old, of 3128 Sheridan avenue, swallowed a small quantity of poison at 6 a. m. yesterday while brooding over the prospect of a postponement of her marriage to William Safron, 22 years old, of 2803A Gamble street, which was set for yesterday.

She told police that Safon, on Friday, had informed her the marriage would have to be postponed for awhile, because of objections of his parents, and so she wanted to die.

When Safron heard of her effort at suicide and found at city hospital that Miss Hyman had recovered sufficiently to go through the ceremony, they, accompanied by Miss Hyman's father, went before Justice of the Peace Schuler in the office of the Marriage License Clerk in City Hall and were married.

BOSTON POLICE GUARD ROADS TO STOP ALCOHOL SHIPMENTS

100,000 Gallons, Smuggled From Belgium, Said to Be Stored in Cape Cod.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Sept. 20.—A special squad of police was assigned today to guard roads leading into Boston from the Cape Cod district in an effort to prevent shipment here of large stocks of alcohol known to be stored at Cape points.

Because of close surveillance, according to the police, much smuggled Belgian alcohol has been accumulating at landing places along Cape Cod and a short supply in Boston has caused bootleggers to double prices. The police estimate that 100,000 gallons now is stored in the Cape Cod district,

Gary's Auto Stuck In Macon Mud by Quarter-Inch Rain

Highway Chairman Forced to Go by Train to Columbia Friday Evening.

Theodore Gary, chairman of the State Highway Commission, in St. Louis yesterday on private business, told how mud roads forced him to abandon an automobile trip from Macon to Columbia Friday. He made the trip by railroad to fill a speaking engagement.

"I would have driven the 70 miles in two and one-half hours in dry weather but after a quarter of an inch of rain early Friday morning I doubt if I could have made it at all," he said. "I turned back after the first four miles out of Macon. You simply can't go through the dirt roads with a heavy machine after such rains."

Gary conferred yesterday with Miss Florence J. Wade, vice chairman of the State-Wide Good Roads Association, concerning routine matters of the campaign for Proposal No. 5, for speeding up the road building program.

HUGUENOT SHRINES IN EUROPE VISITED

American Commission Is Entertained by Protestants in France.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 3.—Culminating with the dedication of a memorial tablet in the little town of Avesnes, near the Belgian border, the birthplace of Jesse de Forest, one of the pioneers in the settlement of New York, the members of the Huguenot-Walloon New Netherland commission have just completed an interesting trip through Turope, visiting most of the spots connected with Huguenot history, and in France being received everywhere in Protestant circles. The official party has now broken up, and the members are seeking their respective ways homeward.

Wherever the commissioners went, they distributed the new 50-cent pieces struck off at the mint to celebrate New York's tercentenary, and the part played in the metropolis' foundation by the sturdy Walloons and Dutch. Queen Wilhelmina of Holland, King Albert of Belgium and President Doumergue of France are among the most prominent recipients.

The stay in Paris of the Huguenot-Walloon commission was largely devoted to visiting the historic landmarks of Protestatism, including the home of Admiral de Coligny, the church of St. Germaine l'Auxerrois, from whose belfry pealed out the signal for the massacre of St. Bartholomew, and the buildings of the University of Paris.

The Sunday of the official visit was marked by services in the American Portestant church in the Rue de Berri, and at the church of the Oratoire, near the Louvre, the principal edifice of the French Reformed church in the capital. During their stay, the American delegates were piloted by Pastor Andre Monod, one of the leaders of French Protestantism.

The party entered France from Italy, where they had gone to visit the Waldensian communities. Receptions were offered at Nimes, Montpellier, Arles, Carcassonne, Montauban, Bordeaux and La Rochelle, all Protestant centers, the last-named seaport city having given it's name to New Rochelle, New York. Down in the Cevennes mountains the party had the opportunity of visiting the famous "Museum of the Desert," which is full of souvenirs of the war of the Camisards, and there attended an 'assembly" of the church in the open air, which united more than 3000 hardy Protestant mountaineers. Then they repaired to Aigues-Mortes to see the Cour de Constance, where the Huguenot women were imprisoned in the eighteenth century, and where they carved in the stone walls of their jail the watchword: "Resist "

PARIS STIRRED BY REPORT SOVIET WILL SELL PAINTINGS

Fears America Would Get Many of Them; Doubt Cast on Truth of Dispatches.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 20.—The report that the Soviet Government has decided to sell the pictures of the Hermitage Museum, Petrograd, caused a considerable sensation in Paris. It was pointed out immediately that in the present state of her finances, France could not hope to acquire any of the Rembrandts, Raphaels, Leonardo Da Vincis, Velasquezes, Michelangelos, Murillos, Titians, Hals or the other innumerable masterpieces which, it is believed, would for the most part, find their way to America.

The report, at least as originally printed, was treated as a gross exaggeration, although it was noted that the League of Nations recently has made an inventory of Vienna's artistic teasures without any protest being raised and, it was commented that such inventory would have no meaning unless the possibility of selling had been at least entertained.

Alexander Troubnikoff, former assistant curator of the painting department of the Hermitage Museum, allayed much uneasiness by giving his opinion that the report was a colossal practical joke. He was still in fairly close touch with friends remaining in Russia and knew the present curator very well, having long worked with him.

M. Troubnikoff explained that the works in the Russian museum were greatly increased by the addition of private collections and by the internationalisation of castles throughout the country. Many of these pictures, however, were found to be unworthy of a place in the galleries, so they were left in cellars. Many also were by the smaller masters, who aready were sufficiently represented. It was pictures like these, he added, that were to be sold, not the old master pictures.

DRIVE FOR ST. MARY'S FUND TO BE MADE IN OCTOBER

An eight-day campaign to raise $1,500,000 for the Sisters of St. Mary, to be used in paying off the debt on the new St. Mary's Hospital and in making a social service hospital of St. Mary's Infirmary, 1536 Papin street, will begin October 22.

Decision to launch the campaign was made Friday at a conference of about 75 men and women who have pledged themselves to completion of the drive. Under the plan adopted at the conference donors will be asked to take our five-year endowment insurance policies which are to be payable irrevocably to the Sisters of St. Mary either at the end of five years or at the death of the holder of the policy before that time.

Four hundred life insurance solicitors will write the policies for the campaign which has been indorsed by Archbishop Glennon.

The Sisters of St. Mary came to St. Louis in 1874 and the four or five nuns in the band were housed by the Ursuline order until they could get quarters for themselves. Three years later they began to build St. Mary's Infirmary which is still in operation.

Since the establishment of the infirmary more than 62,000 patients have been cared for and of this number 25,000 have been free patients. The infirmary and the new hospital are units of the hospital system affiliated with the medical school of St. Louis University.

Rivalry Is Keen Among Sororities To Enlist Freshmen

New Registrants at Washington University Are Entertained Elaborately by Members of Seven Societies.

THAT St. Louis is continuing to hold its own as a college town is indicated aplenty this year through the social activities attendant upon the annual pledging of Washington University girl students for the various sororities.

Washington University now sponsors seven sororities, Kappa Alpha Theta, Kappa Kappa Gamma, Gamma Phi Beta, Delta Gamma, Alpha Phi Omega and Phi Mu, and the members of all, since last Wednesday, have been striving to excel one another in giving the 100 or more freshmen at the university a merry whirl.

Luncheons, receptions, teas, dinners at country clubs and elaborate informal affairs have been the order of the day and the night since last Wednesday when the "limited rushing" began. Last night, the "unlimited rushing" was ushered in, and from now on festivities and entertainments for the women freshmen will be even more frequent.

The freshmen are for the most part former students of local high schools, Hosmer and Lenox Halls, Principia, Mary Institute, Lindell Hall and the Webster High School. They are being entertained thrillingly and gloriously, or "rushed," as the college girl puts it, and some of the more popular girls have been honored with invitations to join four or five sororities.

Wednesday evening the entertainments, under university regulations, will come to an end, and the formal pledging will take place. Until then, no one knows just how the freshmen will be aligned sororically.

An interesting engagement announced last week is that of Miss Charlotte Ray Spencer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Branch F. Spencer of 4468 West Pine boulevard, to Mansfield Ralph Cleary of Chicago. The announcement was made to close friends at a bridge luncheon given by Mrs. C. E. Chesbro of 5635 Waterman avenue at the Glen Echo Country Club. The wedding will take place at the home of the bride-elect's parents, in the latter part of October.

"Know Your City Study Groups" are being organized by the Board of Religious Organizations to meet at various churches, clubs or other centers. There will also be a series of "tours," visiting different institutions and, in conjunction with other agencies, certain sections of the city where problems exist in sanitation and housing. With Dr. George B. Mangold as Educational Director the curriculum of study will be supplemented by courses of addresses by distinguished speakers from other cities, who will discuss Americanization, child labor, international welfare, also problems of wage-earning women, mental and social hygiene and the family.

WHAT TO WEAR

Timely Comments by Shirley Deane

I am more and more impressed with the fact that Sonnenfeld's is a House of Specialty Shops, each one complete in itself, with a tremendous stock and wide variety of styles; and yet all working in harmony, so that the task of choosing becoming and harmonious costumes from head to toe is one of delightful simplicity. The Fall offerings are so varied, I can touch on only a few of the special groups. Shirley Deane

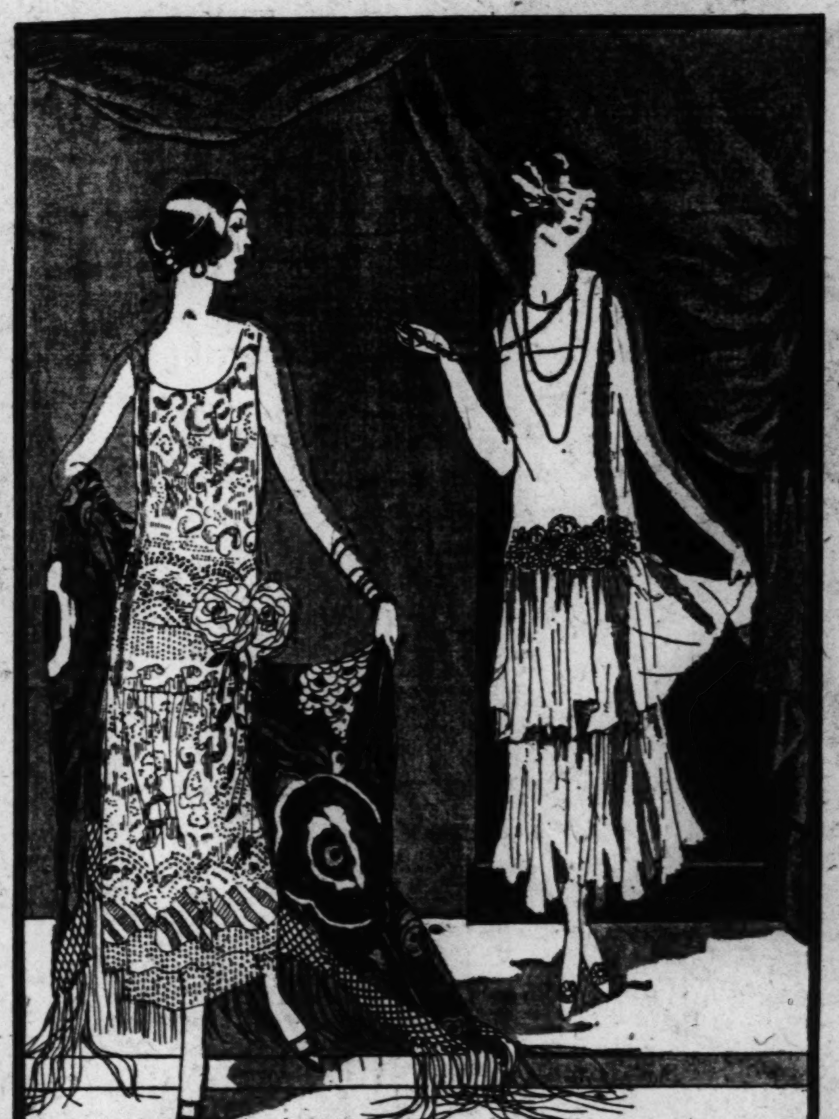
Silk Dresses

—as you all know, are enjoying a popularity that is almost unparalleled. It is probably because of the beauty and durability of the fabrics in vogue.

Crepe satins, with their brilliant luster; failles and bengalines, so crisp for tailored modes; satin-faced Cantons that smartly combine both sides of the fabrics—these and other materials, in tunics, redingotes and flaring models, are frankly irresistible. Prices range from

$25 to $125

(Fourth Floor.)



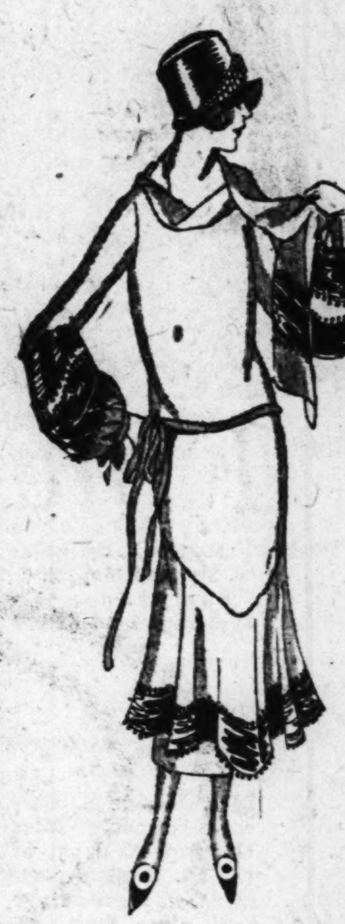
Cloth Dresses

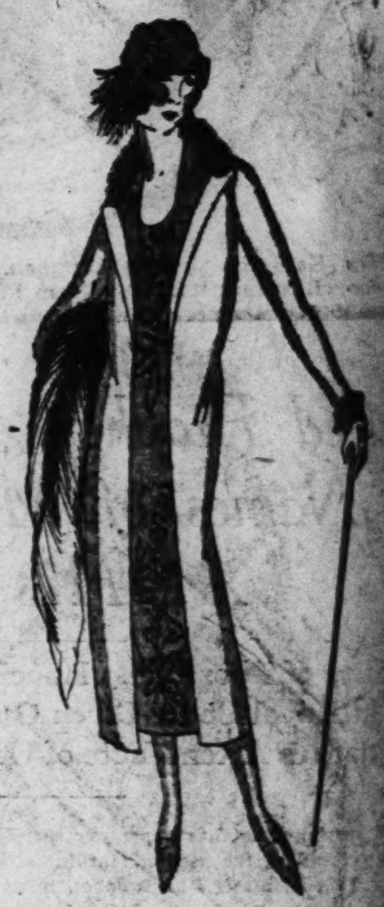
—are revealed in so many clever and original new modes that it is perplexing to know how to describe them to you in a few sentences.

I notice shutter green figuring prominently with sand and other wood shades with vivid touches of color introduced through embroideries, silks or novelty trimmings. Buttons are used and many fine tuckings. All wear a proud air of being faultlessly tailored. Prices range from

$25 to $95

(Fourth Floor.)





Evening Gowns

I scarcely know how to begin to talk about the Evening Gowns. I can picture a dazzling ballroom scene when I behold them, with every type of beauty represented, from the golden-haired blonde to the blushing brunette, from the dashing sub-deb to the distinguished silver-haired matron. Every type of Gown is represented, and in such a range of sizes that the collection is most satisfactory. Chiffons, Georgettes, crepes, cut-velvets, panne velvets, satins, metallic laces—such an array—in white and black and vivid colors trimmed with beads, with rhinestones, furs and feathers. Yes, feathers are very good, either as hem trimming or as decorative motifs.

$45 to $195

(Costume Salon—Fourth Floor.)

You Will Need a Top Coat and a Winter Coat

Top Coats

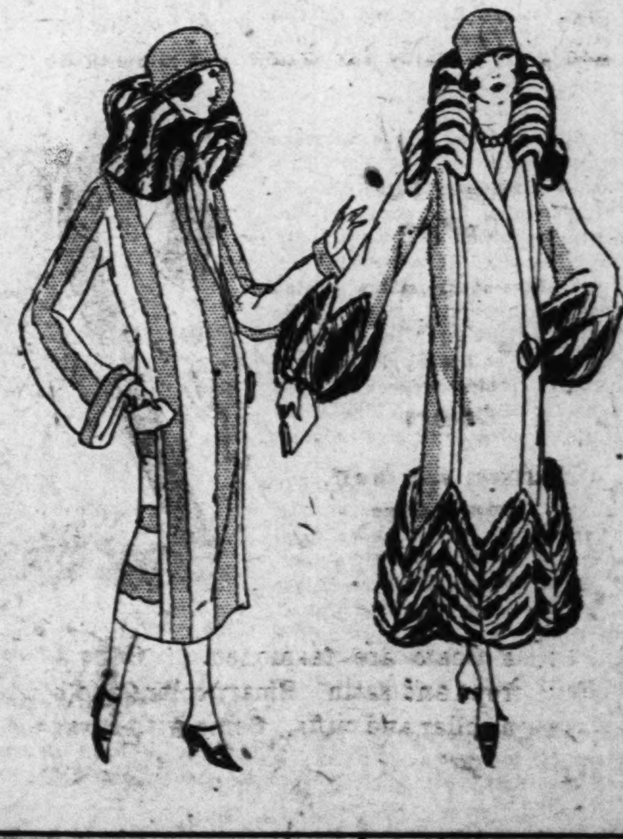
—have a sports air

that needs no defining. They are mannishly tailored, and combine durability with chic and inexpensiveness. All through September and our Indian Summer the Top Coat will be worn for cool days and chillier evenings.

Some have fur collars, but for the most part they are plain. Chinchilla is very smart, and cut polaire. Downy wool, cut suede, block angora, velvatone and many other fabrics are also extremely correct. They are priced from

$25 to $95

(Coat Shop—Third Floor.)



Winter Coats

—are fur-trimmed

—in most elaborate style. There are big, deep shawl collars, and delightful cuffs, and bands and borders, too, of fine furs. And the most luxurious ones are not always the most expensive.

The fabrics this year are very beautiful, the surfaces usually of a hard finish that will wear. With the disappearance of the Cape, they have become more sumptuous in style—graceful and wrappy, and elaborate in adornment. Prices range from.

"Why I Buy All of My Apparel at Garland's."

Thos. W. Garland, Inc.,
St. Louis, Mo.
Gentlemen:

That woman is fortunate who has discovered HER store—where everything of the world's best products for her personal wear is displayed in infinite variety for her convenient inspection; and where she may buy with the safe assurance that she is buying judiciously and free from all the worry and annoyance of indiscriminate shopping.

Fifteen years ago I discovered MY store; for all these years I have bought there exclusively—and always with complete satisfaction.

MY store is a pleasant store; quiet, unhurried, attractive; a friendly store; with attaches who rarely change, and who are competent and well-informed.

It is an honorable store—where nothing is misrepresented and every transaction is fairly and liberally performed.

And it is a modern and complete store—whose continued success is a constant proof of the ability of its executives and of its values and its prices.

That's MY store—GARLAND'S.

Signed: Mrs. T. P. McGrath,

AUTUMN MILLINERY OPENING

ONCE again we invite the women of St. Louis to visit us during the days of our formal opening of the Fall Style Season. It is a source of great pride to us to invite you, this time, to see the dictates of Madame Fashion in surroundings most appropriate. For your convenience Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday have been set aside as opening days.

This year the masculine rules the mode with smart derby and sailor styles, postilion crowns, variations of the Directoire, the cloche and other French interpretations, bearing the names of such well-known creators as Laurel, Belart, Chekanow, Blue Bird, Rawak, Kibel, Hayman and others. Prices scale from $5 to $25.

Apparel of Distinction

GAYETY is the keynote in Outer-Apparel this season. One is pleased to realize that yesterday's somber hues have given way to the artful colorings of nature so deftly applied in the form of embroidery, beadings, braidings and the unusual shades of fur.

THE NEW COATS are studies in line straight and slender models, only slightly flaring from the shoulders—with lavish collars, trimmings and edgings of thick soft furs. Prices are from $45 to $195.

THE FROCKS follow versions of the tunic, slender, beltless, almost tailored, silhouettes, many fringed and with a clever dash of color. Prices scale from $25 to $75.

Beaded Dinner and Evening Costumes in white and pastel shades—featured in the simple lines now so essential.

Tailored Suits in the long, straight lines, of Poiret Twills and Twill Cords; priced from $25 to $75.

The Stylish Stout Rubber Reducing Girdle is boned at sides, at front and back—so that it prevents the flesh from falling into "pockets" that occur in unboned Girdles!

It's a lovely peach pink rubber "brocaded" in effect. All its trimmings are of an exactly matching tint. The garter clasps and buckles are handsomely gilt finished.

You have choice of closed-front (step-in) or clasp-front styles, either with or without back lacings.

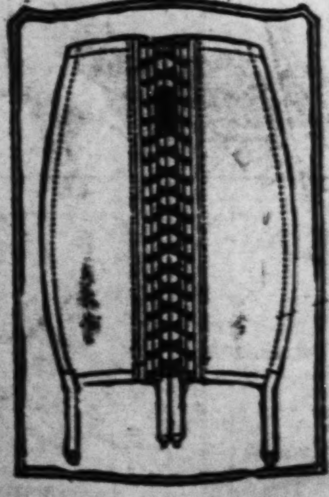
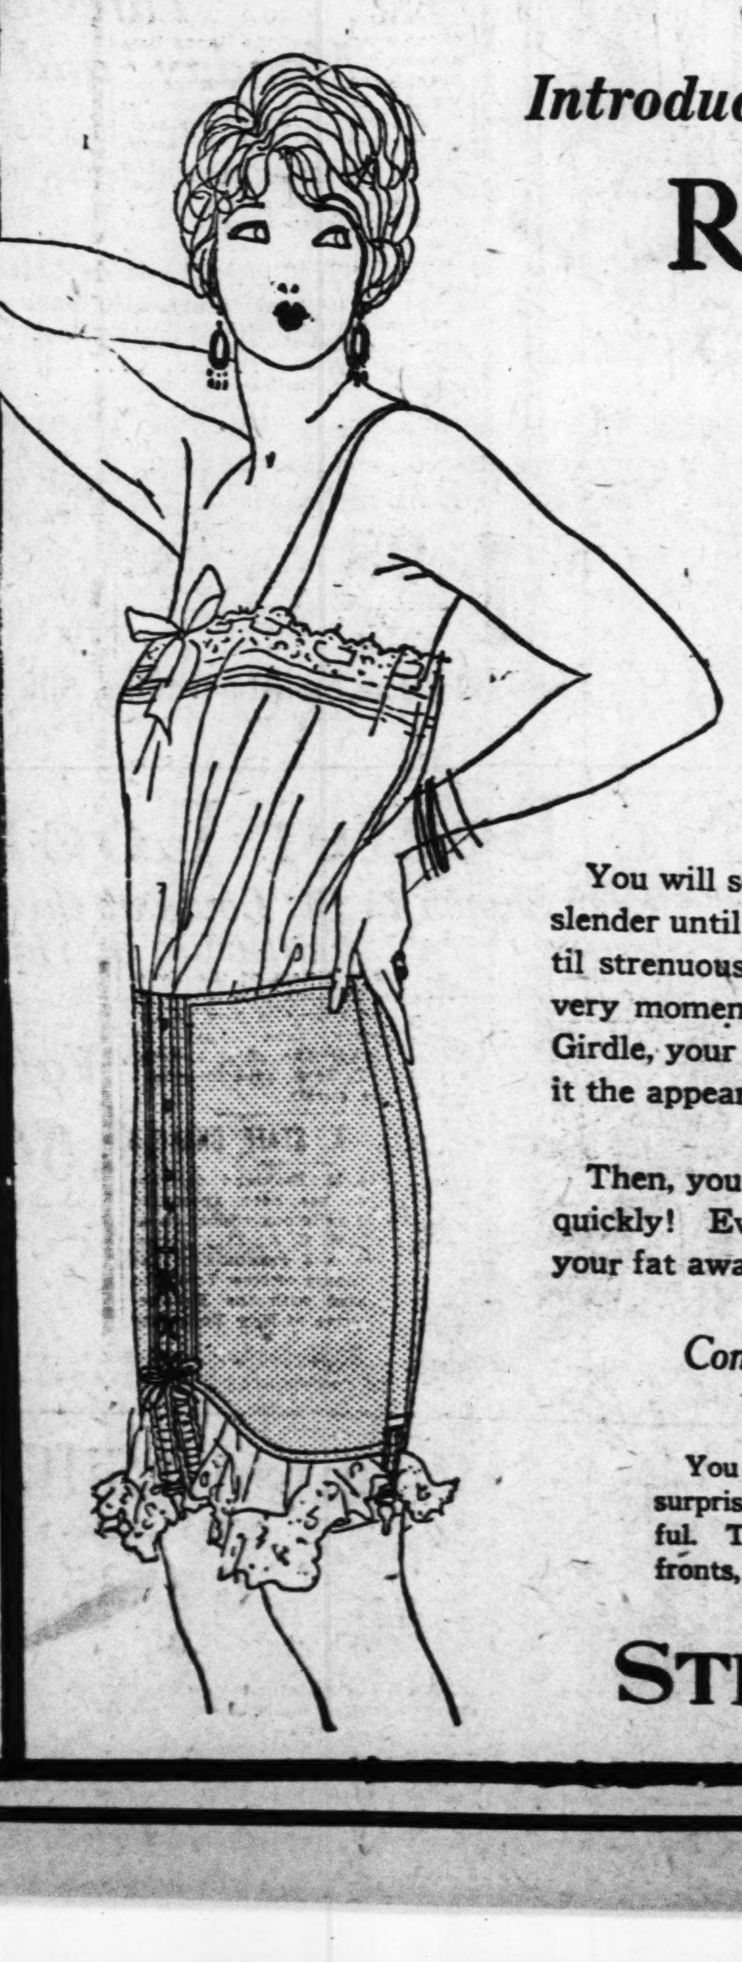
The Stylish Stout Rubber Reducing Girdle is made of an amazingly strong rubber—perfectly cured. It seems exactly like a "second-skin" in its clinging fit, yet it irons out the fat ridges, gives a beautiful firmness to the flesh, and a length of line that will charm you!





Introducing the New "Stylish Stout"
Rubber Reducing Girdle

$10

BENEATH those extra pounds are lovely lines—lines of youth and grace that you can bring out by wearing this new Stylish Stout Rubber Reducing Girdle. You can "melt away" the excess pounds and mold your figure into the straight and slender lines that are the basis for true chic in these days of tube-like silhouettes.

You will see, by just one fitting, that this girdle enables you to look slender until you really are. No longer do you have to look stout until strenuous exercise or starvation diet makes you thin! From the very moment that you put on the Stylish Stout Rubber Reducing Girdle, your figure takes on the fashionable, straight lines that give it the appearance of slenderness.

Then, you begin to reduce—gently, comfortably, and—best of all—quickly! Every hour you spend in this Reducing Girdle helps melt your fat away—whether you work, play or rest in it.

If you weigh more than you like to, you'll surely want to choose one of these new Reducing Girdles before you buy your new Autumn clothes.

Come to Our Corset Department to See This Beautiful New Reducing Girdle

You will be surprised to find what an attractive garment it is—surprised that such very durable rubber could be made so beautiful. There are styles for every figure type—step-ins and clasp-fronts, back-lacing and non-lacing models. (Second Floor.)

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES OF MISSOURIANS IN CAPITOL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Although he has retired as General of the armies, entertainments continue for Gen. John J. Pershing which threatens the quiet he has been seeking to complete his memoirs and his reports as head of the National Defense Commission.

The heads of army branches and departments and their assistants gave a luncheon on Wednesday for Gen. Pershing which was attended by Secretary of War Weeks, and Assistant Secretary of War Dwight W. Davis of St. Louis.

Robert Woods Bliss of St. Louis, American Minister to Sweden, and Mrs. Bliss, will come to Washington for two months on Oct. 1. While here they will occupy their new home in Georgetown, on the outskirts of Washington. This house was the home of John C. Calhoun and is of Colonial type of architecture. Mrs. Bliss, who is somewhat of an architect herself, had plans made which converted the splendid old mansion into a modern French chateau with formal gardens and one of the largest outdoor swimming pools in Washington. It will rival the outdoors swimming pool at Boundary Castle, the home of Mrs. John B. Henderson, widow of the late Senator from Missouri, which she lends each summer to the diplomatic corps. Mr. and Mrs. Bliss will entertain at a number of house parties while they are in Washington.

Representative Charles L. Faust of St. Joseph, Mo., has returned to Washington for the winter and taken an apartment at Wardman Park Hotel.

Arrivals from Europe this week included Senator Selden P. Spencer, who went to Switzerland to attend the meeting of the International Parliamentary Union. Mrs. Spencer, who has been spending much of the season in Atlantic City during the Senator's absence, went to New York to meet him and they both came to Washington and reopened their home. Before Congress convenes, Senator and Mrs. Spencer will go to St. Louis to spend the early fall.

Mrs. David Kaime and Miss Gladys Kaime of Washington and St. Louis have gone to Crawford House, in the White Mountains, where they will pass the autumn season.

The annual diplomatic tennis tournament on the tennis courts at Boundary Castle, the home of Mrs. John B. Henderson, began this week.

The report of the editor-in-chief of the quarterly of the Kappa Beta Si sorority was made by Louise S. Grant Smith of St. Louis at the sixteenth annual convention at Washington last week. The organization voted to thank Miss Smith for her work in circulating the news of the organization throughout the membership in 31 universities and colleges. Miss Smith was one of the special guests received by President and Mrs. Coolidge Friday noon.

Mrs. Bessie Parker Bruggeman, chairman of the Employes' Compensation Service, was a special guest at Lawyers' Night of the Business and Professional Woman's Section of the Woman's City Club.

Mrs. Phillip North Moore will arrive in Washington early next week to take up the work to be considered at the meeting of the Executive Council of the National Council of Women, of which she is president, in regard to arranging for the quinquennial meeting of the International Council of Women, in May.

About 80% Wool

From England's Best Mills

25 Blankets for $87.50

EXTRA!— This is the best Blanket news that has come to St. Louisans since the memorable sale of Army Blankets held here in 1919. To get the price so low it was necessary to buy more than a million Blankets. This the English government did, but kept the greater part for home and colonial consumption, only a limited quantity being allotted for sale in America, of which these Blankets are a part and the first big sale to be held in St. Louis.

These Are Gray, Brown and Khaki Blankets

in medium and darker shades, entirely different from the usual army Blankets. They are cheerful and fashionable in color—shading in the various colors now so much in favor.

They were made for the British government, but were never in camps, as they were manufactured since the Armistice, some of them as recently as two years ago. To reduce unemployment England kept on making Blankets after the war closed. Most of them are stamped lightly with government marks—the British government inspector's mark, showing that they have complied with the rigid specifications.

All the Blankets are brand new—clean as a hound's tooth.

Everybody Will Want These Blankets

They are ideal for camps, homes, sleeping porches, hotels, yachts, boat houses, for automobile robes, for a throw-down on the floor for baby.

They are fine enough to use in any home, city or country.

They are without competition—price, quality and usefulness considered. You couldn't get the same practical use out of a Blanket costing less than $6 or $7. Yet these are $3.75.

KAISER FURIOUS OVER THE PRINCE'S ACTIVITY

Exile, Still Hoping for Old Power, Angered by Ex-Crown Heir's Designs.

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

DOORN, Sept. 1.—Life at the Chateau of Doorn has become, particularly during the past few months, extremely animated. Every day, almost, sees the arrival of fine automobiles bringing Princes, ex-ambassadors, former ministers and generals who had served under the old monarchial regime in Germany. Some of the visitors leave after a day or two, but others prolong their stay, residing for the time in expensive "pensions" where they make an ostentatious display of their war decorations and pay almost daily visits in full dress uniform to the ex-Kaiser.

The former Emperor appears to be doing everything possible to entertain and attract to himself the sympathies of all German monarchist and military circles.

Consort Is Ambitious.

His consort, Herminie, who hopes some day to become empress of Germany, seconds her husband in these efforts in the most active manner, and with all the grace at her command, by holding grand receptions and entertainments.

All these activities have for their principal object, according to what is related in the best informed quarters, to counteract similar ambitious projects entertained by the former Crown Prince. It is even said that the rivalry between father and son has developed recently into a state of latent warfare, pursued mercilessly on both sides.

Makes the Ex-Kaiser Angry.

The activity displayed since his return to Germany by the former Crown Prince in political circles, especially among the Nationalists and Monarchists and the younger generation of militarists, rumors of which reach the ex-Kaiser from Berlin, serve to render the latter furious against his son. The Prince, on his side, is said to show but little of either respect or admiration for the personages of the old regime and its time-honored traditions.

The ex-Crown Prince would seem to be desirous of breaking definitely with the ideas and personages of the past, and even to be willing to find himself at the head of a regime purely democratic, provided that it was at the same time nationalist.

The former Emperor, on the contrary, clings desperately to the ideas and persons of the past, and shows himself a bitter and unchangeable enemy to all democratic sentiments.

MANUAL FOR AMERICANIZATION WORKERS HERE ISSSUED

Designed for Use of Teachers and Social Workers Who Come in Contact With Foreign Born.

A manual for Americanization workers in St. Louis has been compiled and is being distributed by a committee from the Department of Americanization of the Community Council. It is designed for the use of teachers and social workers who are in contact with the foreign-born population.

Neighborhood schools in districts where the foreign-born population is large should be utilized to the fullest extent, the manual recommends. Trips to such public and historical places as municipal institutions, the Postoffices, Art Museum, Jefferson Memorial and Jefferson Barracks are suggested as valuable aids in Americanization.

Workers in the Americanization field are urged to manifest a spirit of friendliness, without patronizing airs, and to recognize fully the contributions of the foreign-born to American life. The ultimate aim, the manual states, is to make the foreigner feel that he belongs to St. Louis and St. Louis belongs to him.

Public and private organizations are co-operating with the council's Department on Americanization. The privately supported social agencies recruit and develop classes in Americanization and turn them over to the public classes. The instruction to these classes includes an outline of the naturalization laws and the etiquette of the flag.

IMMIGRATION TIDE TO SOUTH AMERICA

Ports Crowded With Newcomers, Anxious to Come to U. S., but Barred Here.

Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News.
(Copyright, 1924.)

RIO JANEIRO, Brazil, Sept. 10. —Constantly increasing numbers of Europeans are being brought into South America by the Atlantic shipping lines which formerly enjoyed a profitable business carrying emigrants to the United States. The shipping companies may place more of their large ships on the South American run. If they do, thousands of central Europeans are expected to be landed in countries below the equator which are not ready to receive them. The sufferings and hardships of some emigrants, who are tempted to these shores by the false promises and glittering accounts of European shipping agents, have been very acute.

In Rio Janeiro, Buenos Aires and Montevideo the American consulates are besieged daily by immigrants demanding and beseeching permission to go to the United States. They were told by shipping agents in their European homes that, while the United States had a new immigration law, its terms could be avoided by coming to South America and then reshipping to United States ports. Thousands of such immigrants are stranded in South American countries where they have to compete with cheap native labor. Their condition was better in their native lands.

Few Opportunities.

There is not the reason for emigration to South American countries that there was once for emigration to the United States. South America offers neither the industrial nor the agricultural opportunities. Outside of a few large cities and territory in close proximity to them, Argentina, for instance, is a vast expanse of unsettled land. The best lands are in possession of a few wealthy families. The tracts that are left, suffer from bad conditions of climate and lack of transportation. Immigrants must compete with the cheap native labor and find government officials more or less indifferent to them. Immigration laws exist on paper only and the governing class of Argentina shows no more interest in the newcomers than it does in the native peons, who have to shift for themselves and eke out an existence for their families as best they can.

Just how long the new rush of European emigration to South America will continue is problematical. It is predicted that the disillusioned now here will advise their relatives in the old country to stay where they are. Others believe that the overcrowding and economic conditions of Europe will continue to force out thousands, who will come in this direction because no other opportunities are open to them.

Officials Indifferent.

No South American country has worked out a practical immigration policy. At present, with immigrants arriving by hundreds on every ship, it seems certain that there will be a serious congestion in all of the ports of entry.

Officials in these countries spend the least possible time in their offices or with the affairs of government, and normal governmental operations, which should be transacted in a few hours, are allowed to accumulate for days and weeks. The fact that thousands of immigrants are being herded together in Buenos Aires, Rio Janeiro and other cities will mean but little to government officials.

Judging by the past in the United States, immigrants almost invariably send money back to their families, either to maintain them in their own land or to enable them to book passage to America. South American countries can ill afford such a drain. Brazil, Uruguay and Argentina are always in financial straits and are constantly borrowing to finance their governments. With immigrants sending out money from these countries in any considerable amounts the loss would be serious.

SMUGGLING OF EMIGRANTS DWINDLES AS HAZARDS GROW

Precautions Under New Immigration Law Defeats Desires of Thousands of Europeans.

Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News. Copyright, 1924.

ROME, Italy, Sept. 10.—A stream of millions of people every month pass the Statue of Liberty and into the United States—this is what American immigration would be if every person in Europe, who wants to go to America, were legally and financially able to do so. The war and the peace of Versailles have left large parts of Europe so reduced in their standards of living and so terrifically pressing against their limited food supplies that, in some countries—notably Germany, Italy, Austria and Poland—it would seem that virtually every one would like to emigrate to the United States. It is an almost hopeless desire, the goal of the night's dreaming and the day's scheming.

It is not strange, then, that, since not one in a hundred can hope to get into America legally, many thousands seek to do so illegally. Many guesses have been made as to the extent of clandestine emigration into the United States. Some have guessed that 200,000 persons slip over the border annually. There is no way of checking on such guesses, but it may be said that the more one's informant knows about the subject, the lower his guess is likely to be.

Many Checks Against Fraud.

The recent administrative rulings interpreting the Johnson act have made clandestine emigration considerably more difficult. The emigrant must be provided with two complete sets of documents, thoroughly establishing his identity and his permission to emigrate. One is kept at the American consular office that issues the visa; the other must be retained by the emigrant after he reaches America and shown on demand to American officials. The complicated system of checks and authorizations makes fraud still more difficult.

In the opinion of the American consular agents in Europe, the new regulations have so considerably discouraged "emigrant bootlegging," that instances of it are approaching the negligible. Nevertheless, it does exist and many of the stories one hears are thrilling.

The old, and relatively simple, dodges are now well in the discard. No longer can a European in America, after taking out his American citizenship, mail his passport back to his brother in Europe, and expect to see that brother march through the gates at Ellis Island, flourishing the document as his own. No longer can the many lost passports of American tourists (they used to fetch a standard market price of $10 in European capitals) be doctored so as to guarantee admittance into the United States. Nor does the mere counterfeiting of European passports, which, in the past, has been a highly organized industry, assist the would be immigrant far through the mazes of consular formalities. As for the simple bribing of Ellis Island officials, one hears tales of it now and then, but one suspects they are generally yarns told by the smuggler to catch clients.

Deceptions Now Employed.

The elaborate smuggling organization that is functioning now, although not so prosperously as formerly, uses three principal methods. The emigrant may be slipped on board a transatlantic steamer as a member of the crew and then "desert" in an American harbor. Once actually on American soil he is relatively safe. The forging of seaman's papers is much simpler than the forging of official passports.

It sometimes happens that a large proportion of a ship's crew, even as high as 50 per cent, deserts in New York, and on more than one occasion return trips have been delayed by the need of recruiting new crews. Many of these desertions, however, are doubtless those of genuine sailors.

Many of the clandestine emigrants cross as "black passengers" or stowaways. They are generally hustled on to the ship at the last minute. Their sufferings are sometimes atrocious.

Some of the "black passenger" traffic undoubtedly has the connivance of ships' officers. It is charged that certain of the less reputable steamship lines make a regular business of the stowaway trade.

The third method generally used is indirect. Much has been written in America about immigration smuggling over the 1000-mile Mexican border, but it is not so well known that part of this is organized in Europe. With comparative ease, the emigrant can obtain a passport for certain South or Central American countries and the intermediate countries are obliged to grant him transit permission. Thus all may go, with relative legality, up to the Mexican border, which offers no very serious obstacle. It is said that clandestines who enter by this route, far from being discouraged, are welcomed and aided by local American contractors looking for cheap labor.

Smugglers' Price Increases.

With the increasing difficulties, the smugglers' price has increased. Ten thousand lire, somewhat under $500, was the standard price recently in Naples. This, to an Italian farmer or laborer, represents a considerable fortune.

On the whole, as though the subject has sensational aspects, the quantity of clandestine immigration into America is probably not so great as to cause serious concern. The prompt and efficient

BETHANY SEEKS FUNDS FOR AUDITORIUM FOR 'MESSIAH'

Lindsborg College Plans to Spend $400,000 on Home for Handel's Oratorio Production.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LINDSBORG, Kan., Sept. 20.—Bethany College has undertaken a drive to raise $400,000 for the erection of a new auditorium, to house its annual productions of "The Messiah," which have become nationally known.

It is estimated that 500,000 persons have heard Handel's oratorio sung by the Lindsborg chorus. "The Messiah" festival has outgrown the old auditorium, erected in 1895, so that each year hundreds are turned away because of lack of seating capacity.

Fascist Reserves Are Curbed by Italian Army

Scenes at Funeral of Slain Deputy in Rome, Show One Arm of Law Opposed to Another.

(Special Radio to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News. Copyright, 1924.)

ROME, Sept. 19.—Events incident upon the funeral of Deputy Casalini, the Fascist leader, though fortunately bloodless, reveal a curious situation which probably could not be paralleled in any other capital in Europe—one arm of the Government defending itself against another arm.

Some 3000 "black shirt" reservists and members of the national militia, marched in parade all armed with ugly clubs. After the funeral ceremony they ranged through the streets of Rome evidently looking for trouble. Presumably they sought to devastate the headquarters of the opposition parties' newspapers as they had attempted to do on two previous nights in many instances, sometimes with minor success.

However, the Fascisti found Government troops in force guarding all probable objects of their hostility, especially the liberal newspapers, Giornale d'Italia and the Corriere della Sera, the Democratic newspaper Il Mondo and the headquarters of the Grand Orient Masonic lodge which is alleged to be the center of the anti-Facist opposition. These headquarters were heavily guarded, all approaches being cut off and no pedestrians allowed near.

Rob News Vendors.

Ardent young "black shirts," many of whom were from the provinces, were obliged to content themselves with forcibly taking opposition newspapers from the patient news venders without payment, telling them that "the editors can pay you," and tearing up the papers or making little bonfires of them. Some groups of "black shirts" paraded the streets singing a new doggerel which has sprung up in the last few days: "The republic is nonsense; Mabbini is nonsense. Long live Dumini!" (He is now in prison accused of organizing and carrying out the murder of Deputy Matteotti.) While some of the "black shirts" appeared to be well-disciplined young men, others apparently were of the worst type of bruisers. Their attempt to break through the cordons of the natinoal army and police were everywhere futile.

The fact that the Government should be obliged to call the army to defend public order against reservists and national militia is typical of the two contradictory policies which the Government has seemed to pursue since the Matteotti murder. On the one hand, the Government promises normalization while on the other hand it says to the fascisti: "We will not retreat."

Equivocal Appeals.

The Rome Impero, a semiofficial Fascist daily, on the day of the funeral said in large type, "Let no unworthy act mar this day of solemn ritual." Immediately beneath these words and also in large type, was the admonition, "Cut the tongues out of the two assassins of Casalini—the leaders and editors of the opposition."

Sig. Farinacci, leader of the "wild wing" of the Fascist party, who, as a member of the Fascist directorate, signed an appeal asking that there be no reprisals for the Casalini murder, wrote on the same day in his own newspaper an article urging the use of machine guns against the opposition. Later he threatened a "St. Bartholomew's eve" massacre if another Fascist were murdered.

Such incidents as these make Italy still uncertain whether the Government intends to maintain its dictatorship supported by "black shirt" militia or return to a normal parliamentary government. It would appear that the events of Monday tended to convince the Fascist extremists that the Ministry of the Interior under the Nationalist, Sig. Federzoni, intends to preserve order at all costs, but Italian liberals still ask, "Why must the Government protect itself against itself?"

TWO WORKHOUSE PRISONERS ESCAPE FROM CITY HOSPITAL

Saw Iron Bars and Use Rope of Sheets in Get-Away From Prison Ward.

Two Workhouse prisoners, Jack Duane of Cincinnati, and Huber Clopton of Springfield, Mo., escaped from the prison ward of city hospital between 1 and 2 a. m. yesterday by sawing three iron bars in a third-story window and letting themselves down by a rope made of sheets.

Each was under sentence of one year, Duane for larceny and Clopton for forgery. They were taken to the hospital for surgical operations, and were to have been returned to the Workhouse Friday, but were not called for by the guards.

SEEKS DIVORCE AND ALIMONY

Suit for divorce, alleging general indignities, was filed at Clayton yesterday by Mrs. Marian J. Cox, 533 Clara avenue, against Douglas A. Cox, son of a founder of the Cox & Gordon Packing Co. She asks for alimony and custody of their child, Jarvis, 8 years old.

They were married Feb. 11, 1914, at Council Bluffs, Ia., and separated last Wednesday. Mrs. Cox charges that her husband for the last year has been cold and indifferent, has "studiously, willfully and consistently remained aloof" from her, has conducted himself so as to humiliate her before friends, and has declared he did not love her and "yearned for freedom."

New German Oil Sold Under Written Guarantee Rubs Out Rheumatism

A remarkable new discovery of German Chemistry for the relief of rheumatism, Gout and Neuralgia is astonishing the medical world. This marvelous oil seems to kill rheumatic pains just as effectively as those other German pain killers—Novocain for painless dentistry and Aspirin for headache pains.

Rheumatism in very many cases is due to internal abscesses (such as a blind pus pocket in a tooth which gives off poisons, and which are carried in the blood to joints and muscles. This new German oil when applied to the affected parts, seems to quickly penetrate and be absorbed by the body tissue. Even in the most severe and stubborn cases almost instant relief has been obtained.

Note: The oil referred to above is known in this country as Buhler Oil. At the present time, the following druggists report that they have secured a limited quantity of Buhler Oil for distribution in this city. So remarkable have been the results from the use of Buhler Oil that these druggists are giving their customers a written guarantee to refund the price in full to any purchaser of Buhler Oil who fails to get immediate relief. ONE PLANK IN G. O. P. PLATFORM IN TEXAS

Dr. George C. Butte, Nominee for Governorship, Makes Plea for Constitution.

By the Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 20.—A platform of one plank, consisting of the Governor's oath of office, reinforced by six "guiding principles," is the basis on which Dr. George C. Butte today based his Republican candidacy for Governor in a statement "to the people of Texas."

He said the sole issue in the campaign is whether "the voters of Texas are so concerned for party consistency that they are willing to sacrifice righteousness and decency, ignore the courts of Texas and the fundamental law of the land, and put their stamp of approval on Mr. Ferguson and all the things that he has stood for in Texas."

He declares he is not a member of the Ku Klux Klan and never will be. The statement in part is as follows:

"Though my name as candidate for Governor is on the Republican ticket, I am making this race as a Texan and as an American. I have no political ambitions.

Not Member of Ku Klux Klan.

"The re-election of James E. Ferguson to the governorship of Texas through the subterfuge of getting his wife's name on the ticket, after the courts of Texas had declared it illegal for his own name to go there, would be in spirit and in effect a subversion of the laws and the Constitution of this State.

"I am not now and have never been a member of the Ku Klux Klan. I have not now and never will have any alliance with it. The constitutional guaranties of religious liberty and security of person are sacred, and I will enforce them to the uttermost limit of my powers.

A different issue confronts the people of Texas now from the one they settled on Aug. 23. The issue today is whether the voters of Texas are so concerned for party consistency that they are willing to sacrifice righteousness and decency, ignore the courts of Texas and the fundamental law of the land, and put their stamp of approval upon Mr. Ferguson and all the things that he has stood for in Texas.

"I submit my candidacy on the following promises. I have made, and shall make, no others to anybody:

One Plank Platform.

"Platform: My platform has only one plank. It is Article XVI, Section 1, of the Constitution of Texas, which contains the Governor's oath of office. I promise the people of Texas that I will support the Constitution and will faithfully and impartially execute the laws of Texas—all of them.

"I believe without reservation in the social purity and the political supremacy of the white race.

"Within my authority, I will reappoint all honest and competent public servants now on the payroll of the State, regardless of how they vote in this election. Other things being equal, I will always give preference to the ex-service men and women of Texas.

"I will stay on the job in the Governor's office eight hours a day every working day during my two years' term of office. I will waste no time playing politics and will give you a strictly business administration.

"I believe, like Grover Cleveland, that the administration should be carried on behind glass doors, so that the people can always see what is going on inside.

"I have no legislative cure-alls to throw out to catch votes. Nor do I believe that the people of Texas want me, in one short term, to try to put through any radical or revolutionary changes in our laws. Upon all matters of legislation, I will consult and co-operate with the Legislature of Texas, respecting its constitutional functions and its constitutional responsibility, to the end that peace and harmony may prevail at the State Capitol and the general public welfare be always put first.

"During my administration, all branches of public education will receive my first and foremost attention, intelligence and enlightenment being the chief cornerstones of a democracy."

MEXICAN WOMAN IS DETAINED

Wife of Former Official Is Held at Ellis Island.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Senora Zubaran, wife of Rafael Zubaran, former Mexican Minister of the Interior, has been detained by immigration officials at Ellis Island and a board of review of the Labor Department has her case under consideration.

Senora Zubaran came to the United States to join her husband, but her immigration visa has not been properly handled and she was held up on the ground that she was a nonquota immigrant. A decision is expected quickly.

The lecture was arranged by St. Louis philosophical and psychological students, in commemoration of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of Kant.

M'CLUNEY ASSUMES DUTIES

Samuel C. McCluney, 37 Kingsbury place, yesterday assumed his duties as treasurer of the Republican State Committee, a post to which he was appointed Friday by Chairman Phares. McCluney will supervise the raising of funds for the present campaign.

The State Committee has approximately $5000 in the treasury and there are no outstanding bills. Expenditures in the 1920 presidential campaign, by the State Committee, were about $94,000. McCluney entered Amherst College in 1898, three years after President Coolidge was graduated from that institution.

BRITISH SEAPLANE FOR SCHNEIDER CUP RACE SINKS

Defect in Undercarriage Is Cause—Pilot Is Rescued by Motor Boat.

FELIXSTONE, Eng., Sept. 20.—The seaplane, which was to have been Great Britain's entry in the Schneider Cup race, near Baltimore, Oct. 24 and 25, descended on the water last night after a trial flight and sank, the pilot being rescued by a motor boat.

The seaplane had been built especially by the Air Ministry. Its trials showed it had sufficient speed but the accident was due, it was stated, to a defect in the seaplane's undercarriage.

HAWES URGES UNITED SUPPORT FOR ROAD PLAN

Assails Effort to Inject Partisan Politics in Fight Over Proposal to Complete Program.

VOTES OF BOTH PARTIES NEEDED

Says Move Is Only Solution Offered and Would Prevent Waste of Previous Expenditures.

An appeal to Republican and Democratic voters alike to rally at the November election to the support of initiative proposal No. 5, for speeding up Missouri's State road program, was voiced yesterday by Congressman Harry B. Hawes of St. Louis in an interview in which he deplored attempts made in some quarters to inject politics into road work and pointed to the consequences which failure of the proposition would entail.

Emphasizing that proposal No. 5, which provides for a State tax of 2 cents a gallon on gasoline, for a 50 per cent increase in automobile State license fees and for sale of the balance of the $60,000,000 bond issue at the rate of $15,000,000 a year, is the only available measure for saving the road profram fro mcollapse. Hawes characterized as criminal the maneuvers of certain "petty politicians" to gain temporary political advantage by sponsoring or opposing the legislation as the accomplishment of any one political party. If such tactics are persisted in, he said they will result inevitably in the defeat of the amendment and the wrecking of Missouri's hopes for a 7600-mile hard road system within the present generation. A constitutional amendment, he reminded, cannot be passed by votes of Republicans alone or Democrats alone. It must have the united vote of both parties.

A Lack of Vision.

"In public life we find too many men whose vision does not extend beyond the immediate day," Congressman Hawes said. "Wrapped in circumscribed and limited vision of his own locality this sort of man fails to visualize the State as a whole. His pig seems to be the only pig in Missouri. So it is with his horse, his cow and his barn. He forgets that there are tens of thousands of pigs, horses and cows and barns that belong to other people, and that when the State of Missouri acts it acts for all and not for one.

"He forgets that in certain sections of our State we have road-building material, rock and gravel at the roadside and that in other sections of the State there is no road-building material, and it has to be hauled in at great expense.

"He forgets that in certain sections of our State there are hills, rivers and streams to cross, and grading to be done and that in other sections of the State this is not necessary.

"He does not consider or understand what 'density of population' means and that roads must be built for the amount of work they do; that they must be able to carry the strain of heavy traffic and, where this traffic (either freight or passenger) is continuous and heavy, it is the poorest kind of economy to build a cheap road. A cheap road in communities of this kind is the most expensive road.

"He seems not to understand that the cost of this road-building is paid exclusively by the men and women who own automobiles They pay the taxes. They pay for the freight and for the road.

Assails Partisan Politics.

"This man and his other dangerous neighbor, who tries to interject partisan politics in road work, are the ones who are holding Missouri back, keeping it in the mud, and helping to write "mossback" on a State that stands still.

"Our Legislature tried to do an impossible thing; that is, to build 7600 miles of roads and to carry on this construction in 114 different spots, without enough money to pay for its completion.

"This enactment was clearly a political compromise, the result of which was freely predicted and pointed out at the time. Our present situation is merely a demonstration and a proof of what we knew would happen if this kind of a law was passed.

"No farmer having a half mile road to build inside his own farm leading from his front gate to his barn would ever start the half mile without continuing its construction and building the road through. He would have sense enough to know that 100 yards would not do him any good, but that the whole half mile would be necessary.

"Unfortunately our Legislature did not apply the same common sense to the State proposition that a man would apply to his own private property; and, in consequence, the road-building program in this State, if not pushed to completion will mean millions of dollars' loss to the automobile owners who pay the cost in license fees, and many millions more to the farmers whose roads are not completed and who lose time, money and sales opportunity because of the terrible condition of the roads of the State.

"The farmer whose market is five miles from the farm wants the road from his farm to the market completed. If there is even a half-mile stretch in the five that is impassable, the cost of detouring, the wear and tear on his machine and his wagon and horses is much greater than would be five miles of poor roads. In other words, he suffers more under such circumstances from a half mile of bad road in five, than of a poor quality of road that was passable all the way through.

An Ideal Amendment.

"My support of proposal No. 5 is not based upon the thought that it is the ideal amendment or that there are no objections to it—perhaps even legal objections. I shall support it vigorously because it is the only solution which has been offered for our problem.

"It is to be regretted that Gov. Hyde withstood the pressure of the united press of the State and of the united road enthusiasts of the State (including the owners of automobiles) who urged him to call a special session of the Legislature to discuss this matter and pass new laws. His failure to do this has but one remedy—the passage of amendment No. 5. We have no option in the matter; it is not one for discussion. The Legislature having failed to act, we have but one thing to decide—to vote for or against the only remedy offered.

"Therefore, I shall support this amendment for three reasons:

"1. Because it is the only solution now suggested.

"2. Because something must be done to prevent the waste of public moneys and the disintegration of half-completed roads, and stop the loss to the farmer and the user of these roads in the matter of wear and tear, time and repair.

"3. Because we have advertised to the world, to prospective home buyers, to men who want to come into our State and buy farms and farm property, that we had a hundred million dollar road program which was going through. We made this statement believing it could be fulfilled. Unwise legislative enactment has interfered with it."

Pointing out that benefits from the proposed roads system would accrue to members of both parties alike and that the roads would be paid for largely by the automobile owners of the State regardless of their political leanings, the Congressman continued:

"There are 500,000 men and women owning automobiles who are paying for our road system. No one knows just how many Democrats or Republicans are among them. No one has tried to find out, but we do know that it is both Democratic money and Republican money that pays the bill.

"For anyone to suggest, therefore, that this is a partisan question, or for any petty politician to inject this question trying to secure some temporary political advantage for either the Democratic or Republican party, is, in my opinion, a crime. If persisted in by men in public life or office seekers it will utterly destroy progress.

"In conducting the fight for amendment No. 6 and the $60,000,000 program there was no playing of politics. As president of both the Federated Roads Council of St. Louis and the Missouri Good Roads Federation, which covered every voting precinct in the State, I am fairly familiar with Missouri's road history, and I know that every effort was made to divide as equally as possible the functions of officers and committees between Democrats and Republicans. Partisanship had no part in the campaign. Republicans worked and Democrats worked. Republican newspapers supported the amendment and Democratic newspapers supported it. Any man who sought to secure political advantage out of the discussion was promptly removed.

"Because of long absence from the State, I am not in a position to criticise or even comment upon the charge that efforts have been made to interject partisan political discussion in this matter.

Reviews Gardner's Work.

"While not able to give unqualified approval to the administration of Gov. Gardner in the matter of good roads legislation, it can be said to his credit that he did not permit partisan politics to play any part in the road administration under his jurisdiction.

"The whole theory of the law was one of equal division between the two major parties.

"In the selection of his commission he placed on the board George McAninch, Republican Mayor of St. Joseph, a fine man and a road enthusiast. He placed on the commission Maj. Roy F. Britton, a stalwart Republican, former member of the Legislature and an outstanding good roads advocate of many years. He put on two Democrats solely because of their great interest in and knowledge of roads; and then, in addition, he selected as the executive head and secretary of the board, John Malang, State Senator, and another active Republican.

"The executive head of the board, therefore, was a well-known active Republican appointed by a Democratic Governor.

"This is his record of nonpartisanship, and it stands out clean and conspicuously, whatever criticism may be directed to his failure to demand and secure proper legislative enactment.

"Governor Hyde selected as president of his board Theodore Gary, who has made large sacrifices of his time and spent his own money in the building of our State highway system.

"He has never been known as a very active partisan, although a Republican, and I am confident that so far as he is personally concerned he views the road program—as I do—as a non-partisan, non-political matter.

"But let us be frank about it: Our roads are built by the joint legislative enactment of both Democrats and Republicans. It is administered by a non-partisan board. It is paid for by 500,000 automobile owners, part Democrats and part Republicans.

"When a new road is opened, or a dedication ceremony of that road is held, common sense and common decency should demand that those participating in these ceremonies should be equally divided between Republicans and Democrats. To herald an accomplishment for the finishing of any stretch of road as either a Democratic or Republican achievement is, in the first place, dishonest, and in the second place, it is partisanship of the small, petty kind and will hurt the whole road program.

Both Parties Must Aid.

"We cannot pass a constitutional amendment in this State by the votes of Republicans alone or by the votes of Democrats alone. It must be by the united vote of both Democrats and Republicans. To inject, therefore, any boastful, unfair claim that any part of the road work is the peculiar accomplishment of any one party is not only improper but it is disgraceful.

"I am confident that the thinking Democrats of Missouri, while annoyed by some small things, will put the welfare of the State above all other considerations and will vote for Constitutional Amendment No. 5.

"I regret that the State convention did not include a specific indorsement of this amendment. The effort to make it appear that its failure to do so in any way indicates an opposition to the plan of completion of the present State-wide system is straining at partisanship. The charge is unfounded.

"Unfortunately during the last

The Miracle of the Automobile

Transportation! Half of history lives in that one word.

Human shoulders were the first carriers. Then came beasts of burden. Later the wheel appeared—a marvelous discovery! Two wheels and a platform gave men the war chariot.

After that, for thousands of years, two and four wheeled vehicles reigned supreme. The arrival of the steam locomotive created a revolution in industry, travel and social life.

But the summum bonum of transportation facilities is the automobile.

It has changed the face of the whole world. It is making new highways, annihilating distance, creating new customs, raising living standards.

It is accelerating business, conserving health, and increasing the happiness of whole communities.

It's benefits are universal and well within the reach of practically everybody.

"Everybody" means YOU. Your mind may call up a new car. Good! But if price raises a doubt of immediate ownership, consider the good used cars over in the Classified "Automobiles" columns.

You can possess your own transportation power now. You CAN have the model you like at a price you can afford. The new car can come later. But investigation of the cars in the Post-Dispatch's Classified "Automobiles" columns will give you a good car now—one that will make you a beneficiary of all the good things which automobile ownership brings.

152 TREATED AT SHRINE HOSPITAL SINCE APRIL 8

106 Other Crippled Children Were Treated, Who Did Not Stay at the Institution.

77 DISCHARGED AS CURED OR BENEFITED

Members of Board to Meet Oct. 8 to Consider Improvements Regarded as Necessary.

The Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children, at Clayton and Euclid avenues, has treated 152 patients since its opening, April 8, according to an announcement by officials of the institution yesterday.

This number, the report states, does not include 106, whose afflictions were not serious enough to require accommodation in the regular wards.

In this period 77 children have been discharged as either fully cured or benefited as far as the hospital could aid them. On Sept. 1, 75 remained in the institution and there was a waiting list of 47. In the last three weeks, however, the number of beds has been increased to 107 and many of those awaiting treatment have been admitted.

Members of the national board in charge of the hospital and six or more other similar philanthropic institutions, will meet in St. Louis, Oct. 8, to consider such improvements as have been found in the five months' operation to be necessary. Among important proposed additions are homes for convalescents, where children may remain for medical attention after their stay in the hospital is no longer necessary.

A nucleus for such a home in St. Louis is provided in the will of the late Col. C. A. Sinclair, thirty-third degree Mason and former National Guard officer, who bequeathed virtually his entire estate of approximately $100,000 to the hospital.

WOMAN SAYS GIRL STARTED ROW WHICH ENDED IN CUTTING

Mrs. Hattie Gleason, 56, Declares She Stabbed Miss Schomberg, 21, in Self-Defense.

Mrs. Hattie Gleason of 840A De Soto avenue, who was arrested Friday, charged with stabbing Miss Ernestine Schomberg of 842A De Soto, denied yesterday that she had been the aggressor in a row of long standing, which led to the attack.

Miss Schomberg told the police she was seated on the front porch about 9:20 p. m., Thursday, when Mrs. Gleason came up to her and shouted, "What do you mean by talking about me?" Before she could reply, Miss Schomberg said, Mrs. Gleason drew a knife from a fold of her dress and slashed her on the left hand, left arm and right collarbone.

Mrs. Gleason said the affray took place in the street in front of her home and declared she used a small pocketknife in self-defense, after the younger woman had got out of an automobile and attacked her first, striking her on the head. According to her story the trouble started when she complained to the landlord about Miss Schomberg's conduct in the flat next door. On two nights previous to the encounter, she said, Miss Schomberg had tried forcibly to enter her home.

Miss Schomberg, who resides with a sister, Mrs. William E. Fritz, is 21 years old. Mrs. Gleason is 56.

three years there have been many irritations occasioned by the location of roads by statements of discrimination, and other matters natural under any administration. But I have found that the attempt to inject partisanship in a partisan program, and to claim partisan credit in the opening of newly completed roads, were the dominating, irritating causes of discontent and must be eliminated in the discussions which will follow during the next six weeks if we expect to achieve another victory for good roads in November.

"This is a time for thoughtful men and women to forget their politics and to think of only a few things:

"First: Proposal No. 5 is the only solution offered.

"Second: The roads system must be completed; and,

"Third: The tremendous loss of money which will be entailed upon the automobile owners of this State unless it is completed."

WHEN WILL IT BE?

It is only fair when judging our brotherman to consider his GOOD as well as his BAD qualities.

A noted writer wrote: When a man dies we first talk of his wealth, then his failings and lastly his good qualities.

Be this true or not it is an undeniable fact THAT human nature, at best, is frail and many of us make mistakes of the head and NOT the heart, but 'twill be a "glorious victory" when a feeling of brotherly love prevails among us.

Then we will live in an atmosphere of "Doing as we would like to be done by" and the teachings of the MASTER will have borne the fruit of their objective. HASTEN THE DAY!

TWO plays new to local theatergoers are among the week's offerings. The first is "A Trial Honeymoon," a musical comedy, which will open an engagement tonight at the Shubert-Jefferson. The second is a comedy, "Polly Preferred," by Guy Bolton, which the Woodward Players will offer at the Empress. The stock company at the Pershing announces "Lombardi, Ltd.," as its third undertaking. John Steel, whose tenor warblings in the Ziegfeld "Follies" will be remembered, makes his first St. Louis appearance in vaudeville today in the featured turn at the Orpheum.

"A Trial Honeymoon" has run all summer in Chicago. Its book, lyrics and music are by Harold Orlob, author of "Listen, Lester." So far as can be ascertained, the story is about a modern young woman whose ambitious aunt commands her to marry an unprepossessing man, and who gets out of the difficulty by means of a trial matrimonial adventure. The principals include Winona Winter, Alice Hills, John Hennings, Genevieve McCormick, Bernice Speer, Arnold Gluck, Charles Silber, Frank Gardner, Joseph McCallum and Julia Steger. A chorus of pretty girls is promised.

Played in London and New York.

NEW YORK and London sent more or less favorable accounts of "Polly Preferred," in which Justine Johnstone was starred in the British capital. It is about a virtuous chorus girl who loses her first two-line part because the rich backer of the play wants it for some frailer lady, who is taken up by a press agent and incorporated as "Polly Preferred," and finally wins revenge, wealth and happiness. Hazel Whitmore will play the fair Polly and J. Glynn McFarlane the artist in salesmanship.

It was in October, 1919, that "Lombardi, Ltd.," by Frederic and Fanny Hatton, was given here at the Shubert-Jefferson, with Leo Carillo as Tito Lombardi, a fascinating dressmaker who has never been kissed. This role will be undertaken at the Pershing by Edward Darney, and Miss Rhea Diveley will play Norah, assistant in the establishment, who finally initiates the Joseph of the shears into the raptures of osculation.

IN addition to Mr. Steel's tenor songs at the Orpheum, the bill will include Walter C. Drama Critics Put on Stage in New Comedy

By HEYWOOD BROUN.
Drama Critic of the New York World.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.

UNDOUBTEDLY "Schemers," presented Monday night at the Nora Bayes Theater, is one of the crudest plays which has come to Broadway in many a day. Yet I cannot deny an intense interest in part of the proceedings. Dr. William Sirovich, the author, who is a physician and a candidate for Congress, has begun his play with a scene between a theatrical manager and four dramatic critics. These reviewers are referred to again and again as the foremost practitioners of their art. They appear on the program as Alexander Gale, Alan Olcott, Perry Almond and A. Wood Brown.

The ranking, I may say, is determined solely by the order of their appearance. A. Wood Brown came on last, but it seemed to me that he easily dominated the scene. His was the only entrance of the four critics which was marked by applause. I attended to that myself. It may be that Leo Curley, who played A. Wood Brown, is a superb actor. I cannot be sure as I have always had difficulty in dis-

What They Are DOING IN Movie Studios

Dot Farley, well-known screen character actress, has been named to play with Colleen Moore in the first national adaptation of Edna Ferber's famous novel, "So Big." Miss Farley will fill the vacancy caused by the injury to Cissie Fitzgerold, who was seriously hurt when an ancient automobile she was driving in one of the scenes in "So Big" collided with a motor truck.

Myrtle Vane, who will be remembered for her characterization in "The Girl of the Limberlost," plays the mother in Florence Vidor's first starring production for Regal Pictures, "The Mirage." Miss Vane got her theatrical training in that hard but proficient school—the stock company. For several years she was leading lady in various stock organizations on the Pacific Coast and in the days when "Graustark" and "When We were Twenty-One" thrilled theater goers she was the idol of thousands. She but recently went into pictures.

When not working in pictures John Bowers may be found aboard his yacht. His greatest delight is to sail among the islands of the Southern Pacific and along the coast of Mexico. Next to automobile racing, it is his favorite pastime.

Before Margherite de la Motte made her entrance into motion pictures she was a dancer. Under the interested tuition of Pavlowa she achieved early success. It was a chance meeting with Douglas Fairbanks that robbed the footlights of a brilliant artist, and now—she's a movie queen.

By the use of diet, massage and exercise, Estelle Taylor is able to vary her weight between 105 and 140 pounds. Her normal weight is 125. Exercising puts it on and dieting and massage removes the surplus fat.

Parental authority was demonstrated for the benefit of the children in his neighborhood by Pat O'Malley, the famous off-screen daddy of the movies. Eileen, his eldest of three daughters, has boasted for a long time that her daddy could do something that the other boys' and girls' daddies couldn't do. Finally it came to a showdown. Eileen took charge of the situation and arranged a personal appearance of her famous father. Imagine the thrill the children received when he walked a tight rope in their back yard!

How long can you go without food? Dorothy Mackaill's record is 32 hours. Returning from location dead tired, she went to bed at 3 in the afternoon, getting up at 7 the next morning to answer a hurried call at the studio without breakfast. A business appointment and a fitting prevented luncheon and dinner and she worked until 11:30, when she tasted her first solid food in one day and eight hours.

"Cheap Kisses," first of a series of productions to be made by C. Gardner Sullivan for F. B. O. release, is from the pen of that noted scenarist. It is dedicated to young people and is played largely by youthful actors. In the cast are such young favorites as Cullen Landis, Lillian Rich, Vera Reynolds and Lincoln Stedman.

"Never Say Die" And "Feet of Clay" On Photoplay Bills

Jackie Coogan in "Little Robinson Crusoe," "Empty Hands" and "Sinners in Silk" Are Other Local Offerings.

"NEVER SAY DIE," the new Douglas MacLean farce, is shown at the Kings and Rivoli theaters this week. "Doug" portrays a young man condemned by doctors to an early death because of heart trouble. He's rich, single and handsome and about to die.

According to the terms of the will under which he inherited his fortune, he cannot leave the money to any persons other than relations. He has a friend, broke and in love.

Together they seek to discover a way to transfer the money so that the pal will not lose by "Doug's" death. So they arrange a marriage between "Doug" and his pal's fiancee. The marriage is performed and his wife leaves for her honeymoon alone, and "Dug" suddenly finds that he has fallen in love with his wife. The way out of the unusual tangle provides opportunities for unlimited fun, and, of course, the film ends happily.

The stage and screen will divide honors at the Missouri Theater this week. Cecil B. DeMille's "Feet of Clay" heads the photoplay attractions. It is a story of the brilliant, sophisticated sort on which Cecil B. DeMille has lavished beautiful women, sumptuous gowns and brilliant settings.

The story concerns a flapper of 18, growing into a wife at 21, but retaining much of her love for jazz and excitement and getting into many complications thereby. In the cast are Rod La Rocque, Vera Reynolds, Robert Edeson, Julia Faye and Ricardo Cortez. Harry Langdon, Mack Sennette comedian, is presented in a new comedy, "The Luck of the Foolish."

On the stage Bennie Krueger and his orchestra make their first St. Louis appearance. Other incidents of the program include the DeForest Phonofilm with new subjects. "The Gallery of Living Portraits," picturing Gloria Swanson's career also is shown.

"Empty Hands," a Paramount picture adapted from the novel by Arthur Stringer, is presented at the Grand Central Theater this week. The stage attraction will be Gilbert & Sullivan's "The Pirates of Penzance," rendered by the Grand Central Light Opera Company.

"Empty Hands" features Norma Shearer and Jack Holt. In its early scenes the picture exploits jazz recklessness, but the final episodes are staged in the Canadian Rockies.

The heroine, a shallow society butterfly, and the hero, civil-engineering his way through life, become lost in this territory and to all appearances there is no hope for escape. However, the girl's wealthy father rescues them by airplane.

"Little Robinson Crusoe," Jackie Coogan's latest picture, is featured this week at the Delmonte, West End Lyric, Lyric Skydome and Capitol Theaters, remaining for four days only at the Skydome and West End Lyric. "A Woman's Promise" will be the attraction at those houses Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Jackie's father, a policeman, has been killed in the performance of his duty and Jackie is being sent to Australia to an aunt. He is to be taken there by another relative who is a steamship captain and who also has a young son. The captain wants his boy to inherit the aunt's fortune.

The captain plots to do away with Jackie, but meanwhile a typhoon comes along and sinks the captain and his ship, Jackie floating to a South Sea island upon a raft. Here all manner of adventures greet him.

A musical review is an added Delmonte feature.

The picture attraction at Loew's State Theater is the Metro-Goldwyn production, "Sinners in Silk," with Conrad Nagle, Adolphe Menjou, Eleanor Boardman and Ann Luther in the cast. Art Landry's Band is heard in all new numbers on the stage.

Another feature is Don Albert's Symphony Orchestra, in a descriptive overture novelty, "Up in the Clouds," a scenic effect dedicated to the U. S. flyers who made the trip around the world.

"The Dutch Plate," a dancing novelty; Topics of the Day, Loew's News and a selected comedy are also on the program.

20 MEN TO GUARD THE VEILED PROPHET

Addition to Retinue This Year Due to Unusual Length of Visit.

The Veiled Prophet, during his two-day visit to St. Louis, Oct. 7 and 8, will have a special guard of honor of 20 men and two officers clad in Oriental garb, who will be with him whenever he ventures from his den during his stay in St. Louis. This addition to his retinue was deemed necessary because of the unusual length of his visit this year.

The Prophet will appear in the city some time Tuesday, Oct. 7, and will immediately retire to his den, where he will remain until evening, when he will head the street pageant in his honor. Following the parade a secret banquet will be held in his honor at a place known only to members of the committee and the Prophet's retinue.

Wednesday night he will preside in his Court of Love and Beauty at the Coliseum at the annual Veiled Prophet's Ball. The ball will take place earlier than usual this year and the coronation of the Prophet's Queen, followed by his Majesty's departure, is expected to occur at least two hours earlier than has been the custom. This was made possible by postponing the ball to Wednesday night insteady of having it follow the parade.

The decorative scheme of the Coliseum is now being designed by a St. Louis artist and an enlarged dais with greater space for chairs for members of the court will be provided. There will be 150 matrons and maids of honor in the court, besides the many courtiers and the special guard.

DRAMA CRITICS PUT ON STAGE IN NEW COMEDY

tinguishing between a fine performance and a great character.

JUST why the four dramatic critics appeared in the prologue and the epilogue of "Schemers" is hard to say. There seemed to be no particular reason for it. William Harrigan takes the part of a manager who tricks the critics into his office and then gets them to stay and see a test rehearsal of his new comedy. The play is then performed, and at the end the critics come back and say that it was terrible.

A. Wood Brown was frankly contemptuous, and, barring the fact that he drank two of the manager's highballs before voicing his opinion, it seemed to me that this much of the play was true to life. However, he might have gone on to say that the play managers to be bad without being dull.

THE story concerns a young actress who is shoved into the leading role of a new production on the first night. She has to fight her way to the stage as the regular star is trying to prevent her going on and there is also a large gentleman present who insists that the young actress is his fiancee and must come back to Kansas with him. In the end it turns out that this was all a plot framed up by the manager to get the recruit in the proper emotional state for her debut.

Ralph Sipperly is very funny in a rough and tumble comedy performance as a press agent. William Harrigan is good as the manager, and Marie Carroll, Virginia Smith and Peggy Allenby are effective.

But, of course, my favorite was Leo Curley as A. Wood Brown. The performance of this rich role was masterly but I think the part should have been built up. Also, I was a little disturbed by the fact that the actor constantly mopped his forehead. I wondered if that was merely accidental, or a part of the player's conception of the character.

What Was the Sprinting About?

A SUBJECT of dramatic competition was "The Mask and the Face," a continental comedy adapted by Chester Bailey Fernald from the Italian of Luigi Chiarelli, which Brock Pemberton is presenting at the Bijou Theater. Two managers raced to make the first production of this play, and Pemberton got there first. But the cupboard proved so singularly bare that a reviewer cannot but wonder what all the sprinting was about.

This adaptation is a trifle. If done very swiftly and lightly there might be some gentle amusement in the manuscript. Unfortunately, the company did not make anything like the haste which the producer had made. All the performers plodded and the not too robust manuscript got under foot.

William Faversham was particularly pedestrian. The fault may be because of the fact that he did not know his lines and he had to pause every now and then in order to recollect. Lack of celerity was not the only failing of the company. At this first night of performance there seemed no very abundant skill in the several players assembled. To me Catherine Willard, who assumed the role of the chief personage among the women, was deficient in the dash and humor requisite for the role. Indeed, I thought no one in the whole company as much as adequate.

A Dull Play.

THE anecdote on which the play is based concerns Count Mario, who has frequently announced that he will kill his wife if he ever finds her inclined to infidelity. His suspicions are aroused, but instead of killing his wife he contents himself with announcing that he has done so and shipping her out of the country. He is tried for murder and acquitted.

Following his release from jail it is suggested that there should be a funeral for the Countess. It is during this ceremony that she returns and becomes reconciled to the Count. All the friends take it amiss.

It is a dull play.

Second Edition of "Vanities."

IN the new Earl Carroll "Vanities," at the Music Box, the young manager's second annual revue, he brings out a show full of beautiful girls, exquisitely gowned, and a book of things to be said which is scarcely ever amusing. It is a remarkable combination.

Rumblings from the provinces where "Vanities" had received its test carrial tidings of daring views and rich undress, but as it was shown last night all was serenely decent.

There were, it is true, several times when thin laces and the finest of silks were the only duds to be seen, but far and away the most attractive moments of the evening were those occupied by tremendous assemblings and marchings of scores of fancy young ladies. The first-act curtain was lowered upon a lavish display of feminine charms and stylish gowns. One hundred and eight girls, 'tis said, were there.

Sophie Tucker Featured.

MISS SOPHIE TUCKER walked on now and again, each time singing something about what she was willing to do for the right man. She seemed determined to be amiably vulgar, and she seemed also rather unimportant. Mr. Joe Cook, a reliable and versatile comic with his own material, had been given other work to do throughout the evening, most of which was not up to him.

There were numerous "skits" by men and women designed for funny relief. But there was a lad, Chester Fredericks, who brightened up the piece with his dances. And two young women sang entertainingly. All of its music is lovely. lovely.

Probably no show in town is more beautiful to look upon, and certainly none is more urgently in need of a good joke.

Soloists of the Dawning Season

CLAUDIA MUZIO —SOPRANO

CYRENA VAN GORDON —CONTRALTO

TITO SCHIPA —TENOR

VLADIMIR DE PACHMANN —PIANIST

MISCHA ELMAN —VIOLINIST.

Civic Music League to Present Five Artists

THE announcement of artists to be presented this season at the Odeon by the new Civic Music League, of which Mayor Kiel is honorary president, is as follows: Oct. 14, Vladimir de Pachmann, pianist; Nov. 18, Cyrena Van Gordon, contralto; Jan. 13, Claudia Muzio, soprano; Feb. 24, Tito Schipa, tenor, and March 17, Mischa Elman, violinist.

Miss Muzio and Schipa will be newcomers here. The former, after operatic experience in Europe and South America, became a member of the Metropolitan Opera Co., and is now a prima donna soprano of the Chicago Civic Opera Co. Schipa is leading tenor of the Chicago company.

The Whimsical de Pachmann.

DE PACHMANN, who is noted for his eccentricities as well as his art, is distinguished as an interpreter of Chopin. His last appearance in this city was as soloist with the Symphony Orchestra, several years ago. Miss Van Gordon has sung here both in opera and concert. Elman, in frequent local recitals, has impressed his hearers not only as an artist but as a maker of unhackneyed programs.

This week the purposes of the Civic Music League will be explained in five-minute addresses before various clubs and organized groups, and a drive for members will be undertaken. Memberships at $5 a year will include admission to all five concerts, and cards will admit holders to any part of the Odeon parquet or balcony, as only the boxes will be reserved. The plan is to eliminate ticket sales and subscriptions. Elizabeth Cueny is secretary-manager, and this organization is to absorb the Cueny Concert Series, which for five years has provided courses of concerts.

New Players in Symphony.

THE Symphony Orchestra Society announces that it has replaced 18 of last year's personnel with new players. The most important changes are the appointments of Ermete Simonazzi as first oboe, and Max Fuhrmann as first bassoon. The former was first oboe with the City Symphony of New York, and the latter was a member of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra.

The first violins will include three new performers, F. C. Lathrop, Joseph Faerber and Ernest Greenberger. Louis Druzinsky, formerly a member of the orchestra, will rejoin the first violin section. There will be four new second violins—Jack Fielderman, Sam Morris, Anton Votava and Harry Elman. A new recruit among the violas will be Paul Rossow. Four new contrabass players have been engaged—Sol Torgove, who succeeds his father, the late Louis Torgove; A. Brachman, Andrea Casertani and Alfons Van Reck.

Other new members will be P. Altmeyer, second flute; William H. Kruse, second bassoon, and Joseph Valetic, second trombone.

Gusikoff Again Concertmaster.

THE chiefs of the various choirs will be as follows: First violins, Michel Gusikoff; second violins, Edward Nies; violas, Jacques Tushinsky; violoncellos, H. Max Steindel; double-basses, Joseph Krausse; flutes, John Kiburz; oboes, Ermete Simonazzi; clarinets, R. M. Zottarelle; bassoons, Max Fuhrman; horns, Pelegrino Lecce and Joseph Rescigno; trumpets, Joseph Gustat, and trombones, Oscar Hallback. Mme. Graziella Pampari and Mrs. Wilhelmina Lowe-Speyer have been re-engaged as harpists.

Rudolph Ganz, director of the orchestra, was expected to land in New York today, and will arrive here next Saturday. He will return to New York after a brief stay in St. Louis, and make his second trip here in time for three special rehearsals of the string instruments, beginning Oct. 31, at which the leader will try out his new ideas for rearranging the seating of the musicians. The first general rehearsals will be held on Oct. 27.

Symphony Attendance Obligatory.

THE management announces that a block of seats has been taken by the Art Publication Society, which has made attendance at the symphony concerts an obligatory part of its courses, and will add the cost of season tickets to its regular tuition fees.

The Morning Choral Club, which held its first meeting of the season during last week, announced that the following soloists have been engaged for its concerts: Margaret O'Connor Salsman, harpist, and Royal Dadum, baritone, Nov. 13; Dusolina Giannini, dramatic soprano, for a recital in January, and Alice Gentle, mezzo-soprano, for the April concert. Miss Gentle appeared under the auspices of the club last year. Charles Galloway has been re-engaged as director, and Paul Friess as accompanist.

To Salute E. R. Kroeger.

A SPECIAL musical service in honor of the homecoming of Ernest R. Kroeger, who spent last year in Europe, will be given on the evening of Sept. 29, at the Westminster Presbyterian Church, by the Missouri Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. A program consisting entirely of Kroeger's composition will be presented, including works for organ, voice, piano and violin.

It is announced that Leo C. Miller has been reappointed as director of the Jessie L. Gaynor Choral Club of Webster Groves.

The first rehearsal of the Civic Orchestra of St. Louis will be held at 8 o'clock tomorrow night at Community Center, South Grand boulevard and Vista avenue. Students of the various string instruments who are desirous of ensemble experience are asked to present themselves at 7:30 p. m. Ellis Levy is director.

Programs of songs and operatic selections, preceded by one-act plays, all to be given in German, are announced for a series of Sunday evenings at Eagle Hall. Six principals and a five-piece orchestra will provide the entertainment.

IN STUDIO AND GALLERY

FIVE galleries of the City Art Museum are occupied at present by the nineteenth annual exhibition of painting by American artists. The show is most impressive from the standpoint of both content and arrangement. Credit for the splendid balance in installation is due E. Oscar Thalinger, registrar of the museum. The handling of the 108 paintings of such great variety and relating their positions so advantageously deserves special notice and commendation.

St. Louisans will be especially pleased by the positions accorded local pictures. While the majority are located in Galleries 26 and 27, others are scattered through the remaining three galleries. Thus, no separation of out-of-town and local paintings occurs. The St. Louis paintings compare most favorably with the rest of the show. It has been regretted by a number of visitors, however, that several of our foremost painters are not more characteristically represented, thus raising the standard of the local section of this exhibit still higher.

Mr. Carpenter's entry is disappointing. It is in no way representative of his best work, falling far short of his usual excellence in drawing, handling and character. Also "The Harbor," by Gustave Goetsch, is an inadequate example of this artist's work. It lacks unity, first, and then contains none of the richness which we are accustomed to finding in his stronger pictures, nor is it meant to be one of his more delicate, more poetic things of the opposite manner. Its frailties stand out plainly, indicating in no way the really fine ability and power of the painter. Mr. Kissack's picture, as has been remarked previously in this column, is just a sketch, revealing very little of the artist's actual style.

WALTER KLETT and John Eppensteiner, two of the younger commercial artists in town, are represented by extremely interesting canvasses. Mr. Klett's "Coquettes Amouruesses" has attracted unending comment, mostly favorable. The faulty drawing in the arm and shoulder of the feminine figure is the only thing that keeps the picture from ranking among the best in the local division. However, the unusually fine color, handling and character of the upper left-hand corner—a bronze faun whose silent piping is not in vain—compensates the defect. The manner of painting is extremely pleasant, and Mr. Klett's work, by reason of the promise in this canvas, will be pleasantly anticipated in the shows in the future.

John Eppensteiner's Portrait of Stockton Sommer, although flavored with the commercial directness of a "Lyendecker," is a very good piece of work. Its color handling is fine, especially in view of the fact that its adaptation to the portrayal of a character as vivid as that of Mr. Sommer is difficult. Its strong modeling in the brushwork is unexaggerated and in keeping with the fresh, straightforward, eager energy and youth of the model. The likeness is splendid.

The catalog of the exhibition contains a number of illustrations, among which are those of four local pictures: "A Day in June," by Tom Barnett, "Fiesta, San Juan," by Oscar Berninghaus, "Portrait of a Young Man," by William Schevill and "Gnomes," by E. H. Wuerpel.

Announcements of gallery talks available for presentation to women's clubs, organizations or classes are now being circulated by the educational department of the City Art Museum. Informal talks on American Paintings and Sculpture, Egyptian, Grecian, Roman, Persian, Chinese and Japanese art, Furniture and Decorative arts and Prints, etc., covering the various permanent collections in the museum, will be given upon request.

KATHRYN CHERRY has returned to St. Louis after spending an exceptionally interesting and profitable summer season, at her Gloucester studio. Numerous excursions to Ipswich with friends from Chicago and Washington furnished diversion and new material for pictures. Upon Mrs. Cherry's return trip home with her husband, some time was spent in New York and Boston visiting exhibitions and seeing various painters' works.

Visitors to the American Show now in progress at the City Art Museum will remark the absence of one of Mrs. Cherry's paintings from the display, although they will be glad to hear that exhibitions elsewhere containing examples of her work are responsible for the shortage here. Two pictures are on display in Dallas at the present time, one is in Rochester and one in Buenos Aires. The artist is still working on several canvases to be included soon in the exhibition of the work of the "Ten Women Painters of Philadelphia," of which society Mrs. Cherry has just been invited to become a member. The 10 members will show five canvasses each in Philadelphia, after which the collection will be displayed by the Arts Club in Washington and thence continue around a circuit yet to be determined. After this comes the Open Competitive Show at the Artists' Guild, to which Mrs. Cherry will contribute, and later in the season she expects to hold a one-man exhibition in East St. Louis.

Miss Jessie M. Gleyre, who has been studying with Birger Sandzen and Oscar Jacobsen at the Broadmoor Art Academy, received second prize for landscape in the 1924 Concour. Four oils and four water colors were entered. "Pike's Peak" and "Garden of the Gods" were the most important.

STORY hours for children begin at the City Art Museum on Oct. 4 and will continue through May of 1925. Mary Powell, Supervisor of Education at the museum, has selected subjects that appeal widely, and although the story hours are primarily held for children between the ages of 8 and 15, other young people are welcome as well as grown-ups who may care to attend. In the past season, the story hours proved exceedingly popular and their renewal has been anticipated by all who attended previously. The subjects and the dates of presentation are as follows:

Oct. 4, "In the Land of Egypt." Oct. 11, "The Story of the Parthenon." Oct. 18, "A Roman Sculptor's Studio." Oct. 25, "Pompeii, an Ancient Buried City."

Nov. 1, "Wu Tao Tzu." Nov. 8, "The Story of Persia." Nov. 15, "A Japanese Soldier." Nov. 22, "Armor and Weapons." Nov. 29, "A Treasure Ship."

Dec. 6, "Benjamin West." Dec. 13, "American Heroes." Dec. 20, "American Indians." Dec. 27, "A Christmas Story."

Jan. 3, "Chests and Cupboards." Jan. 10, "Locks and Keys." Jan. 17, "The Story of Tapestry." Jan. 24, "How Books Are Made." Jan. 31, "A Treasure Chest."

Feb. 7, "Rings and Seals." Feb. 14, "A Greek Lady's Jewel Box." Feb. 21, "George Washington." Feb. 28, "Lamps."

March 7, "About Pictures." March 14, "Story Pictures." March 21, "Pictures of Imaginary Subjects." March 28, "A Magic Bundle."

April 4, "Life in the Colonies." April 11, "American Artists." April 18, "Painters of the Sea." April 25, "Lanscape Painters."

May 2, "About Sculpture; 9, "Music in the Meseum"; 16, Pictures Without Color"; 23, "What Picture Would You Choose"?

A folder containing the calendar of the complete program for the year is now available at the Docent's desk or the Educational Office of the museum.

The American Federation of Arts has recently issued its 1924 calendar of Traveling Exhibitions available for circulation this season. Some of the most prominent shows in the country are listed and among them a collection of the works of a group of St. Louis painters. The pictures comprising the St. Louis exhibit is compiled by the Artists' Guild. This unit is available at a charge of $100.

45 NEGROES, ALL OVER 50, LEARNING TO READ

Class at Night School Being Taught Primary Subjects.

Perhaps the most interesting group of students in any of the city's night school courses is one at Sumner High School, where about 45 negroes, none younger than 50 years old, and a good many more than 65, are learning to read and write. They are divided into two classes, elementary and advanced, and after a year in the first they are always promoted.

Besides reading and writing they are taught simple arithmetical principles, how to count money nad how to make change. And they learn more rapidly than do children in the primary grades, for they have the advantage of experience.

The Sumner night school also offers courses in many other grade subjects, and the average of these grade students over 40 years old is 80 per cent. In the high school courses given at this school about 35 per cent of the students are more than 40, which is a great deal higher percentage of students over that age than at any of the other five night high schools.

Of the other high schools, Soldan has the highest average of students more than 40 with about 20 per cent. McKinley is next with 15 per cent. Central follows with 10 per cent, then Cleveland with 6 per cent, and Yeatman, lowest, with about 3 per cent, making the average attendance of those more than 40 at the six schools, not including Sumner's grade students, about 15 per cent.

One student at Central, Louis W. Thiele, of 710 North Eleventh street, is 68 years old, and is a graduate metallurgical engineer and a graduate of a homeopathic college. He is studying architectural drawing and blue printing.

NEW BOOKS FOR CHILDREN AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Any of these books will be sent by parcel post to card-holders on receipt of postage, in order of application:

"THE BOYS' BOOK OF FOREST RANGERS," by Irving Crump—An interesting account of the unusual and adventurous life of the forest rangers, "the watchful guardians of Uncle Sam's 156,000,000 acres of national forest land." Although the chief of their duties is the suppression of forest fires, they also build telephone lines, construct roads and trails, mark timber for cutting, and administer the grazing privileges of the district, which tasks make up a varied outdoor life.

"THE BOOK OF ENGLAND," by Sidney Dark.—The story of England from the days of the Romans to the present time, presenting in an interesting connected narrative the important episodes and outstanding characters of history, authors, inventors and scientists, as well as Kings and statesmen. The "Book of France" by this author is also very attractive.

"WE AND OUR HISTORY, A BIOGRAPHY OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE," by Albert Bushnell Hart.—The author, who is professor of government at Harvard University, has given a history not of the governing forces of the United States, but of the people as a whole, dealing more especially with the period since 1865. An unusual attribute of the book is the last section of each chapter, which sets in relief some American who stands for the spirit of the period described, whether explorer, colonist or statesman.

"A TRAVELER'S LETTERS TO BOYS AND GIRLS," by Caroline M. Hewins.—Miss Hewins is the librarian of the Hartford Public Library and the compiler of the first book list for girls and boys in this country. These delightful letters, written to the boys and girls to take the place of travel in countries across the sea, but are filled with literary allusions and references to books. They are illustrated with reproductions of photographs.

"THE STORY OF THE MARYS," by Grace Humphrey.—Very interesting and well written biographical sketches of well-known women whose names were Mary. The collection includes among others: Mary, Queen of Scots; Mary Ball Washington; Marie Antoinette; Mary Lamb and Mary Lyon.

"UNDER THE STORY TREE," by Mabel G. LaRue.—Simple repetitive stories for a little child's own reading; illustrated by Maud and Miska Petersham. Another pleasing little book by this author, called the "Fun Book" is a favorite with children learning to read.

"THE SCHOOL OF POETRY," edited by Alice Meynell.—Over 140 poems, for readers from 10 to 14 years, chosen mainly from English poets, arranged chronologically from Shakspeare to Walter de la Mare. The collection in interesting as a poet's selection for young readers, and for the notes.

"TREES AS GOOD CITIZENS," by Charles L. Pack.—An unusually attractive book. It is an excellent study of trees, their value and use, selection, planting and care, insects and diseases. Beautifully illustrated with color plates and black-and-white drawings which can be used in identifying varieties. This author has also written the "School Book of Forestry."

Lemonade stand, 5591 Waterman av.	4 50
Sale of handkerchief, 5911 Kingsbury bl.	2 75
Total	$4254 41

An addition of $300 was made to the Post-Dispatch Free Ice for Babies' Milk Fund last week by a check from a friend of the babies who requested that the contribution be acknowledged anonymously. This sum with $22 received from four benefit enterprises and a direct cash donation bring the total in the fund to $4254.41. When final returns from the De Molay entertainment at Forest Park Highlands are received and acknowledged the fund will approximate $4900, which is still $1600 short of the amount needed to pay the summer's ice bills. It is hoped that the other friends of the babies, realizing the need of meeting the budget of the twentieth year of the organization's activities, will respond and help in clearing up the deficit of $1600 which still exists.

Little Virginia Bowman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Bowman, 615 Clara avenue, sent $5 to the Ice Fund.

A show at 3023 Dickson street netted $5.50 for the fund. Those who took part were: Sam Shearer, Joe Selden, Morris Freelander, Morris Waldman, Alfred Chotinsky, Martin Cohen and Jake Slavo, all of whom reside in the neighborhood of the 3000 block of Dickson street.

Marjorie Goldman, Geraldine Goldman and Virginia Bay conducted a lemonade stand at 6464 Cecil avenue and earned $5 for the Ice Fund.

Returns from another refreshment stand reported last week amounted to $4.50. It was located in the 5500 block of Waterman avenue and managed by Jane and Muriel Wise and Maxine Yawitz, all of Waterman avenue.

Miss Dorothy Gottheimer, 5911 Kingsbury place, sold a handkerchief on Sept. 12 and earned $2.75 for the fund.

Shepley, treasurer, and Miss Geraldine Lermit, director. Headquarters are in the Washington University School of Medicine. The course includes six months' practice work in hospitals.

MAUDE HANAFORD, LATE FEATURED LEADING LADY WITH JOHN AND LIONEL BARRYMORE, HEADS A PERFECT CAST AND I CONSIDER HER THE PEER OF ALL AMERICAN ACTRESSES TODAY—THE PRODUCTION IS THE ORIGINAL USED IN NEW YORK AND CHICAGO—BUILT OF SOLID MAHOGANY—THE MOST NOVEL, MASSIVE AND UNUSUAL SCENIC EQUIPMENT EVER DEVISED. SENSATIONAL EFFECTS PERFECT IN DETAIL—REQUIRING DOUBLE MECHANICAL CREW OF STAGE EXPERTS TO OPERATE.
MELVILLE B. RAYMOND, Director of Tour.

CHICAGO CRITICS SAID OF CAST AND PRODUCTION:
MARGARET MANN CROLIUS, Daily News—
"A Play everybody should see"........
PAUL R. MARTIN, Chicago Journal of Commerce—
"The Deluge" does what "Anna Christie" did not do. It remains true to life to its very end, and never for a moment does its realism give way to the artificial in a final struggle to achieve the happy ending.... Taken all in all, it is a production of which Mr. Raymond may well feel proud, and he has conferred a favor upon the play-goers of Chicago by the presentation of it here"......
JOHN E. JOSEPH, Herald-Examiner—
"The play is good—not too full of words. Direction and staging splendid"......
CHARLES COLLINS, Post—
"We should be glad to incorporate "The Deluge" in the body of the American drama if we had the critical right to do so"...
FRED McQUIGG, Chicago American—
"A saloon of the other days is the scene chosen and a motley mixture of customers is the cast. The play cleverly hurdles the audience into this pit and holds them hypnotized for a day and a night.
O. L. HALL, Chicago Journal—
"There is no gainsaying the truth of this play. It so completely encloses and exposes universal frailties as to merit consideration as an important human document"......

With the approach of cooler days, playtime vigor increases. The after-school romp is the natural vent for pent-up energies of red-blooded boys and girls. Nature's "dress" and moderate temperatures add to the outdoor lure in Autumn. And the "good Janesville" has greater charm in such a setting than at any other season.

BRITISH EMPIRE EXPOSITION GREAT FINANCIAL FAILURE

Government Inquiry Expected on Meeting of Parliament—Loss to Reach Millions.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Although the British Empire exhibition at Wembley has been a big success from the point of view of exploiting the resources of the empire's far-flung dominions, its authorities face an enormous deficit and the show's finances are expected to be the subject of a Government inquiry as soon as Parliament reassembles.

The Government has already guaranteed £600,000 and the treasury officials are determined to make a searching investigation of the way the exhibition has been conducted, before releasing any of this sum.

Those who have been watching the show say it is only too apparent that large sums of money must be lost and that a call for at least 10 shillings in the pound will be made on all who guaranteed the financing of the project. Such a call would cost the Duke of Devonshire alone £200,000.

Although the aggregate losses cannot yet be estimated the treasury officials are talking about a deficit in the millions of pounds and in authoritative circles it is declared no attempt will be made to carry the exhibition another year, as was suggested earlier.

Thompson Invites About 525 Organization to Consider Findings of Board.

A conference of representatives of about 525 civic, commercial and other organizations and about 250 public-spirited individuals throughout Missouri has been called by President Guy A. Thompson of the State Bar Association in the Hall of Representatives, Jefferson City, Oct. 15, to consider the report of the bar committee on "Crimes, Criminal Law and Procedure," and to take appropriate action for reforms based on the report.

Organizations will be permitted to send as many delegates as they think proper. Responses from various organizations to which the report was sent indicated unanimous approval of it by them.

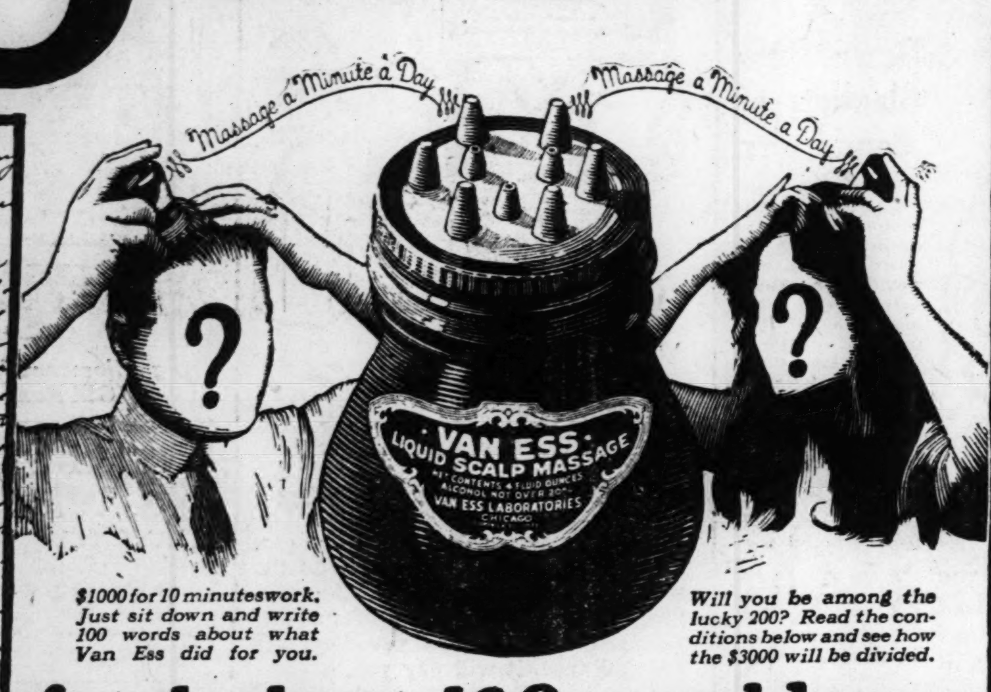
Plates and Bridge Work

$3000.00 in Prizes



$1000 for 10 minuteswork. Just sit down and write 100 words about what Van Ess did for you.

Will you be among the lucky 200? Read the conditions below and see how the $3000 will be divided.

for the best 100 word letter on results obtained from continued use of VAN ESS Liquid Scalp Massage

Three years ago Van Ess was offered to the public with a written guarantee to stop falling hair and start a growth of new hair in 90 days—or money refunded.

Since that time over one million men and women have used Van Ess. And less than 2% have asked for their money back.

Van Ess when used daily for 90 days has brought results in over 91% of cases. It does grow hair when used regularly.

Our big problem, however, has been to get people to use it long enough to give it a chance to grow hair. In short, to use it daily for 90 days.

Most people appreciate that they must brush their teeth daily to preserve them. But they seem to think, if they massage the scalp for two weeks—that their hair should stay thick and lustrous forever.

Hair needs constant care just like the teeth. Many nations abroad are already educated to this. And any specialist will tell you that your hair will respond to proper care even more than the teeth. For a new growth of hair can be developed as long as the hair roots are alive.

That is why we are conducting this contest—to demonstrate just what continued use of Van Ess will do. The testimonial letters shown here are just a few of the many unsolicited ones we have received.

One Minute Per Day

The patented massage cap makes Van Ess very easy to use. One minute each day is enough. (Less time than it takes to brush your teeth.)

Holding the Van Ess bottle as shown above, you massage the scalp. The center rubber nipples are hollow. And as you massage, the tonic is forced directly to the hair follicles. The stifled hair follicles are opened and allowed to breathe and function again. Irritation is healed. And the daily massaging brings a new flow of blood to the hair roots to stimulate its growth from within.

Results are marked. They are quick. In 30 days your hair stops falling. In 90 days a new growth will appear.

If you are not using Van Ess, go today to any drug store or department store and purchase 3 bottles. The merchant will give you a written money-back guarantee. Van Ess must grow hair in 90 days or your money refunded.

If you are a Van Ess user, read the prize-contest conditions below. We want your letter telling your experience with Van Ess.

Conditions!

The Van Ess contest consists of 200 prizes. First prize, $1000.00. Second prize, $500.00. Third prize, $250.00. Fourth prize, $125.00. Fifth prize, $75.00. Sixth prize, $50.00. Seventh prize, $25.00. Eighth prize, $15.00. And 192 prizes of $5.00 each. (In case of a tie both contestants will be given the full amount of the prize for which they are tied.)

This contest is open only to those persons who have been using Van Ess prior to the appearance of this announcement.

All letters sent in, in this contest, must be accompanied by the name of the store from which you purchased Van Ess, for all prize winning letters will be traced back through these stores to verify the fact that each prize winner is a bona fide user of Van Ess.

The prizes will be awarded for the best 100 word letter, stating what continued use of Van Ess has done for your hair and scalp; and why you believe it should be used every day just as a tooth brush is used every day. Photographs sent in with letters are not necessary, but will be considered in selecting prize winners. We reserve the right to publish any or all letters received in this contest. (Letters only.)

This prize contest will close midnight December 10th and all letters must reach us before that date. The winners of the first five prizes will be announced January 15, 1925.

Antoinette Donnelly, beauty expert of the New York News, will act as judge in deciding upon the prize winning letters in this contest. All letters should be addressed to Miss Antoinette Donnelly, Contest Dept., VAN ESS LABORATORIES, Inc., 28 E. Kinzie St., Chicago.

Messrs Van Ess Laboratories,
Kinzie St.,
Chicago, Ill.,
U. S. A.

Gentlemen

About three months ago I ordered from you three bottles of the Van Ess Massage - and have used approximately two bottles and a half (about one half a bottle having been spilled). I can see great improvement in my hair, and a lot of new hair has grown since I began using your treatment.

Yours very truly,

[illegible]
San Francisco, Calif.
October 4, 1922.

Gentlemen:

I am dropping you a few lines to report a most wonderful improvement in my hair. My head is literally covered with new hair. My scalp is clean and cool. I would be most grateful for further advice and what kind of a shampoo to use.

Thanking you for the great help I am receiving. I am 61 years old and thought nothing could help my hair. I have just finished my fourth bottle.

Youre gratefully,

Van Ess Laboratories
Sirs:-

Tucson, Arizona
May 1, 1924

As you will note by the slip returned to you that I purchased my first bottle of your Liquid Scalp Massage and a bottle of your Vanishing Shampoo on April 12, 1924 and am very pleased with the results. The dandruff has practically disappeared and a new growth of hair is rapidly coming in.

The hair on the crown of my head was beginning to thin out and this I attribute to the necessity of having to wear the "tin derby" while in the army. Previous to that my hair was very thick and heavy, but is now coming back again all in the course of three weeks, which I consider remarkable, after other methods have failed.

Sincerely yours,

Van Ess Laboratories,
Chicago,
Ill,

Dear Sirs:

Just a few lines in regard to the VAN ESS LIQUID SCALP MASSAGE.

I have been baldheaded for the last 8 years. On the 13th day of April, 1923 I bought three bottles of VAN ESS LIQUID SCALP MASSAGE, use the massage every evening before going to bed. My head is just filled with hair. Every one of my friends are astonished at the wonderful work VAN ESS LIQUID SCALP MASSAGE has done. Will send you photos of myself later.

[illegible] thank you for the wonderful [illegible] MASSAGE. I remain

[illegible]ctfully,

I was [illegible] hair back and [illegible] I was using that great h[illegible] Ess.

Announcing Our Mammoth New Warehouse in South St. Louis

Which provides one-quarter million square feet of floor area and marks another forward stride in the growth and progress of this institution

To keep pace with the rapid expansion of our business, it has become necessary for us to consolidate our present warehouse facilities into one building of mammoth proportions. This gigantic structure here shown provides us with 250,000 square feet of floor area, much more than the combined floor space of our three former warehouses. This will enable us to serve you even better because we can concentrate our railway receiving and shipping departments in the same building. It will eliminate loss of time in making city deliveries because it houses all of our stored merchandise under one roof. It will provide you even a broader selection of samples because it increases our storage facilities. Finally, it will save you money because it enables us to cut our handling cost which will be reflected in lower prices.

Touching Story of Motherless Child Who Was Sent to a Great Chicago Hospital Where Surgeons Straightened His Crippled Feet and Strangers Were Good to Him.

By F. A. BEHYMER,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

TOPTONVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 20.

SCHOOL days have come for Jimmy Noles, last year the pet patient of St. Luke's Hospital in Chicago, and at recess time he runs and jumps and shouts like other boys, because his feet, which were cruelly crooked, have been made straight.

But it does not yet appear what path his "new foots" shall tread, the way of privation with his father as his guide or the way of prosperity with foster parents as his sponsors, for the issue is not yet settled as between Bert Noles, father, who wants to keep him, and the community, which wants to take him and place him in a better home than Bert Noles can provide.

When Jimmy, then 6 years old, was tagged and sent away to Chicago, early last year, so that his club-twisted feet might have the benefit of a great surgeon's skill, he smiled and chattered his way into the hearts of men and women who want to take him and give him his chance, and it seems to be the judgment of people hereabouts that it would be better for Jimmy if they could have him, but his father is unwilling to give him up.

As for Jimmy, his feet that were crooked are now straight and the pain which was the price he paid has passed. Such pain that one day, when it seemed that he could endure no more, he prayed: "God, if you-all don't come down and help my poor foots pretty soon, I aint a-goin' to call on you no more." Help came and now there is no pain. As for privation, he has never known anything else except when he was in the hospital, and he is content for that to remain a happy recollection and live the life into which he was born.

Life is bare and raw in the cabins of the Tennessee cotton fields, where "poor whites" compete at a disadvantage with the more adaptive blacks, and it is at its barest and rawest in the cabin of Bert Noles, over toward Madie, but in the cabins of the cotton fields they speak with scorn of "the hills" which lie along the far shore of Reelfoot Lake, stretching away toward the Kentucky border, and it was out of the hills that Jimmy Noles came.

There are men here, wise in the ways of nature, who say that no good thing can come out of the hills; that society has done its best for Jimmy Noles in straightening his feet; that there is nothing more for him but to travel the road his people have traveled. But there are others who think they see in Jimmy Noles the making of something better than it is the manner of the hills to make. And they want to take him away from Bert Noles and give him his chance. But Bert Noles says "He's mine and I'm goin' to keep him," and Jimmy Noles says "He's my daddy and I'm goin' to stay with him." So what are the worldly-wise to do?

Bert Noles was born and grew in the hills around Hornbeak, across the lake. He married a girl of the hills and one who knew her says she was "a plumb good little woman," who worked hard and tried with poor success to get Bert to do the same.

She bore him a club-footed baby who was christened James Chester Noles, soon to be contracted to Jimmy, and when the child was a year old she died. Bert Noles married again. Life for the child until he was 6 years old was just a matter of "hackin' 'round," as they say in the cotton-field cabins.

The stepmother, after a while, developed tuberculosis, and her increasing infirmity added to her irritability with the child with the crooked, in-turned feet, as he hobbled about on his ankles. Bert Noles was "fractious," and beatings with whatever was nearest at hand were a part of Jimmy's daily routine, accepted as a matter of course and without resentment, as proven when the woman became helpless, by the devotion with which the child cared for her.

Bert Noles left the hills and came around the end of the lake to the cotton country on this side and knocked about as a "cotton chopper" and plowman, dragging the woman and child with him, living with them in plantation cabins on less than even terms with the negroes who were their neighbors. When the woman came to town she brought the crippled child with her. He was precocious and talkative and made friends with all who, noticing his affliction, stopped to speak to him.

In the Tiptonville Methodist Church is a Bible class of men and women. They call it the Young People's Association. Its motto is "Do Something to Help Somebody." In the class one Sunday somebody mentioned the little club-footed boy. Wasn't there something that they could do to help him?

The Bible Class Helps Jimmy

Hugh Whitford, a merchant, hunted him up that week and the next Sunday took him to the class. He was not the least abashed in the presence of 40 or 50 men and women. He held up his end of the conversation and when they asked him what he wanted most he said there wasn't a thing in the world he wanted except to have his feet made straight, so that he could run and jump like other boys.

They spoke to Dr. R. W. Griffin about it. It happened that Dr. Griffin went to college with Dr. Edwin W. Ryerson, now an orthopedic surgeon, and Dr. Ryerson had mentioned to him once, when they met again, that at St. Luke's Hospital there was provision for the treatment of charity cases of deformity and had suggested that if a deserving case of that kind came to Dr. Griffin's notice he should send it to the hospital. Dr. Griffin, in remembrance of that, had indeed spoken to Bert Noles about the possibility of Jimmy being healed, but had not been able to arouse his interest.

It was difficult to do anything with Noles even after the Young People's Association became interested. He was stubborn and distrustful. But finally he gave reluctant consent. Dr. Griffin made the arrangements for the boy to be received at the hospital. Members of the association outfitted him and on a spring day last year Whitford took him on the branch line train to Dyersburg and tied a tag on him and put a dollar and 35 cents in his pocket for contingencies and placed him in charge of the conductor. But before the conductor had time to look after him he had made up with four drummers and two of them, going to Chicago, had appointed themselves guardians for him.

The other passengers came and talked to him and he landed in Chicago with $10 in his pockets and waved good-by to a trainload of friends as he was whirled away in an ambulance to St. Luke's.

The cotton-field cabin which is now Jimmy Noles' home. Without physical handicap at last Jimmy is all set to emulate Abe Lincoln and become a great man.

He made himself at home at the hospital. The nurses petted him. The newspapers discovered him and told how he had come tagged from Tennessee to have his feet straightened. Many became interested and awaited in suspense the outcome of the operation and rejoiced when its success was assured.

But for the little boy there were weeks of suffering and months of confinement in a cast while the cure was being accomplished. Accustomed to hard knocks, he endured without complaining. One day a nurse, causing the pain that was needful to his cure, wept as she worked. That was something he could not understand. "What makes you cry," he asked, "when it's my feet you're hurtin'?"

But there came a day when his fortitude broke and the nurses, startled, heard his bitter lama sabachthani—"God, if you-all don't come down and help my poor foots pretty soon, I aint a-goin' to call on you no more."

The cure was complete and the boy was ready to be sent back to Tennessee, but the nurses wanted to keep him there for Christmas and the consent of his father was obtained. Christmas had never meant much to him before and he was well content to stay. There was a great Christmas tree and more gifts and toys than he had supposed there were in the world, and the best of all was that he could romp like other children on feet that were sturdy and straight, except when from force of habit he turned his toes inward.

Wealthy persons had become interested in the bright boy, with his queer dialect and quaint sayings, and there were several who wanted to adopt him and send him to special schools to make up for lost time and give him every chance in the world. This was communicated to the boy's friends here and they urged Bert Noles to consent, but he insisted that the child be sent back to him and there was nothing else to be done.

So on a day in January Jimmy said good-by to everybody at the hospital and in a limousine provided by a rich friend he was taken to the station and, celebrity that he was, he stood on the car platform and waved adieu to Chicago while the cameras clicked.

He was going back to the old life and he was glad, for he wanted to show his daddy and mammy his new feet and tell them about all the wonders that he had seen.

Jimmy's Father Claims Him

Bert Noles, notified of the time of his arrival, met him here at Tiptonville. He had drifted back across the border into Fulton County, Ky., while the boy was away, and he took the boy there to a slab shack in which his wife was slowly dying. The boy's friends here lost trace of him. When inquiries came from persons in Chicago who were still anxious to adopt him he could not be found.

Miss Anna Simms, Red Cross community nurse, in making her rounds, had come one day to the Noles shack and had found the boy sleeping on rags in the corner of the room in which his stepmother was sick unto death. Bert Noles was ailing too, so they were all sent off to the poorhouse. The nurse told Judge Nugent at Hickman about the boy and he went out to the poorhouse with the intention of committing him to a more suitable institution, but he was so affected by the boy's devotion to his stepmother that he refrained from separating them.

Before the woman died, there in the poorhouse, members of the Young People's Association renewed efforts in the boy's behalf. Hugh Whitford took Judge Tipton, Thomas Van Pool and M. C. Moody with him and they tried to persuade Noles to give the boy up. He said he would after his wife died.

The Duke Got Peeved When the Duchess Sued for Divorce So He Locked Her Ou

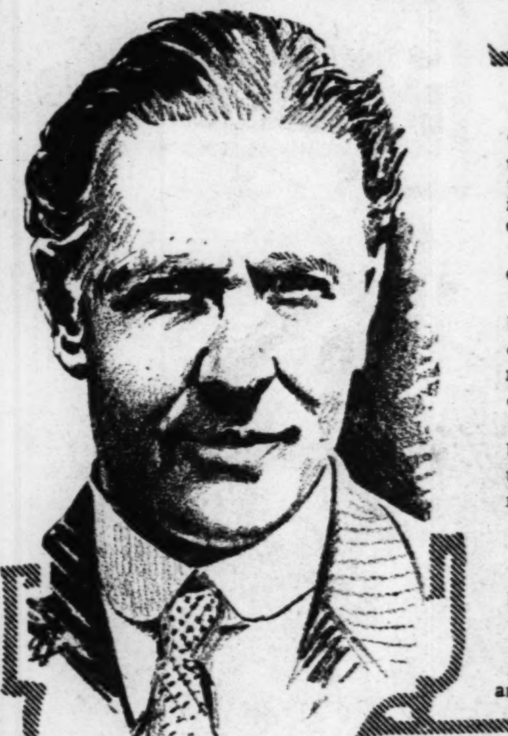
MRS. J. FITZPATRICK LEWIS.
(The former Duchess of Westminster).
Two views of the English beauty who as Miss Sheila Constance Cornwallis-West mar the young Duke of Westminster, then Lord Belgrave. They got along for a few years then the Duke's gay ways started trouble. His wife made every effort to hold him, even ing up amateur theatricals because he liked ladies of the theater, but to no avail. She go divorce in 1919 and married an English army Captain.

THE DUCHESS OF WESTMINSTER.
Taken in 1919 at the time of her wedding to the Duke.



DUKE OF WESTMINSTER.
A drawing and an informal photograph of Hugh Richard Arthur Grosvenor, Duke of Westminster, whose escapades have worried the King and Queen of England, to say nothing of two Duchesses, one who divorced him and the other who has filed suit.

The Duke Is a Gay Dog and Won't Stay Home Nights. His Duchess, After Many Remonstrances, Brings Suit Alleging That He Associated With Numerous Ladies of the Stage Despite Her Warnings. When His First Wife Got Troublesome, the Duke Locked Her Out of Grosvenor House, His Principal London Home. He followed the Same Plan With His Second Duchess, Barring Her From Bourdon House, Her Residence.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON,

THE Duchess of Westminster came home to Bourdon House one evening and found the doors locked. It was annoying. Duchesses do not carry door keys, leaving that to their butlers. As a rule, Duchesses walk in and out and someone else opens and closes the doors. But here was a Duchess confronted by portals which did not swing open at her approach.

It is presumed that the Duchess of Westminster frowned. It is known that she sent her footman to the iron gates. After a distressing wait, the footman returned.

"Beg pardon, your Grace," he said, "but your Grace is locked out."

"By whose authority?" asked the Duchess.

"They say it is by orders of his Grace."

His Grace, being the Duke of Westminster and the Duchess' husband, there was nothing for her to say. At least, not to a footman. She sent the lackey back to inquire if her maid might collect her clothes. But the Duke's officers refused to permit the maid to leave the house, where she was being held a virtual prisoner. Not one party frock could the Duchess take. Not a slipper.

The wife of one of England's richest peers was locked out. She knew why, too. The Duke was peeved because she had filed suit for divorce. The Duke had made it very plain, oh very. She realized that he would not want her at Grosvenor House, his principal London mansion. Nor would she be welcome at Eaton Hall, the Duke's country seat. Nor at his place in Deauville, nor his palace in Rome, nor his hunting lodge in France. Where would the homeless wife turn for lodging?

Of course the Duchess still had friends. Queen Mary might take her in for one night. The Duchess of York possibly could offer a spare bedroom. There was just a chance that the Countess of Carnarvon had already opened her London palace. Then there was dear Viscountess Lascelles who would be glad to have her. And at the worst, she could always stop at the Savoy or the Ritz.

The Duchess Plays With the Prince

However, the Duchess could not help feeling a bit put out. She climbed back into her limousine and went somewhere for the night. The next day she demanded an explanation from the Duke. But he, cautious man, had left the country. Nervous secretaries scanned the Times for the expected notice, "[illegible] no longer be responsible for any debts contracted by my wife. Signed, Hugh Richard Grosvenor, Duke of Westminster." The Duke, however, did not go that far.

The Duchess, to steady her nerves, sailed for New York where she joined the Prince of Wales and his party on Long Island. She has been the life of many parties given in the Prince's honor, it is said.

The fact that the Duchess had sued for divorce did not come out until the other day when her solicitors back in London presented argument for an injunction restraining the Duke from barring his wife from Bourdon House. The motion was dismissed after a hearing, but the divorce suit is still pending. In this action the Duchess' solicitors allege the Duke has treated her with great cruelty since their marriage in 1920.

Her petition avers:

"The defendant's relations with other women were such that the plaintiff remonstrated with him at Cannes last January. Plaintiff warned defendant that unless he altered his mode of life she had no alternative but to separate from him. The defendant refused to accede to the plaintiff's wishes in respect to other women, and suggested that they separate, she (the plaintiff) to take up her abode at Bourdon House."

At the divorce hearing it developed that the Duke had offered his wife an annuity of $40,000 if she would get a divorce. The Duchess declined the alimony, insisting that she be given Bourdon House as her residence and $75,000 a year. The Duke then offered in addition to the $40,000 to provide a suite for the Duchess in Claridge's Hotel, London.

Both the lockout and the divorce suit have aroused comment in court circles.

Most of England being interested, the newspapers recalled that the lockout was nothing new in London and nothing new for the Duke. He had locked his first wife from his home in 1919. The first Duchess of Westminster was Constance Edwina Cornwallis-West, youngest daughter of the late Colonel Cornwallis-West. She, the story goes, attended a ball at Buckingham Palace to which the Duke was not invited as a snub for his racy escapades, and he had warned her that if she went she needn't come home. She went and she came home, only to find the iron gates of Grosvenor House shut tight. This so enraged her that she filed suit for divorce, which was what the Duke wanted her to do. She got the divorce, easily.

As has been said, the second Duchess of Westminster is acting in the same manner. She has been through the divorce courts once before. Her first divorce was in 1920 from George Rowley, a Lieutenant in the Household Cavalry. Before her first marriage she was Miss Violet Mary Geraldine Nelson, daughter of Sir William Nelson, owner of the Nelson Line of steamships. English society of late rather frowns on two divorces. Her friends say that the Duchess hesitated until things became intolerable as she did not care to jeopardize her social position.

The Duke Can't Be Bothered

Anyway, the Duke has fallen out with two wives, and for the same reason, his friends say. The Duke cannot be bothered with petty jealousies. Only last year, gossip goes, the Duke was entertaining a lovely Spanish dancer on his yacht off the Riviera when his Duchess came on board and threw the dancer's clothes into the sea. Several times the first Duchess of Westminster turned up at embarrassing moments and there were scenes. It got to be quite a joke for the Duke's playmates to say, "Look out, here comes the Duchess." It got on the Duke's nerves. After all, a Duke without a Duchess is less often in Dutch.

King George and Queen Mary have another worry, now. At the time of Westminster's first marital trouble they patched up one outbreak and made every effort to prevent the Duchess from suing for divorce. It is believed that they may mediate in this his second row. King George may any day call Westminster to Buckingham Palace and in effect say, "Now, Hugh Richard Arthur Grosvenor, be a good fellow and let your wife in again. Unlock the doors, there's a fine chap." It has long been common talk in London that the House of Windsor is alarmed over the general disrepute into which some of the nobility have fallen. What with socialism rampant and a Labor Government in office it ill behooves the elect to parade too openly their feet of clay.

Westminster has been having a hard time. The war laid such heavy taxes on his holdings, and his own fast pace was such an enormous drain on his resources that a year ago he was said to be reduced to a mere $500,000 a year. It was this stringency that caused him to sell Gainsborough's "Blue Boy" for $750,000 to H. E. Huntington, American street railway magnate. He is said to have disposed of his other art treasures and Grosvenor House from which the Duchess has been barred now is in listings as "for sale or for rent." The Duke, when in London, resides at Bourdon House. The art treasures, collected by the Duke's father, included paintings by Titian, Raphael, Murillo, Rembrandt, Rubens, Vandyke, Velasquez, Verontess, Reynolds, Hogarth, Brouwer and Turner.

The Duke's inheritance included 12,000 acres of land in England. Of this 600 acres lie in London and are enormously valuable, some London ground selling for $1500 a front foot. The Duke owns large holdings in Mayfair, the exclusive residence section. His city home, Grosvenor place is located at the head of Grosvenor Square and is one of the show houses of the city. It was built by the first Duke of Westminster in the Eighteenth century, but has been more notable for its art treasures than for its architecture, although that is sumptuous.

For a number of years Westminster h been notoriously land-poor. The policy his house prohibited him from selling a f of his land holdings, as the ducal propert must be held intact to retain the duked prestige. However, Hugh Richard made for this in squandering his other availab assets so that two years ago a trustees was established to curb the nobleman's e travagances. The details of his exces have been meager, due to the fact that En glish papers carefully protect the names great men from gossip about their pec dillos.

The other day, though, a report came fr Spain which cited a good example of Duke's free-and-easy hand with money. certain French actress was halted on the b der because she did not have 10,000 fran as bond for her automobile, which sought to take into Spanish territory. actress chanced to be financially embarr Matters were at an impasse. Financial experts have ranked Westm ster's fortune at $500,000,000, third larg in the world, being exceeded only by of Henry Ford and the Rockefellers.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 20.

ONCE upon a time (not so long ago) two sisters—the younger was named Kate and the older, Emily—lived with their stern father in a palace at Lenox, Mass. Had they dwelt in a kingdom instead of a republic they certainly would have been called Princess Kate and Princess Emily, for their family name was Winthrop. The Winthrops of Massachusetts early partook of the Sacred Codfish and always have been permitted to speak to the Lowells, who, according to tradition speak only to the Cabots, who, according to tradition hardly speak to anyone whatsoever.

The Winthrop sisters were very unhappy in their beautiful home. The lord of the palace, Grenville Lindall Winthrop, kept his daughters secluded, not wishing them to marry. Their mother had died when Kate was born, and the tragedy had so embittered Winthrop against marriage that he had resolved to save his girls from a possible similar fate. He was rich and was able to build his castle in the center of a great estate with high walls about and many gatemen. Sometimes he would take Miss Kate and Miss Emily to another palace on Park Avenue in New York, but on these trips they were not permitted to speak to men. This, of course, made them sad. They were only girls, after all.

Just like real Princesses imprisoned. Miss Kate and Miss Emily dreamed of the day when their lovers should come riding. Infrequently, gallant knights clad in plus-fours and Tilden sweaters braved the elder Winthrop's wrath to play golf or tennis with the sisters. But the Misses Winthrop felt they were not true loves. Somehow, the romantic appeal was not there. Only poor girls dream of rich Princes who drive imported automobiles. Rich girls know too much about Princes. The Misses Winthrop dreamed about men good and true and poverty-stricken.

The Princes Are Late in Coming

But the years went by and Miss Kate was 24 while Miss Emily had reached 30. No indigent but proud Apollo had saved either from death. No gallant beggar who spent his pennies like a Prince had looked into the eyes of either. Life was dull for the poor little rich girls.

The only poor men in sight were Corey J. Miles, the Winthrop chauffeur, and Darwin Morse, an electrician, who occasionally came out from Lenox to Ethelwynd, the Winthrop estate, to fix doorbells or put in light fuses. That is, they were the only young and unmarried poor men allowed to be about the place.

Looking from the window of her room toward the stables, Miss Emily often watched Miles in his chauffeur's livery washing the Winthrop limousine. She liked the deft, masterly way in which he handled sponge and chamois skin. In order to keep his position Miles was obliged to work a little, and Miss Emily never had seen a man of her acquaintance work. It was a novel situation. Then too, Miles knew about automobiles. Much more than Miss Emily did. His knowledge won her respect.

She took to dropping around at the garage, ostensibly to see that her father's cars were kept in good shape. Miles would explain things to her; respectfully, worshipfully. Miles was sometimes greasy and always virile. She had seen so few virile men.

It came to be that Miss Emily would select roadsters for her automobile drives. Miles, on the same seat, handled the wheel.

"Have you ever thought of doing anything besides being a chauffeur, Miles?" she probably asked, one day.

Doubtless Miles looked wistful and then shook his head.

"I've thought about it, Miss Emily, but I wouldn't want to leave here."

The Lenox, Mass., home of Darwin Morse, electrician who married Miss Kate Winthrop. She lived in a castle on her father's estate near Lenox in Berkshire Hills. Morse has not announced whether they will go to his humble home to live.

Miss Emily took the reply to mean, "I wouldn't want to leave you."

Here was a man who really had ambition, but was sacrificing it to what he believed was his hopeless love. Princesses like worship, and blind affection. They get neither from Princes, as a rule, who are also seeking worship and blind affection.

Meanwhile Miss Kate was finding herself much interested in Morse, the electrician. She liked to watch him work with his pliers and rubber tape. It was marvelous, she thought, to be able to discover what was wrong with a doorbell and fix it just like that. She decided she admired men who do things. Morse, like Miles, was often dirty and unkempt, but always virile. Like Miles, too, he suggested the tragedy of unrequited love.

"You must be happy with so many things to do," Miss Kate would remark.

"Yes," he would say. "But it's tough not to have a chance in life. If I were a millionaire now——."

And his eyes would suggest, "I'd ask you to marry me."

The Stern Parent Objects

If Grenville Lindall Winthrop had been all-wise he would at this juncture have summoned his daughters for a little chat.

"Girls," he would have said, "I know you are in love with poor men. Invite them to meet us, socially. I heartily favor your marriages. I'm sure you'll be happy with the men of your choice. Character, not dollars and blue-blood, is the making of a man."

They probably would never have considered Chauffeur Miles and Electrician Morse again.

Instead, catching them in conversation with common workmen, Winthrop stormed. He did not suspect anything serious, but he put his foot down hard on what he had seen. There must be no more hanging about the garage, and Morse should not be summoned to fix any more doorbells.

Miss Emily and Miss Kate felt at once that their lovers were being persecuted. All the world was against them, because they were poor. Well, at least two persons understood. Two would stay by them.

Followed clandestine meetings in Lenox; trips to picture shows; drives through the Berkshire Hills in the sisters' two automobiles. Their maternal grandmother had left each $1,500,000 so they were independent of their father, financially. It took only a short time for Miss Emily to decide that she must marry Miles, 34 years old and a widower. She thought him fascinating. She, who was reared in luxury and schooled as a sculptress; she, the mistress of a fine studio at Ethelwynd; she, the artist and woman of culture. Her sister Kate arrived at the same decision concerning 23-year-old Darwin Morse.

The Double Elopement

They told Miss Helen Holmes, their companion: "We're desperate. We're going to elope." And they pledged her to secrecy.

One evening two weeks ago, they eloped. They drove to Interlakes, a small town near Lenox and were married and then they departed for their honeymoons in the two automobiles. Back at Ethelwynd, their father was overcome when he heard the news.

Mrs. Robert Winthrop, 66 years old, summoned the family. Beekman Withrop, former assistant Secretary of the Navy, hurried from New York. Frederic Winthrop hurried from his Boston home. Mrs. Hamilton Fish Kean came over from Southampton. Mrs. J. Herman Van Roiken of Rome was the only aunt who could not get over for the conference. One can fancy the talk:

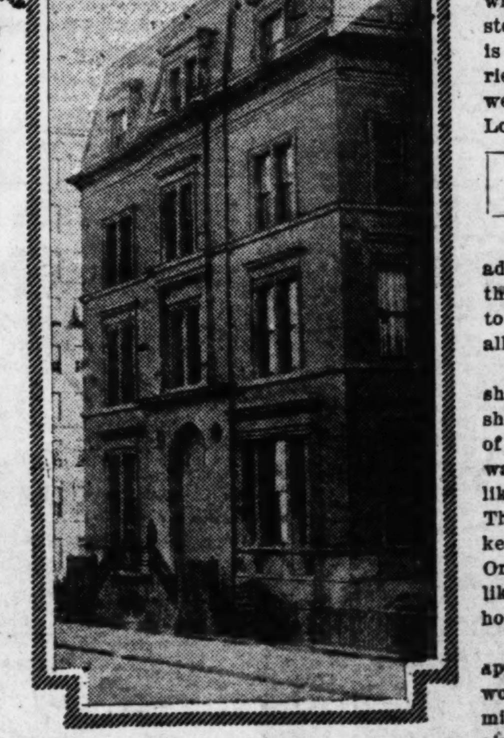
"A common chauffeur. What could Emily have been thinking of?"

"An electrician—what do they do, some greasy work, eh? Ye gods, what a match, what a match!"

"Surely they'll see their mistake and leave these—these persons!"

But neither Miss Emily nor Miss Kate has seen her mistake. They are still motoring through New England and denying audience to reporters. Their father has forgiven them, but he will not receive their husbands.

Once more the American public was given opportunity to discuss the question, "Can any American really make a mesalliance." The Misses Winthrop have not lacked for support in their matches. Those who applaud have pointed to the unlovely truth that there no longer is an American aristocracy. Only a plutocracy. Our gentlemen and ladies are so easily made nowadays. A man's tailor and his architect and his bootlegger can give him entree to the so-called "society sets." Lads are taken from all types of homes, sent to West Point and Annapolis for four years and become officers and gentlemen with entree to the best circles in the land.



The Winthrop New York mansion at 38 East 37th street. The sisters' finest home, however, was at Lenox where they lived with their father in a veritable palace.

Well then, if wealthy gentlemen can marry chorus girls; why can't the Misses Winthrop marry a chauffeur and an electrician. Isn't this the day of labor?

Those who condemn them speak of the New England silk-stockings; the doctrine of noblesse oblige; the clash of environments, tastes and abilities. They point to other marriages of the kind which have ended in divorces.

However, there have been a few instances in which wealthy American girls married poor men and are still married to them. For example, Louisa and Edith Webb, daughters of J. Beaver Webb, millionaire associate of J. P. Morgan.

Miss Louisa Webb, an enthusiastic horsewoman, used to ride every day in Central Park. One day she passed Thomas Leonard, handsomest of the park's mounted policemen, on a bridle path. She liked the way he rode a horse. Women have fallen in love for lesser reasons. They rode together. They talked together. They skated together. After this had been going on for seven years, and when everyone thought Miss Louisa understood that the place for a mounted policeman is a park, not a mansion, she up and married him. The Four Hundred gasped. There were wagers it would not last a year. Miss Louisa's father was furious.

A True Life Fairy Tale

But, the tale came true. Won over by his admiration for Leonard's horsemanship, Father Webb relented, and Leonard was able to leave the force. Since then he has had all the horses he wants to ride.

Soon after this, Louisa's sister, Edith, was showing at a horseshow in Chicago. There she met George Miles, groom in the stables of a Lake Forest millionaire. She liked the way he threw a blanket over a horse. She liked his gentleness. She too, succumbed. They were married and went to live in a keeper's lodge provided by Miles' employer. Once more, the stern father relented. He liked good horsemen. He welcomed Miles home.

Another and more recent example of an apparent mesalliance which seems to be working out is the union of Mathilde McCormick, daughter of the Chicago multimillionaire and Max Oser, the Swiss riding master. Despite opposition by her father, Miss Mathilde went to Switzerland and married her 42-year-old commoner. They are living in peace and possible contentment in Paris with their baby daughter.

Of course there are good fairies and bad fairies; good fairy stories and bad fairy stories.

Miss Victoria Morosini, daughter of Giovanni Morosini, a wealthy New York banker, met and fell in love with a coachman employed on her father's Riverdale-on-Hudson estate. She eloped and was miserable. So her father resolved that his other daughter, Giulia, should marry in her own set. Alas, fairy stories manage to thwart fathers.

One day, Miss Giulia and her father were driving in Central Park. Their horses ran away. Arthur Werner, a mounted policemen, saved their lives. As a reward, Morosini made Werner superintendent of his estate.

This Time It Didn't Work

It was not long before Giulia had fallen in love with Werner. She was known as the best dressed woman in New York, often boasting that she spent $200,000 a year on her clothes. Morosini died and Giulia appointed Werner manager of her inheritance. She and the ex-policeman, blossomed forth in the clothes and spats of a gentleman, were seen together frequently at social affairs. Werner presently divorced his first wife and married Giulia. They did not try love in a cottage. There might have been a moral in their mistake. They started housekeeping in the Morosini mansion.

When the storm broke Giulia acted vigorously. She hired detectives to throw Werner bodily off the estate. Then she stationed guards to prevent his return. On the ground that his divorce from his first wife had been obtained fraudulently she had their marriage annulled.

Sculptresses, heiresses and horsewomen have not been the only ones to try marriage with those beneath them in the social scale. Marguerite Matzenauer, star of the Metropolitan Opera Company, desired marriage with a 100 per cent man. No wealthy idler for her. No pampered Prince. She wanted just a common ordinary man. She got him.

Floyd Glotzbach was his name. He was a chauffeur. Like all chauffeurs he seemed wistful. He adored Madame. He worshiped from afar. She decided that here was the one for her. They were married.

Within the year they mutually agreed it had been a mistake. Glotzbach found living with a temperamental prima donna was not so easy as it appeared from the driver's seat of her limousine. She wanted him to lace her and tie her shoe strings, and button her buttons and sit while she practiced the scale. Besides, he disliked sitting on the rear seat of her limousine and watching a chauffeur drive who didn't know his art. So he filed suit for divorce alleging mental cruelty and obtaining it, went back to a job as chauffeur.

The prime case, always cited in drawing room discussions of the subject, by those who disapprove messalliances is that of Julia French. Miss French reigned as a belle in Newport, partly because of her personal charm and partly because she was an heiress to a few of the Vanderbilt millions. She fell in love with "Handsome Jack" Geraghty, the family chauffeur. Her marriage was a sensation along the Atlantic coast. Julia's father disinherited her, promptly and most of her friends cut her cold. She stuck to love in a cottage for a time and took her troubles to a divorce court. Mrs. Geraghty in 1911 married Howard Williams, a broker and society man, and settled down to a supposedly happy life.

It doesn't matter much how many cases one cites. Most heiresses still believe in fairies.

Rheumatic Pain Ended by Treating Inflamed Nerves

In Every Case of Rheumatism, Neuritis, Sciatica or Lumbago, the Actual Pain Is Caused by Irritation or Pressure on the Nerves in the Muscles or Joints.

Pain in all forms of rheumatism, neuritis, lumbago or sciatica is always due to an irritation or inflammation of the nerves. When you feel pain in a muscle, it is the nerves of the muscle that hurt; when the pain is in a joint, it is the nerves of the joint that are affected, just as everyone knows that in a toothache, the pain is in the nerve of the tooth.

The reason so many sufferers fail to get any real relief from liniments and ointments is because these are surface applications only and do not reach the nerves where the pain is. Just as a dentist treats the nerve to end toothache, so must a remedy reach the pain in the nerve of the muscle or joint before it can give you relief.

German science, which has long specialized in the relief of pain, has now produced a remedy known as Buhler Oil which when applied to a painful joint or muscle, penetrates right through the skin, reaches the inflamed or irritated nerves—no matter how deep seated—so that relief from pain is quickly obtained from the first application.

Buhler Oil can be had from any of the druggists named below with a written guarantee of sure relief or money back: Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Judge & Dolph Drug Stores, Keiffer Drug Co., (2 stores), Enderle Drug Co. (6 stores), Johnson Bros. Drug Co.

"CORNS"

FREEZONE

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.

The Easiest Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely, and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly; and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS PLAN "JUBILEE WEEK"

Local Councils to Hold Celebration During Week Beginning Oct. 5.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the institution of the first Council of the Knights of Columbus west of the Mississippi River will be observed during the week of Oct. 5 to 12.

This has been designated as "Jubilee Week." The ceremonies and exercises will be participated in by the 15,000 members of the order in St. Louis and St. Louis County. Invitations will be extended to the 98 Councils in Missouri and to the East St. Louis Councils.

The arrangements for the several celebrations will be in charge of committees representing the St Louis Chapter, the St. Louis Council and the St. Louis General Assembly. The week's program will include the exemplification of the fourth degree of the order, at a meeting Sunday afternoon, Oct. 5, at Hotel Statler. This will be followed by a banquet, which will be attended by the Supreme Council officers and members of the Board of Directors, and to which all members of the order will be invited. St. Louis Council No. 453, which is the oldest Council west of the Mississippi River, will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of its institution with a banquet and ball at the Hotel Chase.

On Columbus day, Sunday, Oct. 12, members of the Knights of Columbus will assemble on Lindell boulevard, east of Grand boulevard, at 7 a. m. and, escorted by the Zouaves and the Fourth Degree Assembly, in full regalia, will march to the Cathedral, where the members will receive holy communion at the 8 o'clock mass.

At 3 o'clock, in conjunction with the Italian societies of St. Louis, the knights will decorate the statue of Columbus, which stands at the Grand boulevard entrance to Tower Grove Park. John E. Riley, master of the St. Louis General Assembly, will be the chairman of the meeting and addresses will be made by several nationally known speakers. At 7 o'clock a banquet will be held at the Hotel Statler under the auspices of St. Louis Chapter. Dr. R. Emmett Kane will be the toastmaster.

PRESIDENT WILL ADDRESS RED CROSS CONVENTION

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—President Coolidge will actively assume the presidency of the American National Red Cross, when the annual convention meets here early in October. He is expected to preside at the opening session.

Round table discussions of the various angles of Red Cross work; a pageant in which 150 young folk will participate to illustrate the organization's influence in the schools; a demonstration of lifesaving methods in the water by experts; and a foreign and pan-American night, are features of the convention.

Due to the great prevalence of appendicitis, a London insurance company offers to insure people against the cost of the removal of the appendix. This takes away any anxiety regarding the expense of an appendicitis operation, but, of course, does not remove the worry.

A Treacherous Disease.

Appendicitis attacks at any moment even persons seemingly in good health. Usually, however, it is preceded by stomach or bowel trouble. When there is an uneasy feeling in the abdomen, appendicitis can be guarded against in the same way in which one guards against the spread of throat infection—because appendicitis is an infection in the intestines spreading to the appendix. In case of sore throat, further trouble may often be prevented by using an antiseptic wash or gargle to fight the germs and a laxative to carry off the poisons from the body. Just so, one can fight the intestinal germs and guard against appendicitis—but instead of an antiseptic for the throat, an INTESTINAL antiseptic is needed.

Intestinal Antiseptic.

There is now offered to the public a liquid preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a complete system cleanser. This preparation, known as Adlerika, acts as follows: It tends to eliminate or destroy harmful germs and colon bacilli in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here. It cleans out BOTH upper and lower [illegible] removes foul matter which poisoned the system for months. It brings out all gases, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter Adlerika draws from the intestinal canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much MORE foul matter it brings out which was poisoning you. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach or sick headache, one spoonful Adlerika ALWAYS brings relief. A longer treatment, however, is necessary in cases of obstinate constipation and long-standing stomach trouble, preferably under direction of your physician.

Reports From Physicians.

"I have found nothing in my 50 years' practice to excel Adlerika." (Signed) Dr. James Weaver.

"I congratulate you on the good effect from Adlerika since I prescribed it." (Signed) Dr. L. Langlois.

"I use Adlerika in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose." (Signed) Dr. F. M. P. (Name withheld by request).

"Adlerika is the best in my entire 37 years' experience." (Signed) Dr. G. Eggers.

"Cannot describe awful IMPURITIES eliminated from my system (by Adlerika). Feel better than for 20 years." (Signed) J. E. Puckett.

Adlerika is a big surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines, because of its quick, pleasant and COMPLETE action. It is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

Sold in St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., 7th and Washington, Enderle Drug Co. and other leading druggists.

JEWISH SERVICES AT SCOTTISH RITE BUILDING

Temple Israel Congregation to Observe New Year and Atonement Day.

The congregation of Temple Israel this year will celebrate the Jewish New Year and Day of Atonement services at the Scottish Rite Cathedral, 3625 Lindell boulevard, instead of at the congregation's own sanctuary. This change benefits not only the members, whose numbers have become so great that Temple Israel will not accommodate them at these services, but also gives an opportunity for nonmembers to attend.

The members and families of the congregation now number about 2000, twice as many as can be accommodated at Temple Israel. The auditorium at Scottish Rite Cathedral seats 3000 persons, which means that room will be had not only for all the members, but for 1000 guests as well.

The reception of 1000 guest worshipers is in accord with a "free synagogue" plan which Rabbi Leon Harrison, pastor of Temple Israel, has long advocated. This plan advocated a church to which members would be admitted, not for any fixed amount of dues, but for any amount they were able to pay. The first step toward this type of synagogue was taken last year, when it was decided to admit persons under 21 to junior membership and persons of 21 to 25 to regular membership at decreased rates.

According to Rabbi Harrison, for perhaps the first time in the history of any St. Louis synagogue ample space will be provided for all who care to worship during the approaching holidays. Before this it has always been necessary to have someone stationed at the door to inquire of every applicant for admittance as to whether or not he was a member. And if he wasn't, to refuse him admittance because of crowded quarters.

The New Year services will be celebrated next Saturday evening and the following Monday, and the Day of Atonement services on the evening of Oct. 5 and all day Oct. 6.

MAH JONGG COSTLY TO U. S.

$186,000 Monthly for Sets Shipped From Shanghai.

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

TOKIO, Sept. 5.—Shipping authorities here announced yesterday that their reports from Shanghai show that port alone sends $186,000 worth of mah jongg sets a month to the United States.

At that rate the people over there spend more than $2,225,000 a year on this game alone. That isn't taking into account the vast number of these sets being imitated by firms in America, nor the duty that has to be paid on the sets shipped from China.

SON TROUBLED WITH PIMPLES

On Face For About a Year. Healed by Cuticura.

"My son was troubled with pimples on his face for about a year. They were red and festered and scaled over. The pimples itched causing him to pick them, which made them worse, and his face looked badly. He read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. It helped him so he purchased more, and in about six weeks he was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Rose Waterman, Teton, Wyoming.

Clear the pores of impurities by daily use of Cuticura Soap and occasional touches of Cuticura Ointment as needed to soften, soothe and heal. They are ideal for the toilet, as is also Cuticura Talcum.

Samples Free by Mail. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. H, Malden 48, Mass." Sold everywhere. Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Try our new Shaving Stick.

Who will write the story of the American Druggist?

SOME day some writer with a gift for portraying the every day things of life in immortal language is going to find the theme for a wonderful novel in the person of the American druggist. It will be a book that will come pretty close to establishing itself as the great American novel if the right writer gives his talent to the task.

Service is a much used and much abused word today. But nowhere in modern life is there a service rendered to humanity that is more devoted and less spectacular than the twenty-four-hour-a-day, three-hundred-and-sixty-five-day-a-year service that the American druggist cheerfully gives.

During this week, the druggists of America are convening in the National Capital, pledging themselves to do even more than they have been doing for you and yours.

DIAMOND WORTH MORE THAN $1,500,000 WORN IN LONDON

It Belongs to Wife of Indian Captain of Industry.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—London can lay claim at present to holding the three largest cut diamonds in the world. Besides the famous Cullinan stones in the British state regalia—one in the scepter and the other in King George's crown—the celebrated Tata Jubilee diamond is occasionally seen here at exceptionally brilliant assemblies.

This jewel is owned by Sir Dorabji Tata, Indian captain of industry and one of the richest men in the world. The stone was found by a Kaffir at the Jagersfontein mine, Orange River Colony, 30 years ago. In the rough state it weighed 971½ carats, but, like the Cullinan stones, owing to a flaw it had to be cut in two—the largest portion forming a perfect brilliant weighing 239 carats, which Lady Tata, now on a visit here, sometimes wears.

The Tata diamond was exhibited at the Paris Exhibition in 1900, when a price of £300,000 ($1,500,000) was placed on it. Its value has steadily enhanced since then, and some experts declare it the most beautiful diamond that ever left the cutters' hands.

Rumor has it that negotiations are afoot for its sale to an American, in which event, considering its steady increase in value, it in all probability will fetch the largest sum ever paid for a precious stone.

THE DUKE GOT PEEVED AND LOCKED THE DUCHESS OUT

pleasures did not coincide with those of the Duchess. She loved her husband and wanted him to stay at home. He had a strong aversion to the solid virtues of a domestic Englishman. Life offered him one affair after another one magnum of champagne after another, one whim after another. He developed a system at stage doors and a system at Monte Carlo. He played a dozen maximums at Monte Carlo, but probably one at a time at stage doors.

All this went very well, so long as the Duke was ordinarily discreet, as English gentlemen usually are. But in 1913 he was seen openly in Paris with Gertie Millar, a music hall queen. The Duchess learned of it and decided she was through. She filed suit naming many ladies of the theater, principally Gertie Millar. The Duke retaliated by naming a Spanish grandee, the Duke of Alba. London was all agog over the scandal and the gossipers hoped for long sessions in court. But King George interfered. He told the Duke and Duchess that there must be no divorce.

Then came the war and the Duke as an officer in the Household Artillery did his duty for the King like a good Grosvenor. The Duchess opened a hospital at Grosvenor House and their domestic troubles were forgotten, the Duke being well occupied in Flanders. But after the war the Duke returned to his gay ways and then came that evening when the Duchess went to the royal ball against his wishes. He locked her out. She sued for divorce, alleging misconduct, and got her decree Shortly after she married Capt. J. F. Fitzpatrick Lewis, whom she had met during the war.

The Duke had two daughters by his first marriage and a son, who died at an early age. His eldest daughter, Lady Ursula Grosvenor was reported engaged to Jack Anthony, a jockey, but the engagement was broken and she married Capt. Filmer-Sankey of the Life Guards in 1921.

Going blithely on his way the Duke met Mrs. Violet Rowley at Monte Carlo in 1920 and fell in love with her. She was 28 and he in the forties. She is described as being petite and vivacious, a great horsewoman and sporting enthusiast. She had at that time just divorced her officer husband and her marriage to the Duke followed the granting of her final decree within nine days.

Like the first Duchess the second was soon disillusioned. The Duke could not be bothered with a wife. He had an affair with an actress before they left Monte Carlo and the actress openly snubbed the Duchess in the Casino one evening. There was a rumor, also, that the Duke and a young woman—not the Duchess—were marooned on a small island in the Mediterranean for a while. This did not please the Duchess. She boarded the Duke's yacht one night and surprised a gay party in progress. In high rage she seized the clothes of the Spanish dancer and hurled them overboard. They had rested in the Duke's cabin. She tried to throw the dancer after the clothes, but friends restrained her.

Then there was the case of the Parisian modiste whom the Duke long had been pursuing. Several years before he and the Grand Duke Cyril of Russia had been rivals for her favor. The Duke won and Paris and London gossiped. Then Westminster let it be whispered about that he was trying to persuade the Duchess to divorce him. The Duchess held out for awhile. Perhaps she thought it was a mean trick of him to lock her out, and she'd be mean, too. What better revenge could she have than to remain Duchess of Westminster and keep the old joke alive? The Duke's friends would be able to say then, "Better look out, the Duchess is coming." It was such a good joke in the old days.

To Keep Hair Curly Wavy and Beautiful

Here is how your hair can be curled nicely, easily and harmlessly, to "stay curled." Before doing it up, apply a little liquid silmerine with a clean toothbrush. This will give you just the prettiest curls and waves—and they will look and feel so natural you'll never think of doing without silmerine there-after. You won't be troubled any more with hair stringing around your face—with burnt, uneven ends, nor with that dull, dead appearance. The hair, whether long or bobbed, will remain in curl ever so long.

Any druggist can supply you with liquid silmerine at not to exceed 90 cents an ounce. It is neither sticky nor greasy, and is really a delightful thing to use. It is doubly useful because of also serving as a beneficial dressing.

Acids in Stomach Cause Indigestion

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How to Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not, as some believe, to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoon full in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excessive acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Is Your Blood Hungry for Iron?

Iron Is the Red Blood Food That Gives You Strength, Energy and Power—How to Make the Test That Tells.

Actual blood tests show that a tremendously large number of people who are weak and ill lack iron in their blood and that they are ill for no other reason than lack of iron. Iron deficiency paralyzes healthy, forceful action, pulls down the whole organism and weakens the entire system. A pale face, nervous irritable disposition, a lack of strength and endurance and the inability to cope with the strong, vigorous folks in the race of life—these are the sort of warning signals that Nature gives when the blood is getting thin, pale, watery and literally starving for want of iron. If you are not sure of your condition, go to your doctor and have him take your blood count and see where you stand or else make the following test yourself: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired; next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. By enriching the blood and creating new red blood cells, Nuxated Iron strengthens the nerves, rebuilds the weakened tissues and helps to instill renewed energy and power into the whole system.

Unlike the older inorganic iron products Nuxated Iron is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

RICH FOLKS WOULD ADOPT HIM, BUT JIMMY STICKS TO DAD

When she died he accepted an invitation for him and the boy to come to Tiptonville for a week. They were entertained by families here and the boy was again outfitted, but at the end of the week Noles said he would have to be going and he took the boy away to a 10-foot shack on the tenant farm of Calvin Kelliston, six miles south of Hickman. There they lived in absolute squallor from late in May to a month ago, the boy spared from complete neglect only by the voluntary ministrations of Kelliston's wife.

That was long enough for Bert Noles to stay in one place. It was time for him to move on. At first he talked of going back to the hills, but Mrs. Kelliston, kind soul, made such a protest against the boy being taken to that benighted region that he relented and decided to go across into Tennessee and to the far side of Obion County and put up for a while with Carroll Kelliston, a "share chopper" on Jim Holcomb's plantation near Madie. So he loaded his worldly goods in his rattletrap buggy and promised Mrs. Kelliston, almost tearfully, that he would bring the boy back to see her some time, and the drove down the dusty road between the cotton patches, with a good woman watching them out of sight, turning then to the care of her own children with a heart heavy with concern for the future of the motherless lad who had gone away.

She still misses the boy, there in her poor home by the side of the slough. "I would have kept him, poor as I am," she said, "if Bert would have given him to me. He's a sweet little old kid. He talked to me the night before they went away. He didn't want to go. He said he had had a hard time since his mamma died, hacked around and everything. I just wonder what's to become of the child."

George Gaskin, tenant neighbor, standing there and smoking his pipe, confessed himself appalled at the perverseness of Bert Noles in keeping the boy when rich folks wanted to take him and give him a good home. "Me an' my old woman," he said, "have brought up five. Not raised 'em exactly, but drug 'em up you might say, and teached 'em enough sense to keep out of the fire, but if it was to do over again I'd let somebody take 'em and give 'em a better chance.

Whether Bert and the boy had gone to Carroll Kelliston's nobody knew. No word had come from over the line. He might have gone to the boy's grandmother, Mrs. Wash Reed, at Samburg, on the other side of the lake, or he might have broken his promise and taken him back into the hills.

Here at Tiptonville nobody knew for certain what had become of the man and boy, but Dr. Griffin called up Tatum's store at Madie and was told that Bert Noles was at Kelliston's and the boy passed the store every day on his way to school.

⅜ ¼ ¼

Lo, Jimmy Is Found at School.

The boys and girls of Madie School, half a mile down the road from the store which is the civic center for a scattered community, were playing at recess and among them played Jimmy Noles, running and leaping and shouting like the other boys, but sensing something that concerned him and leaving off play when the car stopped at the edge of the playground.

J. M. Adams, the teacher, came and told how Jimmy, now three weeks in school, was getting on with his letters and turned to summon the boy, but he was nowhere to be seen.

"Where's Jimmy?" he called to the other boys, and they laughed, for Jimmy was perched on the running board, under the teacher's arm, and now he was looking up with the smile that made him famous in Chicago and saying "Here I is."

It was something of a strain, though, for the boy to stand there and answer questions while the other boys played. And he broke into the discussion with the wholly irrevelant remark that one of the boys, stealthily plying a "slingshooter" was right in line for a "whoopin'" for that interdicted indulgence.

But yes he liked school, liked it about as well as he liked the hospital in Chicago, now that his "foots" were better. There was one thing he had observed, this country was "sicklier" than Chicago. But he thought he would stay. Yes, it would be nice to live in the city and have a nice home and lots of play pretties like they gave him at the hospital, but he didn't want to leave his daddy.

Then there was the ceremony of taking his photograph, to which Chicago had accustomed him, and after Miss Ola Glover, the assistant teacher, had tidied him up a bit and tried to straighten his shock of fair hair, he posed capably as directed and put on his best smile. And then recess time was over and Jimmy Noles went back to his studies.

From the boy it had been learned that his father, awaiting the belated cotton picking season, would be found building a pig pen at the "bungalow house" across the road from Kelliston's, but Bert had tired of the task at noon and the judgment of the neighborhood was that he would be found loafing at Tatum's store.

Notes Like Sunshine and Soap Boxes.

There he was found, sitting in a shady spot, chewing the end of a match. He arose languidly and lolled to the side of the machine and said yes, he reckoned it would be a good thing for the kid to be adopted by somebody and given a chance, but Jimmy was all he had left and he just couldn't see his way clear to give him up and he reckoned he'd keep him as long as he was able to make a living for him.

Around Tiptonville and up and down Reelfoot Lake they grant you that a parent has certain rights, but after summing up Bert Noles in the vernacular of the region they tell you that a child has rights, too, and they hope that Jimmy Noles will yet get his chance.

HOW FAT SPOILS YOUR APPEARANCE

No matter how pretty you are or expensively dressed you may be, if you have allowed ugly rolls of fat to take hold of your body, you are not a winner. "Nobody likes a fat man or a fat woman." Worse yet, you cannot be well and healthy when you are overtaxing your frame with an unnatural load of fat. But why remain so, now that "SAN-GRI-NA," a new French discovery, makes it possible and easy to safely reduce from 5 to 6 pounds a week in the quiet of your own home, without the knowledge of anyone. While you are getting slender and you see the fat gradually melt away, you will feel yourself getting stronger and full of pep and energy. You can eat all you want while you take "SAN-GRI-NA." You do not have to exercise or follow long and strenuous directions, but be sure and get "SAN-GRI-NA," as it is so simple and easy, and cannot be compared to anything else. It is the discovery of a French scientist, and has only lately been introduced in America, where it has already created a sensation among fat people.

READ THIS LETTER

"For years I had tried everything advertised to reduce, but without success—I weighed 180 pounds, and was considered a most obstinate case of obesity. I had spent a small fortune on pills, creams, girdles, etc., but they never helped me; then I found out about 'SAN-GRI-NA.' I used it for eight weeks and lost 53 pounds; at the same time I so transformed my appearance and improved my health that to-day I look ten years younger. I consider 'SAN-GRI-NA' the one treatment every fat man and woman should know about. It is a most wonderful discovery, and I can truthfully recommend it to all fat people." (Signed) Mrs. H. A. Box 137, Station N, New York City.

NOTE—The demand for "SAN-GRI-NA" is tremendous, and it is difficult to have every drug store supplied, but most every leading drug or department store has it. DO NOT ACCEPT ANY SUBSTITUTE. REMEMBER THE NAME—"SAN-GRI-NA."

On sale at any of Speckart Bros.', Draper's, Enderle's, Otto's, Judge & Dolph's, Wolff-Wilson's or Kranson Bros.' Drug Stores.

AUTO INFORMA

PART SEVEN

LEGAL GUARD FOR VICTIMS OF AUTO ACCIDENTS URGED

Making Rights of Creditors Secondary When Cars Are Not Owned Wholly by Drivers Is Proposed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Preparation of model laws to curb thefts of automobiles, and to make the rights of creditors secondary to those of persons injured in automobile accidents when the cars affected are not owned outright by their drivers, is contemplated by the committee of insurance of the conference on street and highway safety which is working under Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

The committee is moved, among other considerations, by the facts that not more than a fifth of automobile owners have liability insurance, that there is doubt if compulsory auto insurance legislation can be enacted, and that even if it could be passed, there would be questions as to its effect upon the accident situation.

It was argued that the suggestion, based upon a maritime law principle of long standing would accomplish the same end—making persons operating cars on borrowed funds provide protection. Companies financing the purchase of automobiles now make insurance against fire and theft a condition to protect themselves, and extension of the conditions to include personal liability and property damage would naturally follow, it was said. Many states are making a practice of impounding cars involved in accidents until bonds are furnished. Further study of the subject is to be made before the committee's recommendations are put into final form.

Auto Theft Situation.

With the value of stolen cars in the United States amounting to nearly $150,000,000 annually, 16 States have adopted laws placing the burden of proof of ownership on the possessor. The certification of title laws are bringing about a reduction of thefts of cars, though the problem is still of enormous proportions both from the safety as well as financial standpoint. Maryland and Michigan have experienced a 50 per cent reduction in automobile thefts as a result of the laws, it was stated, the former's recovery of stolen cars being 90 and 95 per cent.

The Federal Government, since the Dyer law placed the interstate transportation of stolen cars under Federal jurisdiction, has brought about the recovery of more than 5000 cars by Department of Justice agents. Police departments are making improvements in their methods of recovering such cars, and insurance companies are maintaining detective bureaus to carry on similar work, but neither these, nor other measures, solve the problem. While the export of stolen cars adds to the difficulties of recovery, it was shown that Canada has adopted restrictions which have closed that avenue for the distribution of such cars.

LEGAL GUARD FOR VICTIMS OF AUTO ACCIDENTS URGED

Making Rights of Creditors Secondary When Cars Are Not Owned Wholly by Drivers Is Proposed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Preparation of model laws to curb thefts of automobiles, and to make the rights of creditors secondary to those of persons injured in automobile accidents when the cars affected are not owned outright by their drivers, is contemplated by the committee of insurance of the conference on street and highway safety which is working under Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

The committee is moved, among other considerations, by the facts that not more than a fifth of automobile owners have liability insurance, that there is doubt if compulsory auto insurance legislation can be enacted, and that even if it could be passed, there would be questions as to its effect upon the accident situation.

It was argued that the suggestion, based upon a maritime law principle of long standing would accomplish the same end—making persons operating cars on borrowed funds provide protection. Companies financing the purchase of automobiles now make insurance against fire and theft a condition to protect themselves, and extension of the conditions to include personal liability and property damage would naturally follow, it was said. Many states are making a practice of impounding cars involved in accidents until bonds are furnished. Further study of the subject is to be made before the committee's recommendations are put into final form.

AUTO DEALERS CONSIDER ASKING FACTORIES TO STOP ANNOUNCING YEARLY MODELS

Resolution to That Effect Referred to Directors of St. Louis Association With Power to Act.

Action was taken Wednesday night to line up the members of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association with the nationwide movement among motor car distributers and retailers to induce the factories to do away with yearly models. This question has been agitated more and more within the last few months until today it has assumed major importance in the automobile industry. Thus far the factories have not definitely committed themselves, and the matter is being threshed out in amicable fashion.

A resolution on this point, offered Wednesday night at a meeting of the dealers' association held at the City Club, declared that the policy of introducing yearly models is unwise and unfair to both automobile dealers and the public, is costly to manufactures, dealers and the public, and is hereby condemned. Resolved further that we recommend to the manufacturers the policy of making such changes as are necessary at times when it will not cause a break in the selling season, and cite as examples of this procedure two of the world's largest producers of automobiles and the prosperity of their selling organizations."

Directors Given Power to Act.

This resolution was referred on motion to the board of directors of the local dealers' association with power to act. It is said that sentiment in the board is strongly in favor of adoption of the resolution.

Wednesday night's meeting and dinner was attended by about 400 automobile distributers, dealers and salesmen. It was opened by F. C. McDonald, president of the dealers' association, who introduced Robert E. Lee, manager of the association, as toastmaster. A feature was the introduction of four former presidents of the association, Sam Breadon, Joseph A. Schlecht, H. F. Fahrenkrog and P. H. Brockman, and the reading of letters of regret from five others, O. L. Halsey, who is an automobile distributer at Boston; F. W. A. Vesper, who was out of the city; Frank R. Tate, who was ill at his home; R. C. Frampton, who was in Los Angeles, and H. B. Krenning.

Brockman and Dunville Speak.

Brockman, who is president of the De Luxe Automobile Co., spoke on "Co-operation in the Association," pointing out that doing anything to help the association and the standing of its members is constructive co-operation. He cited as valuable co-operation living up to the association's ethics, always using fair methods in competition and boosting for the benefit of all instead of "knocking." He asked for co-operation with the Police Department, saying the future of the automobile industry and the very bread and butter of his hearers depended upon cultivating a feeling of public good will that would prevent enactment of unfavorable traffic laws.

George A. Dunville, salesmanager of the Tate Motor Co., discussed the question, "What Is a Salesman." He made the point that salesmen often fail to analyze customers' real needs and so sell what is easiest to sell, not what the customer really should have. He also declared that building a successful selling organization entails selling the firm even before the car it handles is sold. To this end he urged elimination of competition for sales within an organization, so that all effort might be directed toward selling firm and car to the public.

An address on "Personality in Selling" was delivered by the Rev. Dwight J. Bradley of the First Congregational Church, Webster Groves.

REASONS WHY DEALERS DISCUSS ABOLITION OF YEARLY AUTO MODELS

HERE are the reasons for seeking abolition of the policy of many automobile factories of introducing yearly models that were embodied in the resolution referred to the directors of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association at its Wednesday night's meeting. The resolution declared that:

"The public has learned to await such announcements and to delay purchase of new automobiles, thereby causing a general slowdown of our business for 60 to 90 days previous to such announcements, which of late years have been made in the very heart of the so-called selling season. The advent of such new models necessitates liquidation of the cars of previous models at a loss of profit and general demoralization of sales effort. Such liquidation of old models encourages wild trading and increases the stocks of used cars bought at high prices.

"The introduction of new models generally results in a temporary slowdown in factory production and a curtailment of the supply of new cars when cars are needed most, causing a consequent loss of profit to the dealer. Yearly changes, widely advertised, tend unduly to depreciate the value of previous models. Radical changes yearly in lines and mechanical construction create the idea in the minds of the public that the automobile business is vacillating and unstable.

"Insurance companies, finance companies, dealers, customers and the manufacturers disagree on yearly identification of models, and it is manifestly impossible to manufacture a 1925 car in 1924."

HOW COUNTIES GAIN BY STATE ROADS PROGRAM

Many of Them Receiving Much More From Missouri Than They Pay State in Auto License Fees

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HERMITAGE, Mo., Sept. 20.—How most of the counties in Missouri receive more money from the State highway building program than they pay into the State treasury in automobile fees was told here Thursday by Chief Highway Engineer B. H. Piepmeier at the dedication of a strip of road across Hickory County, east and west. Hickory County lies midway between Springfield and Sedalia.

"To date there has been spent, or is now under contract, in Hickory County, over $255,000,'" Piepmeier said. "Of this amount $71,385 is local money, $88,966 Federal aid, $21,316 McCullough-Morgan and Post Road money, and the balance, $74,196, has been apportioned from the sale of the $60,000,000 road bonds. It will be noted, therefore, that the State has invested 72 per cent of the total money expended in the county for State road improvement, or $184,476.

How Counties Benefit.

"These figures show that the county is benefiting materially by State assistance in the building of the county roads. The county registered last year 690 cars and paid into the State treasury about $5770. On this basis, it would take the county 32 years of its automobile license fees to pay in as much as it already has received from the State.

"In other words, the county is materially benefiting by having the larger cities assist it in the building of State roads. Every citizen of the county should realize this fact and do everything possible to encourage State aid in the building of roads.

More Road Money Needed.

"The present $60,000,000 bonds are not sufficient to finish the system in the county and pay back the $71,000 which has been advanced. This same condition exists in all of the other counties. Funds in addition to the $60,000,000 are needed to finish the State roads in all of the counties and to provide adequate maintenance.

"A plan has been devised to raise additional funds by increasing the motor license fees 50 per cent and by taxing gasoline. The fundamental principles of having the user of our roads pay for them is sound. In other words, it is better for the motor owner to build and maintain our State roads than to have it done by property tax. If funds are not provided from the automobiles,

'Jimmy' Murphy, Killed Racing, Greater As Auto Engine Designer Than Driver

He Was Having Built a Front-Drive Car That He Hoped Would Do 160 Miles an Hour — Planned to Meet Giant European Cars — Won Reputation as Clean, Lovable Genius.

WHEN "Jimmy" Murphy, foremost racing driver in the world, was killed in a dirt track race at Syracuse, N. Y., Monday, the loss to the automotive industry was far more serious than to automobile racing fans. Twice all-American automobile racing champion, almost sure of the same honor this year, 1922 winner of the 500-mile Indianapolis race and only American to win the French Grand Prix, Murphy nevertheless was a greater genius as designer and perfecter of automobile engines than as a racing pilot.

Two days before his death Murphy told a friend some of the construction details of the front-drive car that he was having built, as has been told in this Automobile Section. He was having the car made by Harry Miller, the noted Los Angeles racing car builder, from his own design. It was to have a 122-cubic-inch engine, and its radiator cap was to be only 18 inches from the ground.

Planned 160-Miles-an-Hour Car.

With such a low center of gravity and front-end drive, Murphy said, he expected to make 160 to 175 miles an hour on the straightaways, which would enable him to lower "Tommy" Milton's world's record of 156 miles an hour, made with a car having an engine several times as large.

He told another friend that, if the car came up to his expectations, he would have something to say in the road speed duel that is being waged in Europe by E. A. D. Eldridge's 300 horsepower Fiat and Capt. Campbell's 350 horsepower Sunbeam, and would be ready to meet the 350 horsepower monster being built for Prince Djelaleddin of Egypt if it beat the 147 miles an hour road record of Eldridge's Fiat at Arpajon, France, and Milton's record. He also was working on a new type engine that he believed would cause a sensation.

Automobile racing men say today that Murphy should have much of the credit for designing the two types of engines which have powered the cars that have virtually swept the board on American tracks in the last four years—the Duesenberg and the Miller Special.

Won the Grand Prix.

Murphy defeated the best European drivers in 1921 in the Grand Prix with a Duesenberg, which was said to be the epitome of his almost uncanny understanding of internal combustion engines. It was a Miller Special with which he won the Indianapolis race in 1922.

Murphy was born in San Francisco 29 years ago, and lost his parents in the San Francisco earthquake. He was reared at Vernon, near Los Angeles, by his uncle, Police Judge Martin O'Donnell.

He got his start in automobile racing when only 16 years old. At that time "Eddie" Rickenbacker was the Duesenberg racing team star and the late "Eddie" O'Donnell also drove for Duesenberg. O'Donnell, who was scheduled for a race in Southern California, was having trouble with his car when young Murphy volunteered a suggestion that solved his difficulty. After that he helped O'Donnell for a few days, and the latter offered him a regular job as mechanician. His genius for engines was apparent even then, for O'Donnell wired to the Duesenberg factory: "Have just hired greatest auto mechanic ever met."

His Start as Racing Driver.

He rode with Rickenbacker, continuing as O'Donnell's mechanician until the latter had an accident. Then he became a racing pit manager. When the war broke out, he was drafted as an automotive engineer and put in charge of airplane engine production at the Duesenberg factory.

His first chance as a racing driver came after the war as a result of changes he suggested in the Duesenberg engine. Milton was impressed with his mechanical ability and lent a hand to make him a driver. Murphy gained permission to drive a Duesenberg carrying some of his own inventions in a race at Uniontown, Pa., but something went wrong with the car and he was unable to compete.

A month later he took the same car to the Beverly Hills speedway in Southern California and drove it to victory over the pick of the country's racers. Since then he has been the most consistent driver of them all.

He had an amazing record on the Beverly Hills track. He finished first in three of 10 races

SHIPPERS INDORSE FREIGHT DELIVERY AT STORE DOORS

Railroad Official Concedes U. S. Eventually Will Come to It on Country-Wide Basis.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The general principle of delivery of freight to store doors, which will mean a tremendous increase in the use of motor trucks by railroads, was indorsed by unanimous vote of 250 members of the Atlantic States Shippers' Advisory Board at its September meeting here. This action followed a favorable report by a committee which has been studying store door delivery.

The report found that increased flexibility at terminals, through handling of more merchandise and quicker movement of less than car load lot freight, and increased car supply, would be the main benefits from a store door delivery plan.

In the opinion of the committee, under a store door plan, delivery must be optional, the carrier must assume full responsibility to and from store door, the cost should be borne by shippers and receivers, the trucking charges must be just and reasonable, reflecting the advantages to the carrier of increased terminal flexibility, and the new system should be established gradually.

While asserting that the United States eventually must come to country-wide store door delivery, T. C. Powell, vice president of the Erie Railroad, said that if store door delivery were installed on an optional basis, it might prove difficult to get enough business to

TREND TOWARD CARS OF HIGHER GRADE REVEALED

Automobile Industry at Last Convinced That It Can Reckon Tendency as Established Fact.

By WILLIAM ULLMAN.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Advocates of progressive engineering design and lovers of fine coachwork will be interested to learn that an analysis of motoring conditions reveals a pronounced trend toward better automobiles. With over 15,000,000 cars in service in the United States alone, it is believed the average man is sold on car ownership to a point where he now aspires to own something a little better than the average.

Everywhere car buyers are said to be showing a preference for higher grade cars, a trend which is expected to benefit the entire industry since every manufacturer would do a rush business if all the motorists in the class below graduated into his group.

Cutting Quality Doesn't Pay.

These facts are being reported by salesmen, who find that even where a manufacturer makes an extensive line of varying sizes the preference is for the best the manufacturer makes. That the stock of better cars still continues to move far slower than the more popular priced and smaller cars is attributed to force of necessity, and not preference.

"When motorists can buy better cars, they will buy them," one salesman sums it up.

A number of manufacturers have added bigger and better cars to the line in anticipation of a demand which is already in evidence, since many people are in a position to buy from preference rather than necessity. The industry has felt the public's pulse and concluded that it will not pay to cut quality to make prices attractive. This explains why prices are higher on some of the cars which are most popular with the general public.

Average Car's Value Rising.

In explanation of the appearance on the market of smaller and lower-priced versions of high-grade cars, it is pointed out that this trend is a temporary plan to acquaint the public with the advantages of better cars. It is figured that once a motorist becomes a fan for a certain high-grade make of car he will not be entirely satisfied until he owns the best car in the manufacturer's line, assuming that the motorist's income and station in life warrant it.

Simultaneous with this offering of popular-priced versions of high-grade cars is the trend toward adding higher grade lines to popular priced cars. The result of these two developments is such as to popularize the car that sells in the $2000 to $3000 class—a development which in itself is indicative of higher class motoring.

With Ford converting pedestrians into motorists at an astonishing rate, and with all motorists stepping up the ladder in accordance with their ability, it is believed the time is not far distant when the investment per car will be considerably in excess of $811, the average price of new cars sold in 1923. Just as the nation can point with pride to a large per capita savings or investment in real estate so it soon may be able to point to its larger per capita investment in automobiles. It is a trend which many believe should be encouraged.

Different After Initiation.

Car ownership is an experiment with a first buyer. He does not him to operate the car, and he naturally is inclined to figure on some know how much it is going to cost jokers in the way of expenses. He cannot be guided by the experience of others, because he can see very well that success with an automobile varies widely according to individual ability. When he buys a car, therefore, he is inclined to buy a trifle below his means. He seldom goes the limit.

But he is a different type of buyer after being initiated into the fold. He readily appreciates where an additional investment in car comforts can be made to yield attractive dividends, and in acquiring a taste for the better things in cars he gives the matter of purchase of a better car serious consideration. There are, of course, the exceptions, as, for instance, where the owner of a high-grade car is in the market for something to knock about in. But, generally speaking, the tendency in ownership is toward something better.

Just as the average man aims to live in a better home in a better neighborhood, so he works toward the day when he can roll in a distinctive car.

Interesting Development.

The numerous mechanical features that have come into popularity recently are contributing much to this development in motordom. Some of these features have added to the cost, yet owners have been willing to pay the difference to gain in safety, style, comfort or economy. It is reasonable to suppose that if the public were not so well acquainted with the value of the automobile as a utilitarian and recreational adjunct to modern existence few people would be willing to pay for these additional refinements.

The psychology of this is interestingly demonstrated in the case of the closed car. There is, and has been for some time, a trend toward eliminating the frills from closed cars as a means of bringing the list price down to, or close to, that of the open car. This would seem to be a movement exactly opposite to the swing toward better cars, but analysis shows a more progressive trend than is apparent upon first thought.

These, inexpensive closed cars are converting thousands of motorists to the advantages of the all-weather type of vehicle, and it is generally believed that once this ground is thoroughly covered, the demand for better closed cars naturally will follow and makers of inexpensive closed cars will revert to including refinements, regardless of increases in the list prices.

As a matter of fact, some manufacturers of low-priced closed cars already are grooming their better models in anticipation of a demand for better things in automobiles, particularly in the closed car line.

Charles W. Fields, recently of Pittsburg, Pa., has been appointed manager of the Flint factory branch in St. Louis. He started in the automobile business in 1910 as a road man for the Ford Motor Co., and three years later was Overland sales manager at Fargo, N. D. He served in the World War, and after the war was road man in charge of a district for the Liberty Motor Co. A year ago he opened the Flint branch at Pittsburg as manager.

there, eight of which were for 250 miles, and thrice established world's speed records, averaging 103.06 miles an hour with a 300-cubic inch car.

High Points in His Career.

In 1921, with a chance to win the Indianapolis race, he broke a steering arm early in the race and, in track parlance, twice "kissed the wall." He controlled his car and brought it to the pits. He smiled as he climbed out of the car and with his mechanic started to work replacing the damaged steering units. He got in the race, but not until he was too far behind to get in the money. Fred Duesenberg called him and made him the relief driver on Eddie Miller's car, with which he finished fourth.

The outstanding races in his career were his victory in the Grand Prix at Le Mans in 1921, when he averaged 78.65 miles an hour over the tortuous French course with Joe Boyer, recently killed in a race, as "break up man," and his victory in the 500-mile Indianapolis race in 1922, when he broke Ralph de Palma's record of seven years standing by averaging 94.48 miles an hour, a record that stood until Boyer pushed it up to 98.23 miles an hour last Memorial day. The same year he also won the National racing championship.

At Beverly Hills on Feb. 23, 1923, he broke the existing world's track record, driving at 115.65 miles an hour.

He won at Fresno on April 26, 1923, and on May 30 came in third at Indianapolis, after which he went abroad and finished third at Monza, Italy. Upon his return, he finished second to Bennett Hill in a Beverly Hills race.

This year he was first at Altoona on June 14; first at Kansas City on July 4, and first at Altoona on Sept. 1; at Indianapolis he took third place.

Led Way This Year.

He was almost certain to be 1924 champion when the fatal accident occurred. He had 1695 points and Earl Cooper, with 840, was second. He took a desperate chance when in second place at Syracuse to gain 300 points for winning, and pushed his car to more than 80 miles an hour, seeking to catch the winning Shafer. His car swerved into the inner fence and hit it three times, the last time smashing the fence and thrusting a timber into Murphy's lungs.

His death can be attributed to "too much speed." The small cars now being raced have more speed than a driver can use on a dirt track. When a skid happens he cannot control the car because of its momentum. Strong guard walls, solidly constructed, would have kept Murphy's car on the track and saved his life. They would have saved Boyer and Resta, the two other Indianapolis 500-mile winners killed, the first at Altoona, Pa. on Labor day, the latter on the Brooklands track, in England, Sept. 1.

Stood High As a Man.

A slight, frail-looking youth, unmistakably of Irish descent, Murphy took success with an ingenuous smile, but kept his mind focused on racing and engine designing. He remained good natured, modest and retiring, and was warmly liked by racing fans, mechanics and his fellow drivers. Possessing a keen sense of humor, he was never serious of manner, except in the hour or two before a race then he prepared his mount for its test of speed and skill. He enjoyed "kidding" Barney Oldfield above all others and many a sly joke he played on the "Old Master."

At Syracuse a week ago yesterday, when rain caused postponement of the race the other drivers and officials were glum as they loafed around their hotel, for they had expected to be on their way to California that night. Murphy smiled through it all. Just before dinner, he went to a florist's shop and bought an armful of asters with which he decorated his friends, bidding them "Look cheerful even if you are in the dumps."

A. M. Young, manager of the Los Angeles Speedway Association, when told of Murphy's death, declared that "They don't make any better, more courageous or manlier sportsman than Jimmy Murphy, or a cleaner, more loveable character."

One of the officials who had watched Murphy in a number of races, said: "In his passing the game lost one of its squarest drivers, a clean liver and one of the brainiest lads who ever shook dice with death at the wheel of a racing car."

Murphy was reported to have accumulated a fortune of $250,000. His winnings this year totaled $40,000 up to the day of his death. He was an inveterate investor in Los Angeles real estate, and only recently let a contract for erection of a building in that city. He recently took part with Miller, the racing car builder, in organizing a transmission company, of which he was vice-president.

TRANSCONTINENTAL BUS VISITS ST. LOUIS

Traveled From New York to Pacific Coast — Returns Through Southwest.

The Reo transcontinental bus, which recently made the first bus run under its own power across the country from New York to San Francisco, passed through St. Louis Wednesday en route from the Pacific Coast to the Reo factory at Lansing, Mich. It stopped while its crew visited the Kardell Motor Car Co., Reo distributer in the St. Louis district, and it was a center of interest on Auto Row from the minute of its arrival until its departure.

With "Dave" Fassett, an old Reo cross-country driver, as pilot; C. E. Griffith, assistant pilot, and J. C. Brandimore, of the Reo factory bus promotion force, as crew, the bus left Lansing July 14 and went to New York via Pittsburg. Leaving New York July 23, it rolled to Albany, Buffalo, Cleveland and Chicago, swinging north to Minneapolis and over the Fargo route, picking up the Yellowstone Trail at Fallon. It followed the trail to Livingston, Mont., rolled down and through Yellowstone Park, and then proceeded to Seattle via Spokane and Blewett Pass, reaching Seattle Aug. 16. The trip was made in leisurely fashion, with stops all along the line to visit dealers. The bus went down the Pacific Coast, arriving at San Francisco Aug. 25 and at Los Angeles Aug. 29.

Travels 8880 Miles.

Coming east, it took the Mecca-Blythe route from Los Angeles to the Colorado River, then through Phoenix; Douglas, Ariz.; El Paso, Tex.; Roswell, N. M.; Dallas, Tex.; Oklahoma City, Ok.; Wichita, Kan.; Kansas City and St. Louis.

Since leaving Lansing July 14, the bus had traveled 8880 miles when it arrived in St. Louis Wednesday. Its crew reported an average of 10 miles to the gallon of gasoline for the entire 8880 miles. Repairs, they stated, consisted of soldering a gasoline line and a few minor things, altogether about what would be done on a good touring car on a long trip. Their United States special bus tires, 32x6 cords, suffered only 10 punctures on the trip.

The bus is the 16-passenger sedan type, with smoking compartment in rear. It has the same engine as the Reo touring car, and maximum speeds of 38 to 40 miles an hour on high, 15 to 18 on second gear and 7 to 9 on low.

It was sent on the trip because the Reo organization sought to demonstrate the dependability of motor busses on runs of extraordinary length under all sorts of circumstances and over all kinds of roads. It was also desired to study road and regional conditions under which busses must operate in various parts of the country.

How They Found the Roads.

The crew reported pretty good going over the Northern route and fine roads from Seattle south to Los Angeles. But from Mecca to Blythe, and on most of the roads through Arizona, New Mexico and Western Texas and Oklahoma, the going was all the way from good to "so-so" and execrable. They were lucky in encountering no mud until, running east, they struck sticky, slippery roads continually from the New Mexico line, having some of their worst experiences in Missouri mud.

They remarked that they used no maps in crossing the continent in either direction until they reached New Mexico and Texas, where road marking was an unknown science. They estimated that they found fully 90 per cent more tourists going West than were coming East. They also reported that while they never exceeded 35 miles an hour, they passed 90 per cent of all cars they saw on the road, thus proving again that it is steady driving that eats up distance most quickly. They said they were impressed time and again by the numbers of Eastern people who seemed desirous of taking trips westward by bus.

They reported to the Kardell Motor Car Co. that the bus rode easily and comfortably at all times, and that it thoroughly proved the feasibility of cross-continent bus trips, even with roads as they are in some of the Western states.

Carried a Grade Meter.

The bus carried a meter to indicate the pitch of grades. Some of the inclines the bus surmounted were as steep as 18 per cent. Its crew commented adversely on the fact that the grade meter showed inclines as high as 15 per cent on surfaced roads between Jefferson City and St. Louis, saying that these would be dangerous in sleet or heavy rain storms.

Fassett, the bus pilot, is a Reo veteran. In 1905, he made the first cross-continental run in a Reo car, traversing with pain and difficulty many sections of the roads that this time he found pleasant going. In 1910 he drove a Reo from New York to San Francisco in 10 days 12 hours and 13 minutes, wonderfully fast time for that period.

The bus was met at Clayton, as it came in from Kansas City over the Manchester road, by a party that included Mayor Kiel, F. C. McDonald, president of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association; Robert E. Lee, manager of the dealers' association, and H. F. Fahrenkrog and J. C. Kardell of the Reo Motor Car Co.

make it pay in competition with private truckers.

Only through concentration of the lion's share of the less than carload lot terminal business under a unified store door plan can economies come about which will make the plan worth while, he said. However, Powell thought exceptions should be made of certain commodities which require unusually expeditious hauling.

It was the belief of W. Chandler of the Merchants' Association of New York, that a very high percentage of shippers would take advantage of store door delivery service under an optional system. He said this was the case in England and Canada, where store door plans are in effect.

It was his opinion, too, that there is nothing in the law which will permit store door delivery on a compulsory basis, and he thought shippers would not permit a compulsory system to be forced upon them.

In this opinion W. J. L. Ban chairman of the Regional Board, who presided at the meeting, concurred.

x It is not even necessary to purchase straight side rims for cars equipped with clincher, for Cooper makes Clincher Balloons to fit 30x3½ clincher rims for Fords, Chevrolets and other light cars.

Ask any Ford or Chevrolet owner who has equipped his car with Cooper full Balloon Tires what he thinks about them. He will tell you:

That they give his car the riding and braking qualities of the more expensive machine;

That they carry you smoothly over road irregularities—absorb the bumps instead of bouncing over them;

That they enable you to stop your car quickly and safely, and practically eliminate skidding;

And besides—save your car from rapid depreciation by absorbing the shocks and vibrations before they reach the chassis and engine. This advantage alone means dollar and cents saving. The extra comfort and braking control are clear gain.

Installation is not expensive because Cooper full Balloons are made to fit the clincher rims now on your car. Smaller wheels and rims are not necessary. All you buy is the tires.

Ask the Cooper dealer for full particulars and a demonstration. You'll want a set for your car.

U. S. DRIVERS CONQUER CANADIAN MOUNTAINS

Drive Car Through Rockies Over a Route Deemed Impassable by Auto.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Sept. 20.—The attempt of A. F. Bement, secretary of the Lincoln Highway Association, and E. S. Evans, one of the association's founders, to drive an automobile from Winnipeg through the Canadian Rockies to Vancouver has resulted in success. The trip hitherto has been regarded as impossible for an automobile.

Bement and Evans sought primarily to log a possible route for a Canadian National highway. The difficulties in the way of building such a road are indicated by the fact that they were 36 hours traversing one 60-mile stretch and got over another 63 miles only by running on the railroad tracks through 17 tunnels and over seven trestles bridging the Fraser Canyon. For several days they were in continual peril of going over the edges of canyons and precipices.

Leaving Winnipeg, Aug. 21, they reached the British Columbia Coast Sept. 8. The British Columbia Premier presented to them a medal that was offered in vain several years ago as an inducement to venturesome motorists. The car they drove on the trip was a Packard six.

Claims Record to Poplar Bluff.

A LETTER to E. A. Hatfield, president of the Mississippi Valley Motor Co. from the Walker Motor Co., Oakland dealer in Poplar Bluff, Mo., states that an Oakland car has just broken the automobile record between St. Louis and that city. An Oakland, driven by Ira Walker, the letter said, made the trip in 4 hours and 50 minutes. The best time made by a train between the two cities is reported to have been 4 hours and 20 minutes. The distance is 168 miles by rail and about the same distance by road.

Demand for Cars Brisk.

Such a brisk demand for cars that they are unable to keep enough on hand to supply their dealers, to say nothing of their own retail trade, is reported by a number of the automobile distributors in St. Louis.

35 Miles an Hour for 1702 Miles.

Hurrying to his sick mother, L. L. Hains left Ogden, Utah, in a new Essex six coach, which had been driven 600 miles, at 3 o'clock Saturday morning, Sept. 6, and at 2:15 p. m. the following Tuesday, Sept. 9, pulled up in front of her home in Perryville, Ind., 1702 miles distant. He drove the entire distance, having no companion, and reported his actual driving time was 48 hours and 15 minutes, that he averaged 35 miles an hour and that the car was "running fine" when he reached Perryville. His biggest day's running was on the first day when he drove 600 miles from Ogden to Sidney, Neb., between 3 a. m. and 9:15 p. m.

To Celebrate "Ford Day."

The Hallenberg-Wagner Motor Co., authorized Ford dealers, at 5630-34 Gravois avenue, will give an all day "Ford day" outing with games and sports, at Holly Hills, opposite Carondelet Park, next Sunday. The affair, which will celebrate the firm's first anniversary as a Ford dealer, will begin at 10:30 o'clock with a parade.

Speeds Into Sale of Car.

G. M. Davis, a Maxwell-Chrysler dealer at Clarksburg, W. Va., was in such a hurry to reach Fairmont, 25 miles away, that his Chrysler did it at night in the rain over slippery roads in 30 minutes. While running along at 50 miles an hour he noticed a State trooper behind him. "I supposed he was chasing me," he said later. "Some time after I reached Fairmont the trooper rode in. He said he had tried to catch me for 15 miles and supposed I must have been at least seven miles ahead of him when I reached Fairmont. The damage was $56.60, but the trooper was so thoroughly sold by my inadvertent demonstration that the State bought a Chrysler car a few days later to do what the trooper's motor cycle couldn't do—catch speeders."

Sells Cars to St. Louis Police.

The Benjamin Motor Car Co. has delivered two more Velie cars to the St. Louis Police Department, making eight sold to the local police this year.

Expands Service Facilities.

J. Val Strough, regional service director, and H. G. Hilton, local service director, have been busy for three weeks co-operating with the Gilliam-Epstein Chevrolet Co., 5929 Easton avenue, on expansion of the firm's shop equipment.

Show Speed and Economy.

Lou Trembly, of Los Angeles, recently left that city in a Rollin car and 68 hours later was in Denver, 1472 miles distant, averaging, according to his report, 34.23 miles to the gallon of gasoline. Mrs. George Hackett of San Francisco has just completed a 3972-mile trip alone in her Rollin coupe, visiting relatives in the Northwest, and reports 31 miles to the gallon of gasoline for the whole trip.

Larger Sales Indicated.

An even larger sale of Hupmobiles the remainder of the year than in the last six months of 1923 is indicated in reports of the Hupp Motor Car Corp. Shipments to its distributors and dealers in July and August were 30 per cent larger than in May and June, with September demand certain to bring production and shipments for the month considerably ahead of August, the largest Hupmobile shipping month since April.

Driving the same stock Chrysler with which he broke the Mount Wilson, Cal., record for climbing Mount Wilson in California, Ralph De Palma has set a stock car record for the dirt track at San Luis Obispo, Cal. The car turned the mile circuit in 53.5 seconds, at the rate of 66.8 miles an hour, and did five miles in four minutes and 29 seconds. He did 72 on the straightway.

Old Car Makes Good Time.

A Ford car that had run 250,000 miles in 12 years was recently driven by W. M. Langley, of New Westminster, B. C., from Vancouver, B. C., to Los Angeles in five days and back home in the same time.

Heavy Load No Bar to Speed.

Carrying more than 1000 pounds, a Maxwell car has just been driven by A. B. Crater of Los Angeles from that city to Portland, Ore., in 35 hours driving time. He reported averaging 21 miles to the gallon of gasoline on the northbound trip and 23 returning south.

Distribution of ethyl fluid will not be confined to the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, or to any other company or group of companies. The stronger favor constantly, snubbers ally and on equal terms to all of the responsible gasoline marketing organizations, subject only to the limited exclusive contracts originally made by the General Motors Chemical Co. for introducing the new anti-knock product.

THE Police standard stop-test is 83 feet when a car is going 30 miles an hour. Rusco lined two-wheel brakes, properly adjusted, do it in 47 feet. A leading manufacturer checking up on Rusco's performance in actual operation found that Rusco lined brakes out-tested all the standards set by automotive engineers for a super-quality lining.

The quality of Asbestos that goes into any lining insures the lining's braking surface. Only long-fibre Canadian Crysotile Asbestos is woven into Rusco by the giant Russell looms. It is "all-wool" and no shoddy.

Standard for the Government

IS THERE anyone more careful in the selection of equipment than the United States government? Packard's brakes are made sure, too, by Rusco. Yet Rusco Crysotile Asbestos Lining costs no more than the shoddy kind. Careful buying promotes your safety. Insist that the repair man or dealer give you Rusco.

Your repair man pays more for RUSCO than any other brake lining

—but he doesn't charge you more!

IN GIVING you Rusco—the finest quality brake lining it is possible for the repair man to obtain—he accepts a less profit than if he sold you any other brand.

If he recommended and sold you a cheaper grade it would cost you the same, but he would make three times as much profit.

You can depend upon such a man. It takes time and money to reline your brakes. It isn't a job you want done every day. When your brakes do need relining, be sure to get the benefit of Rusco superiority and the conscientious service of a repair man who is willing to take less profit in order to give you a better job.

American Car Wins in Europe.

Another victory for American-built automobiles was registered recently when a stock Marmon touring car, with Delco ignition and no change in gears, won the international mountain race on the Klausen Hill in the Swiss Alps. The course is difficult for drivers and exceptionally trying to engines. It includes 24 "hairpin" curves, descends into two deep gullies and rises to an altitude of more than 5000 feet. The Marmon not only won the mountain climb, but also was awarded first prize for the highest speed on the straightaway.

The Control You Need with Balloon Tires

In the first place, balloon and low-pressure tires are made larger and softer so that they themselves will absorb the small irregularities on apparently smooth roads.

Therefore, the new Gabriel Balloon-Type Snubbers are designed with about ¾ of an inch of free play.

Second, balloon or low-pressure tires on rough roads, or when larger bumps are encountered, cause a violent upthrow which of course is transmitted to the springs, and develops into a galloping, rolling or pitching motion.

These new Gabriels stop that rolling, galloping or pitching instantly.

Equip with these new Gabriels at any Gabriel sales or service station; and experience for the first time the full benefits which balloon tires are designed to give you.

300 FORD CARS ASSEMBLED DAILY IN ST. LOUIS PLANT

Way in Which Big Factory Speeds Up Production Through Assembly Line Processes Makes Interesting Sight.

One of the most interesting sights in industrial St. Louis is the main assembly line in the Ford plant at Sarah street and Forest Park boulevard, which is turning out 300 Ford cars a day. It is a revelation in ways of increasing production speed by carefully planned and co-ordinated dexterity, and in arranging processes so that the energy of a whole great organization operates systematically through many channels that all feed into the assembly line.

No real manufacturing from raw materials is done in the local plant, as every part of a Ford car comes from the Ford manufacturing plants ready to go into and on a car. Some things arrive partly assembled, while others, such as motors, rear axles and frames are all ready to put on a chassis. Everything comes packed and arranged in such fashion as to expedite to the utmost the assembling process.

Assembling the Body.

An idea of the plant processes may be gained by going to the uppermost of the five floors in the plant and watching an open body assembled. First, the metal parts of the body go through an anti-rust and cleaning solution, then are sent to a gang that puts them together to form a body. Other men tighten all bolts and install the seats. The body then goes on a 76-foot conveyor and by the time it gets to the end has been trimmed, finished, checked and inspected. It then is sanded and cleaned and all metal defects corrected.

Next a coat of paint is flowed onto it, and the body travels for half an hour on a 112-foot conveyor, dripping until the paint is perfectly smooth. It is next upended to dry for 24 hours, then checked, imperfections attended to and a coat of glazing putty applied. Then the body goes to a lower floor, when a second coat of paint flowed on, is dried again, and then upholstered, after which it gets another coat of paint and another drying.

The closed bodies come assembled and require only going over, varnishing and striping.

Meanwhile the fenders, radiator shells, hoods and similar parts are assembled, cleaned, polished and dipped in a 250-gallon tank of enamel, after which they are hung on an endless chain and travel through ovens with heats ranging from 100 degrees at the entrance to 400 and 450 degrees. They then get a second enamel bath and another baking, then go down to the second floor to the main assembly line or are packed for dealers.

The Assembly Line.

Other gangs put together the gas tanks, get frames and front axles ready, attach the radius rods to rear axles and prepare other major parts for the chassis assembly line. Air wrenches are used for running nuts down on bolts, and wherever there is a chance a speed tool is used. Rear end assemblies are run through a low baking enamel that dries in 30 minutes. Brade rods and springs are attached to frames.

Assembly gang after assembly gang, each handling one particular job, feeds directly to the main assembly line, which is 160 feet long.

The rear-end assembly starts down the line. First it picks up the frame, and a chassis is born. Part after part is added as the chassis goes down the line, from the engine, which is swung into place by a crane, to starter, steering gear and wiring. The 150 men on the main assembly line work with a methodical, carefully planned speed that sends a chassis along at an astonishing rate.

From the assembly line the chassis goes onto an 80-foot test line, which it leaves under its own power.

A perfect chassis goes either to a 55-build-up line on which a body, fender, dust shield, etc., are added, and then for a final inspection and installation of the hood, or is sent to the shipping department to be placed in a freight car. About a third of the cars are fully assembled for delivery to dealers in St. Louis or so close that they can drive the cars. The rest are put in freight cars, with chassis and body separate, and go to dealers out in the district, who put them together. This permits shipping six automobiles in a 36-foot freight car and seven in a 40-foot car.

The first floor of the plant is given up to service parts for dealers and to executive offices.

Wheels are assembled and painted, and tires are put on them, in the basement, whence they go to the second-floor assembly line.

The plant, which was started in 1914 to assemble 25 cars daily, has grown to a factory five stories high, 299 feet long by 14 feet wide. It employs some 650 workers in the mechanical and shipping departments and about 70 more in the offices. It assembles cars for a district that includes Eastern Missouri, three Kentucky counties and Southern Illinois, including the cities of Springfield, [illegible] Decatur.

POINTERS ON HOW TO BUY AN AUTO

"It is not the lines of a car that are most important, though everyone wants a good-looking machine," says Walter Prack, secretary of the Ward Motor Co., Inc., who declares he has spent much time studying the car-buying problem from the public's viewpoint.

"If a buyer is to be thoroughly satisfied with his purchase," he said yesterday, "it is absolutely necessary for him to decide how much cash he can spend, or, if buying on time, how much he can spare conveniently each month. The next step is to look at the various cars in his price class, eliminating all others from consideration, and get down to the real merits of those cars. Thus he will save his own time and that of the automobile salesman.

"Then, with a certain group of cars in mind, he should consider why he is buying a car—whether for business or pleasure, or both.

"Then comes original cost of car and its future trade-in or resale value and operation costs, including fuel, oil, tires and repairs.

"Next consider seating capacity and comfort. A man with small children usually regards the coach type as ideal, so there will be no possibility that they will open the doors. Also, the coach is compact and the family riding in it is close together. He should see if there is ample leg room or sufficient space behind the front seat for knees.

"The slope of seats is important, as is proper pitch of the back cushion to insure riding comfort. Faults in these develop only after long rides. Deep seat cushions, high enough to give support to the whole thigh, and a high back cushion that comes up well behind the shoulders, make long rides a pleasure. All this applies to both open and closed cars.

"Spring suspension, type of springs and number of leaves should be considered. Size of tires and inflation have a bearing on easy riding.

"The steering wheel often is overlooked, although I believe more car manufacturers should bring it down. Frequently you will see drivers stretching to look over or under their wheels, to say nothing of how tiresome it is to drive holding a wheel higher than one's shoulders.

"Easy steering is important, for with limited parking space and traffic jams a driver must be able to park quickly, therefore easily. Location of horn button, spark and throttle levers is to be figured. Type of gear shifting lever and of emergency brake lever is important, for one should not have to grope around under the wheel for them. Location of foot accelerator has a bearing on driving comfort.

"Regardless of how much one knows about his car, there is always something newer and better. When buying one should be convinced of the qualities of the car as if he never had owned one."

LOVEJOY, ILL., MOTORISTS RETURN FROM LONG TOUR

Report Generally Good Roads on Loop Over North and South Routes to Pacific Coast.

Mrs. H. C. Ashford of Lovejoy, Ill., and Mrs. Mabel Langford Campbell have just returned from a cross-continental tour in a Cleveland 6 sedan that was delivered 73 days ago and since has been driven 9627 miles. They left Lovejoy July 25 and drove to Denver, and report that they made the Lookout Mountain drive without putting any water in the radiator, an unusual feat. They swung south to Colorado Springs and Trinadad, where they picked up the Santa Fe Trail and followed it to San Bernardino, Cal., thence going to San Francisco. They left San Francisco Sept. 2, returning home via Portland, the Columbia River highway and Pendleton, Ore., and the Oregon trail to Denver and then to Kansas City and home.

They report good roads most of the way, saying the worst they encountered were in parts of Oregon and Wyoming.

The balloon tires on the car look as if they had run about 3000 miles instead of more than 9000 miles. They used no chains, although they ran through considerable mud, saying the balloons seemed to give excellent traction on slippery roads. They report that while they made good speed, at times running up to 65 miles an hour, yet they spent only $4.65 on the car, most of that for timing and carburetor adjustments for driving in the mountains. The car, they state, ran without a squeak all the trip and when they got home, because the "one shot" chassis lubrication system insured oil for all moving parts.

Oil Your Car at 60 Miles an Hour!

YOU'RE rushing along in your Cleveland Six at 60 miles an hour. A squeak or rattle develops.

Do you stop and get out the grease gun? Or endure the noise until you get back home? Not at all!

You simply step on a convenient plunger and the noise is instantly silenced.

That's why the "One-Shot" Lubricating System ranks as one of the great advances in motor car design.

It enables you to lubricate all moving chassis parts without leaving the driver's seat.

It does more than save time and eliminate greasy hands or garments. It insures easier riding, smoother operation, longer car life and higher re-sale value—all because it makes chassis lubrication too simple and easy to neglect.

Because of the sheer value it represents, the 1925 Cleveland Six is winning new buyers at a rate that makes it one of the most popular six cylinder cars of the day.

Here are some of the reasons for that popularity.

Mileage Motor—a matchless master of hills with a flashing get-away in high gear.

Full Balloon Tires—extra comfort at no extra cost.

4-Wheel Brakes—of Cleveland Six design, optional at a moderate extra cost—

Beautiful Bodies—smart, durable and luxurious.

NEW STUDEBAKER CARS LURE CROWD

"Open-Closed" Models and New Body Designs Cause Appreciative Comment.

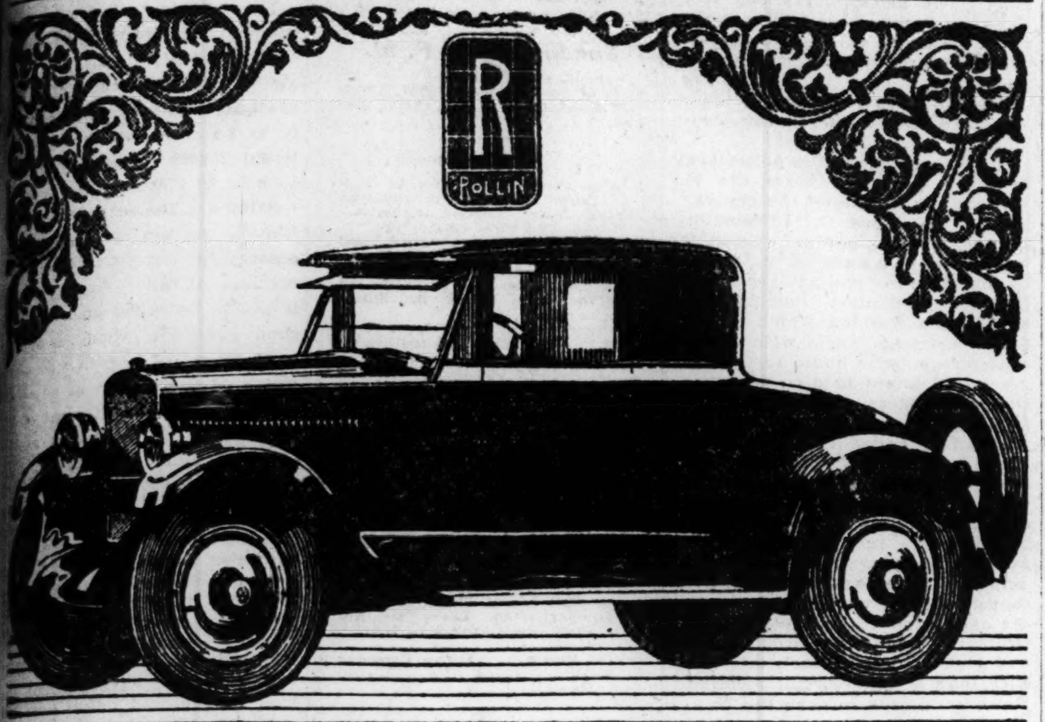
During the first 48 hours the new Studebaker models were on display in the showrooms of the ber Motor Car Co., Studebaker distributor in the St. Louis district, and its associate dealers in the city 10,000 persons inspected them, fully 5000 of them visiting the company's hain display rooms. There has been a steady stream of visitors at the showrooms ever since.

It is a question whether greater interest has been shown in the completely new lines of the "Big Six," the "Special Six" and the "Standard Six," which replaces the "Light Six," or in the duplex praeton models in each line.

The device which in a few seconds changes an open car into a closed job has aroused an insistent desire to see it operated. The Studebaker organization declares that this combination "open-closed car" has such manifest advantages that it should establish new standards of car construction.

Novel German "Straight Eight."

A German automobile manufacturer has developed a straight eight engine, with all of the cylinders and the upper part of the crankcase cast in one block of aluminum. The features of this car include fan blades on the flywheel to draw smoke and fumes from the engine beneath the chassis and a dummy radiator that is built to give the effect of a V-type but has a flat core.



Desirable Ability With Remarkable Economy

The Rollin is a tremendous success because it has outstanding, advanced features not incorporated in any other automobile

It has smooth, quiet and ample power flow at ordinary every-day driving speeds, with quick, unfaltering acceleration. It steers as easily as a bicycle, and in it you ride with easy-chair comfort.

With the responsiveness and power of the six-cylinder car, it has the moderate first cost of the Four, together with the new and unparalleled economy of 25 to 30 miles per gallon of gasoline.

Rollin H. White, most prominent among automotive engineers, and designer of famous American cars, studied intensively European motors noted for fine performance.

As a result the Rollin 4-cylinder design, with such features as European type, high compression motor; 4-bearing balanced crankshaft with aluminum alloy reciprocating assembly—freeing the motor from vibration;

Perfected force-feed lubrication; carburetor and manifold advancement; 4-wheel brakes; Balloon tires; and transverse rear spring, has been developed, marking a new era in motor car performance and low operation costs.

Ride in the remarkable Rollin and convince yourself!

The Rollin—designed by Rollin White of Cleveland, Ohio—is the most up-to-date car on the market.

Payrolls Increasing Everywhere in the Industry—Improvement in Sales to Dealers.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1924.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Ford officials say their dealers are beginning to wire for extra shipments and the agricultural sections to the contrary seem to be waking up. Based on returns to date, they expect Ford sales for September to exceed those in any September in the history of the company.

Sales to Dealers Increase.

Improvement in sales to dealers is reported also by the General Motors Corporation. Distribution of General Motors cars and trucks to consumers in August totaled 54,149, the smallest number recorded for any month since February, but only 1683 less than the total for August, 1923. This is a decided gain over the comparison between consumer sales for July, 1923, and July, 1924. G. M. C. sales to dealers in August rose to 48,450, the highest point reached since April.

The advance in activity in the Michigan automobile factories is strikingly shown by the increased applications for workmen's compensation insurance. One of the largest insurance companies in the State declares payrolls are increasing everywhere and that the largest increases in policies are among the automobile companies, although the paper industry also has been making advances.

Larger Materials Purchases.

Activity in lumbering and mining throughout the country as a whole is indicated by the orders received by one Lansing company making a four-wheel-drive truck intended particularly for difficult hauling incident to lumbering, mining and building construction work. This company asserts its recent orders have been large and inquiries numerous.

Shipment of raw materials and machinery into the automobile plants has been increasing. Few persons realize the replacement costs which modern automobile shop practice has forced on the industry. General purpose equipment has been replaced almost entirely by special machines designed for some special operation in manufacture. There is scarcely a piece of equipment to be found in a motor car factory today which was in use seven years ago.

Increased Call for Metals.

Every time a new model is brought out, new machines must be designed and installed to produce it. The same applies to tools used in the factories. "Tooling up" for a new model frequently means an expense running into the hundreds of thousands of dollars. Once that model is abandoned, the tools must be scrapped.

Improvement in purchases of raw and semifinished materials by automobiles is reported by steel manufacturers and brass and copper producers. River traffic usually is considered an accurate barometer of business in the great Pittsburg steel district, but, although mills are known to be operating at an increased rate compared with six weeks ago, river shipments in the last month fell off 8000 tons. When this was checked, however, it was found that new orders, many of them for sheets and other automobile materials, had been for immediate delivery and steel companies had been forced to ship by rail.

There is every probability, according to George A. Sloan, secretary of the Copper and Brass Research Association, that consumption of copper in the United States this year will exceed 1,500,000,000 pounds.

The automobile business is one of the mainstays of the copper industry, although a high percentage of copper consumption this year will be accounted for by improvement in the electrical industry and by heavy building construction. Consumption thus far this year has been running about 10 per cent above that for the corresponding period of 1923.

The copper producers of the country have determined not to make public figures regarding sales, stocks and production, but because of this concealment consumers probably have found out more regarding the present statistical position of the metal than they ever knew before.

CALIFORNIA PRISONERS BUILDING MOTOR ROADS

Prisoners in the Los Angeles county jail are doing their bit toward making motoring enjoyable in Southern California. Under the "honor system," 30 miles of highway leading into the newly created Big Pine County park has just been completed. It represents the labor of inmates of penal institutions for two years, and has made available for motorists 540 acres of majestic pines overlooking the Mojave Desert.

The new park, at 7000 feet elevation, is surrounded by national forests, and is 100 miles east of Los Angeles. The road will be kept free from snow by tractors, so Los Angeles residents may enjoy snowballing, bob-sledding, ice-skating and skiing.

Signposts Utah and Colorado.

Mapping and sign posting of Southern Utah and Western Colorado over a distance of 8796 miles of highway will be completed by Oct. 1, according to the Automobile Club of Southern California, which has undertaken the work. The work started last May with inspection by D. C. Rhodes, field engineer of the club, and three sign posting trucks are now installing 6500 signs and 4000 signposes from Salt Lake south.

John Smith and His Car

by FREDERICK RUSSELL

A MILE or so farther along the detour I looked back to see if Smith was still following me, only to be startled by his absence from the scenery. Apparently he had lost his way. But how? The road had seemed simple enough to me. I had just followed without giving it much thought.

But then, on recalling the course I had just traversed, I remembered that there had been a fork in the road about a quarter of a mile back. There had been no sign post and the highway department had failed to mark the continuation of the detour plainly. I had taken the branch to the left without debating the question because I knew that the main road I was trying to get back to was somewhere to my left. Half the time I am driving over strange roads I cannot tell exactly where I am or how far I am from somewhere else, but I am never lost because I aim to keep my general directions clearly in mind.

When Smith met the fork in the road he was confused because he had already lost his main directions and the two choices he was being offered seemed to make matters worse. He might have noticed that the road to the left was the more traveled of the two, or that there were plain traces in the dirt of the road to reveal the imprint of the two new rear tires which he had helped me to buy not three days before; but he chose a very common mistake in automobile pathfinding.

He said to himself: "I'll try the road to the right for a mile or so and if I don't overtake my friends I'll know then that I have chosen the wrong road. Then I'll come back and get on the right one." His plan went well enough until he got a long-distance view of the road ahead from the top of a hill. Seeing that I wasn't in sight, he turned the car around and headed back to the fork again, but before reaching the original scene of his confusion he encountered an inverted fork which he had passed by without noticing. Country roads are always filled with these jokers, and when traveling over an unmarked detour one has to be careful about them.

The upshot of Smith's experience was that he chose the left road this time (probably because his choice of a right road the time before had been unlucky) and soon found himself completely confused, isolated in the woods, lost!

Worse of all, the sun was beginning to set.

As I waited by the roadside I suddenly recalled that Smith did not even have a roadmap. He was always going to get one! Perhaps a map might not have shown him these side roads, but at least it would have revealed the highways, and with this encouragement he would have been justified in going straight ahead in some one direction, knowing that eventually he would strike the main road.

The situation called for action, so I went back to the fork in the road and followed Smith's line of reasoning. Within 15 minutes I had found him, proving to his astonishment that we had not been farther apart than a half mile all the while.

"Now you're lost, too." Smith complained.

"Nonsense!" I replied. "When we turn our cars around in the original direction of travel the highway will be on our left. That's all we've got to bear in mind. Besides the sun is flickering through the trees straight ahead. When we turn our cars around, therefore, we'll be traveling in the opposite direction—or east—which is precisely the direction we are aiming for."

"You talk as though you know where you are," Smith continued.

"I haven't the slightest idea where I am," I retorted. "But I know where I am gaing. That is the point to remember."

Before the sun had dropped over the top of a distant mountain I had demonstrated this simple rule of pathfinding by getting back on the highway, 20 miles from our destination. Pressed for time and tempted by a new stretch of concrete road, we "stepped on the gas," swinging logically into a new experience for Smith. There was every reason to believe that he would be "lost" at "sixty." Most motorists go wrong when they're running smoothest.

LEGAL GUARD FOR VICTIMS OF AUTO ACCIDENTS URGED

city streets, but more general State legislation for certification of titles and suitable penalties for violation will be the greatest single means for checking this huge loss, it was declared.

Many Liability Bills Fail.

Maryland and Michigan, it was reported, have found that cars stolen in those states are frequently taken by joy riders who abandon them after a brief time, where states having no certification of title law have to contend with a generally different type of theft. Stolen cars are intimately associated with the accident problem, because of the greater recklessness with which they are driven.

Study of liability legislation by various members of the committee showed that 45 bills dealing with liability legislation failed of passage in the various states in 1923 and that 34 such bills have thus far failed this year. More than 35 law or city ordinances dealing with this subject were examined, all of which were found to refer to public vehicles.

Practically all of the large casualty insurance companies, it was stated, are engaed in an effort to lower the number of public accidents, both from a personal and public interest. Members of the committee declared themselves to be impressed by the activity of the companies, but noted a lack of coordination and uniformity in the work undertaken.

In many cases educational work was found to be carried on among owners of motor fleets through the closer attention to the employment of drivers, more careful and systematic inspection of equipment, and an awakening of the owner to the private benefit as well as public interest. Paid representatives of the insurance companies were found to be conducting schools for drivers and helping owners to put into effect bonus or other systems of reward for safe driving over given periods. Among the individual car owners who are policy holders, the companies were found to be conducting consistent campaigns with safety literature, pamphlets on highway law, care of the car and drivers' manual.

Extension of educational work through national insurance organizations along better co-ordinated lines was urged, not only in the training of drivers, but in the periodical inspection of equipment.

HOW COUNTIES GAIN BY STATE ROADS PROGRAM

a property tax is inevitable, as the public is demanding roads.

Both Should Vote for It.

"Every voter, therefore, who is not a motor owner should be for Proposition No. 5, which establishes the principal of having the motor owner build and maintain the State roads.

"Every man who owns a car should be for Proposition No. 5, as the building of the State roads at an early date with automobile license fees and gasoline tax is an investment for him, as he can save time and expense far in excess of his license fees, by use of improved roads.

"I venture the statement that the user of the present road across the county will save within the next three years more than the road actually cost. Calculations show that the motor car owners save at least two and one-half cents a mile when driving on an improved road as compared with driving on the average dirt road. This saving per mile will more than repay to the motor owner his investment in roads. Therefore he should be for Proposition No. 5.

"Proposition No. 5 to be voted upon in November, should receive the support of every individual in the county, as it will insure the completion of the State roads in this county and an early refund of the money advanced so that additional roads can be built. It will also insure adequate maintenance. Additional funds which will be provided by Proposition No. 5 will enable the department to complete the entire State road system in every county and to properly maintain all the roads.

"Every citizen is for roads. It is merely a question of how can we best obtain them. Proposition No. 5 embodies the plan which everyone agrees is the best known scheme to provide funds for the construction and maintenance of the State roads. The through State roads must be built before feeder roads can be considered. Every citizen of the county should be for Proposition No. 5 as it will help build roads for the county and the State.

"There is no one thing which will do more for the county or our State at large than completing the State road system at the earliest possible date."

RADIO FOR AMATEUR AND EXPERT

American Products Find Market in Other Countries Despite Foreign Restrictions.

The United States still leads in the exportation of radio apparatus, and is likely to continue in this position despite restrictions in foreign markets and lack of broadcasting facilities in many countries. Annual exports for 1925 will probably exceed $5,000,000 in value.

Three years ago there were not more than a dozen manufacturers of radio apparatus in this country—the only demands were for commercial telegraph equipment, whereas today a conservative estimate of the number engaged in this growing industry is placed at 325 firms exporting apparatus for commercial interests, amateurs and the listening public.

An idea of the immensity of our export radio business may be gained from the fact that during the past seven months radio exports totaled $2,123,832, compared with 1,894,823, during the same period last year, showing an increase of over $250,000. Since Jan 1, the average monthly value of radio exports has been well over $300,000, against an average of approximately $270,000 last year. All of which goes to show that wireless apparatus shipped out of the country annually is a $4,000,000 business.

Exporters from the states show a steady growth in business and it is stated by Government statisticians that our manufacturers can always compete abroad on a quality basis. Of course, in countries where there are restrictions against foreign apparatus, a serious handicap is encountered, but these market restrictions are being lifted gradually. Australia has just opened her ports to competition, so has South Africa, while Poland appears to be inclined to accept American goods. Another difficulty is the fact that some Governments levy a "listening-in" tax, which reduces the number of fans. In South Africa this fee amounts to about $10 a year, and in Australia almost as much is charged for the privilege of operating a first-class receiving set.

In spite of these difficulties in the way of foreign competition, radio exports from the United States have increased steadily month by month this year over the same periods last year, with one exception. During July last year, $443,000 worth of orders went to Sweden, bringing exports to $682,885, while the figure for this July is 43 per cent of it.

BROOKLYN INVENTOR PATENTS SYSTEM TO OVERCOME STATIC

Proposes to Transmit With Small Amount of Energy on Several Different Wave Lengths.

The elimination of static from radio reception may be made possible by an invention of Herman A. Affel of Brooklyn, N. Y., upon which a patent has just been granted by the Patent Office. Here is the description Mr. Affel gave of his invention in making application for a patent on it:

"In accordance with the present invention, it is proposed to transmit an equivalent amount of energy at several different wave lengths transmitted simultaneously, the amount of energy transmitted at each wave length being, of course, considerably less than the amount radiated at a single frequency, and in fact the total amount of energy radiated at all of the different frequencies need be no greater than that radiated at a single frequency under the previous method. The present scheme has the advantage that more favorable effects with regard to eliminating static interference may be obtained by using the element of chance that a particular interfering impulse will not occur simultaneously on all receiving wave lengths, and has the further advantage that it is unnecessary to construct complicated apparatus for transmitting the large amounts of power that would be involved in the first scheme.

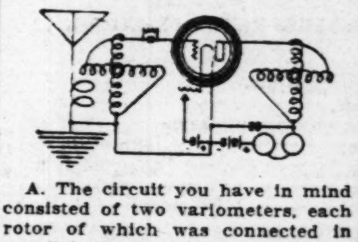
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

All queries must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer.

Q. I have a two-brush 110-volt dynamo in the basement of a cement mill which has a galvanized roof. The generator is 800 feet from my home where I have tested several makes of receiving sets which were rendered completely inoperative due to interfering noises from the generator. Is there any way of overcoming the trouble? S. J.

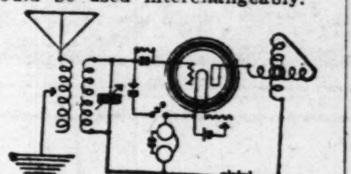
A. The usual remedies prescribed for such cases as yours are to "ground" the frame of the generator and to adjust the brushes so that there is a minimum of sparking at the commutator. It might be advisable to "ground" the metal roof of the building. Placing your aerial in a position which would form a right angle with a line drawn from your house to the cement mill might help to minimize the disturbances. If your receiver is sufficiently sensitive to operate with a loop aerial it is quite likely that the interference could be entirely eliminated by this means. If not, and the set has a primary condenser, conecting it in shunt to the primary tuning inductance, rather than in series, is sometimes helpful. A resistance of several thousand ohms connected between the aerial and ground, might help. Ordinarily a multiple-circuit tuner will pick up less of such interference than a single-circuit receiver. However, means to curb the trouble at its source probably would be more effective. Persons in your locality who are familiar with electrical installations may be able to advise you further as to your particular problem.

Q. With the introduction of low wavelengths I find I have but little use for the receiving tuner which I have used in the past. I now wish to construct a new short wave tuner. Will you please publish a diagram of the tuner used by Mr. Maxim on a recent trip to this country. As I remember it, this circuit utilized two variometers and an untuned primary. D. M.



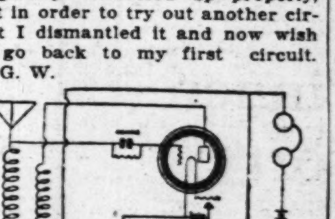
A. The circuit you have in mind consisted of two variometers, each rotor of which was connected in parallel with its stationary winding. The primary coil and coupling was fixed and consisted of five or six turns of wire wound outside the grid variometer. The wiring diagram is shown above.

Q. Inclosed please find a diagram of the small receiving set I am using. I also have a crystal detector and would like to know if it would be possible to connect it in some manner so that either the crystal or vacuum tube detector could be used interchangeably.



A. It is a simple matter to change your present set into the one shown above, which will enable you, by means of one switch, to change from one detector to the other.

Q. Kindly print the diagram for the following pieces of radio apparatus: Two-coil honeycomb mounting, L50 and L75 honeycomb coils, .00025 mfd. fixed condenser, 1½-megohm grid leak, 6-ohm rheostat, WD-12 tube and three .006 mfd. fixed condensers. These parts were originally connected up properly, but in order to try out another circuit I dismantled it and now wish to go back to my first circuit. C. G. W.



A. The parts you have evidently were used in a one-tube Flewelling receiver. The hook-up is shown above.

Q. Will you kindly give me a few pointers? I have a reflex set with one UV201-A tube and one audio and one radio frequency transformer and a fixed crystal detector. I also have a two-stage amplifier with C301-A tubes and one audio and one radio transformer. I get KSD and WCK quite loud with only a 20-inch loop, but have tried to operate a Magnavox loud speaker using the three tubes and lighting the filaments with four dry cells but can get no signals at all. What can be the trouble? Must I use a storage battery or an outside antenna, or what changes should be made in the tuner? E. P.

A. If your two-stage amplifier consists of an audio frequency transformer and a radio frequency transformer this explains your trouble. Try substituting and "audio" transformer for the "radio" and see if it doesn't give the results expected. Four dry cells connected in series should operate your set equally as well as a storage battery while they last, but their life is much shorter than that of a storage battery. The only advantage in using a storage battery is that when exhausted it can be recharged, whereas "dead" dry cells are worthless because they cannot be recharged. However, the reception should be the same with either kind of a battery. If you get loud signals using a loop, and hear nothing when the amplifier is attached, obviously the trouble lies in your amplifier and not in the kind of aerial employed, although the signals might be even louder if the set were connected to an outdoor aerial. Check the connections in your amplifier.

TWENTY NEW BROADCASTERS NOW UNDER CONSTRUCTION

There are 20 new class "B" stations now under construction in different parts of the country, according to the records of the Commerce Department, and the erection of about 25 more is under consideration. Not all of them are new literally, however. Some of them are applying for transfers from classes "A" and "C."

The problem for the Bureau of Navigation Radio Section is not lessened by this fact, however. Somehow a dozen new wave lengths will have to be found. In general, each of the 56 class "B" stations has an exclusive wave length, so as to insure no interference from other broadcasters within a wide territory. Originally there were 50 separate wave lengths assigned to "B" stations, but before long some of the stations on opposite coasts or in the same cities had to share wave lengths or time. Later a few were given experimental wave lengths and now the bands are exhausted.

How to find a number of exclusive wave lengths for these newcomers is a problem that will probably have to be referred to the National Radio Conference called for Oct. 6. It is rumored that some of the higher wave lengths allocated to amateurs, before the new short wave lengths were opened to them, may be reassigned to class "A" broacasters, while some of their waves will be transferred to class "B." In all probability the class "C" wave of 360 meters, which was the original broadcasting wave, will also be revoked and given to two or three "B" stations.

RADIO CENSORSHIP TO BE CONSIDERED

Conference May Formulate Regulations to Govern Broadcast Matter.

Is everything suitable for broadcasting? Should there be any censorship over material put on the air by private broadcasters? These are questions which are very likely to be raised at the Third National Radio Conference, soon to be held in Washington.

Secretary Hoover has announced himself as against any form of censorship, and yet as the Governmental administrator of radio, he is apt to be called upon to decide such questions, when complaints come from listeners-in who disapprove of some sorts of entertainment, the acknowledgment of telegrams, "raw" jokes and expressions of opinion subject to criticism.

For example: What could be done with an individual who continually cursed and swore in the course of a speech he was making or who chose to interrupt the broadcasting of a sermon with impertinant remarks, and possibly obscene ejaculations from his own transmitter?

These things have occurred, and may be repeated unless some law can be unearthed or created to prevent such practice. Under present radio laws, it is doubtful if the offender could be handled with anything like justice to the incensed fans or the clergyman who was interrupted.

There is apparently no law against saying what one pleases in the air. Radio regulations, which were originally promulgated for commercial and amateur radio telegraph transmission, provide that: "No person shall transmit or make a signal containing profane or obscene words or language." It is understood pretty generally that "transmit" applies to voice transmissions by a radio phone, but it would probably require a court decision to settle this point satisfactorily. It is hoped that the broadcasters themselves will voluntarily agree to abide by the telegraph rules as interpreted by the Commerce Department.

Most broadcasters like to acknowledge congratulatory telegrams, which in general has been banned, being considered private point-to-point service, and not strictly broadcasting. But the question of whether a station is not entitled to do this is sure to be asked at the conference. Some advocate the granting of at least a few minutes during an evening's program to acknowledgments addressed to individuals. Others say this would become a bore to [illegible] out of 1000 listeners, unless there was some news in it, such as thanking a fan the greatest distance from the station who reported, or acknowledging the first telegram received following a certain number. Such a practice would certainly be unfortunate unless limited to a few messages. Broadcasters would lose their audiences if it was continued for any length of time.

The last radio conference agreed to refrain from broadcasting advertisements, and it is believed further regulations, thought desirable by a majority conference vote, can be enforced by a voluntary agreement to keep the air clean and free from objectionable matter, without any form of governmental censorship.

This suit was brought to cancel Freed-Eisemann's Neutrodyne license, but Hazeltine interests failed to convince the court. Freed-Eisemann's counter-charges of fraud and misrepresentation and demand for reforming the license agreement, to relieve them from paying royalties on the entire Neutrodyne receiver and limit the royalty to the small parts patented by Hazeltine, were ruled against by the Court. The Court further ordered Freed-Eisemann to pay all royalties in arrears, amounting to over $100,000 with interest.

RADIO FOR THE AMATEUR AND EXPERT

TRANSFORMERS ARE HEART OF AMPLIFIER

Quality of Signals as Well as Volume Dependent on Grade of Apparatus Used.

Radio users everywhere are putting more and more emphasis on quality. Not even distance—which has been greatly overrated as a factor in the enjoyment of broadcast reception—can compensate for squeals and howls.

The underlying cause of poor tone quality is improper amplification. To amplify is easy, but to amplify efficiently requires apparatus designed and built by specialists in both electrical engineering and sound reproduction.

The transformer is the heart of the amplifier, and it is primarily through the right kind of a transformer that amplication without distortion is secured. This is the real secret of radio tone quality.

As Sewall Cabot, chief research engineer of the Acme Apparatus Co., has pointed out, "an audio-frequency amplifying-transformer may best be compared to a a magnifying glass. Then if we compare our eye as the loud speaker, we have an exact analogy of the enitre audio amplifying system of the radia receiver. No matter how perfect our eyesight may be, if we look through a defective magnifying glass the view is blurred or distorted.

"A loud speaker, no matter how fine and perfect, cannot in the least correct the defects of poorly designed audio transformers. In order to get perfect reception, both audio transformers and loud speakers must be perfect. Cheap magnifying glasses are subject to reproduce with astigmatism and spherical aberration, for which the better types of glasses are corrected. Likewise cheap transformers have a tendency to but faintly amplify the low bass notes and strongly amplify the high notes. The net result is a 'tin-pannish' sounding reproduction much similar to a cheap phonograph, and which is often blamed on the loud speaker. A well-designed transformer is so built that selective frequency amplification is impossible. One way of preventing this is the use of an air gap in the magnetic shell, which positively prevents saturation of the core. The proper arrangement of end turns and the windings can also do much to overcome distortion and resonance, which is the selecting of one frequency for extreme amplification at the expense of the other frequencies."

Mr. Cabot also stressed the importance of proper ratio in a transformer.

"Ratio of transformation talk is entirely misleading," he said. "Scientific research has proven that there is only one ratio of transformation for the best music and voice reproduction, and that ratio is 1¼ to 1. While higher ratios give more volume, they also give more distortion. They have a tendency to greatly amplify the high frequencies more than the low, which gives a tinnish nasal reproduction. Lower ratios than the ideal ratio approach resistance coupling, which gives little amplification and efficiency per tube. Do not be misled by ratio of transformation, because there is only one ratio for perfect results. What is desired is loud and clear reproduction. Magnetic shielding is not necessary in an audio-frequency transformer with an iron core, as this style of core effectively prevents interstage coupling. Magnetic shielding is sometimes used to cover defects in windings.

"Remarkable improvements in the efficiency of radio apparatus have been made recently. Keep the losses low in the apparatus which goes into a circuit, and the result will do the rest. Proper amplification and low losses go hand in hand."

Battery Information.

The life of radio batteries is largely dependent on their use. A good "A" battery with a 25-ampere tube should give about 100 hours of service; two batteries in parallel will give over double the service. It pays in the end to use batteries in parallel. The average smallest size "B" batteries should last about 150 hours. It pays to buy medium or large size, for they last longer in proportion to cost. Loud speakers draw more current than head phones.

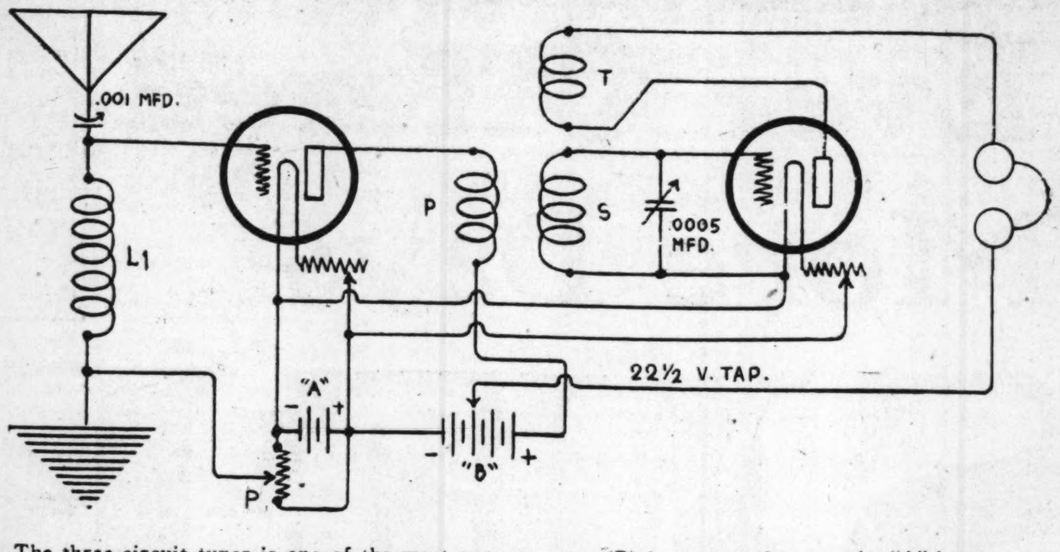
Adding Radio Frequency to a Three-Circuit Tuner



The three-circuit tuner is one of the most popular tuning units in use by broadcast listeners today. It is simple, easy to operate and requires only two controls. The circuit illustrated above shows how one stage of radio frequency may be added.

For the complete set, the following parts are required: Three-circuit tuner; .001 mfd. variable condenser; .0005 mfd. variable condenser; 2 sockets; 2 tubes; 2 rheostats; 1 potentiometer; "A" battery and 45-volt "B" battery.

The tuning coil (L1) consists of 60 turns of No. 22 d. c. c. wire, wound on a 3-inch tube. This coil forms the antenna tuning unit. It is advisable to connect the rotor plates of the .001 mfd. variable condenser to the aerial (as indicated). A potentiometer (P) is connected across the "A" battery.

The three-circuit tuner is indicated by the three coils marked P, S, and T. It may be any one of a number of such tuners available on the market, or, may be made up by winding 40, 55 and 60 turns of No. 22 d. s. c. wire on spider-web forms, thus forming the primary, secondary and tickler, respectively.

A 22½-volt tap is taken from the 45-volt "B" battery for the detector.

Note that the tickler is connected to the detector tube and not back to the radio frequency tube as actual experience has proven that when this method is followed, the circuit is more stable. The secondary (.0005 mfd.) condenser may be logged similar to a neutrodyne set.

U. S. Interests Organize Communication Committee

Will Make Suggestions and Recommendations for Revising Regulations of International Telegraph Union

Whether or not the United States takes an official part in the international telegraph and radio conference in Paris next Spring, private communication interests in this country are considering the organization of a communication committee. This body is being formed by repersentatives of the radio, cable, telegraph and telephone companies operating in the United States in the interest of an efficient American communication system. It plans to co-operate with the Government, probably through the State and Commerce Department, by furnisheing data and technical advice in preparation for future international conferences on communincations.

It is understood that the Radio Corporation of America, the American Telegraph and Telephone Co., Western Union, Postal, All American Cables, Tropical Radiotelegraph Co., and Independent Wireless Telegraph Co., are among the American communication companies which will soon appoint representatives on the private communications committee.

To date the United States Government has not ratified the conventions of the International Telegraph Union formed in 1908, and as a consequence has not been invited to the next convention. On the other hand, practically all private radio, cable and telegraph companies of the states have been asked to communicate suggestions and recommendations for revising the present regulations of this union, when the next session is held in Paris, in 1925, probably in April or May. This they may do through the intercompany committee being organized. In the event the United States does not participate officially or through unofficial observers in revising international regulations on communications, it would be absurd to suppose that the United States as a country could be left out. If official delegates are not sent, private representatives will be. The voice of North America is essential in revising universal communication regulations.

When the original international convention was drawn up in 1908, radio was literally, in its infancy and the only provisions pertaining to radio operation were for ship to shore service; now, however, radio is as much a part of world communications as is cable and telegraph work, which necessitates the rewriting of the conventions.

In view of the fact that the United States delegates to the recent Mexican conference encountered a lack of interest on the part of the Latin-American representatives to proposals designed to provide better service for the peoples of the Americas and for the development of privately owned commercial systems, the formation of a national committee by the North American operating companies seems to promise valuable assistance to the Federal Government in its efforts to promote efficiency in international communication.

The policy of the United States for many years has been definitely opposed to Gocernment control or ownership of any communication system where it was possible to have facilities provided and operated by private interests. Following the action of the other American Republics at Mexico City aiming at Government control, the State Department here explained that the U. S. Delegates found it impossible to co-operate with the Southern governments, and withdrew. The tendency in both Central and South America points unmistakably toward government control and operation of radio, cables, telegraph and telephone systems. So the United States must face the probablity of playing a lone hand in any future electrical communication conference in this hemisphere or abroad.

The proposal recently advanced in Europe for an early international conference on this subject, makes preparations on the part of this country necessary. Whole-hearted co-operation between the Government and the communication interests will be of prime interest when it comes to laying the cards on the conference table abroad, but indications show that this co operation will be forthcoming.

Some co-operation abroad for private communication operation may be found. During the last three years there has been evidenced in western Europe a tendency toward entrusting the operation of comercial systems, particularly telephone and radio circuits, to private interests. This is not true in England, however. And unless there is a very decided change on the part of other European Governments from their attitude in previous conferences, the growth of private ownership of communincation systems in Europe will not affect the policies heretofore advanced by members of the International Telegraph Union, under whose auspices these conferences are held.

While no announcement has been made by the Administration of this country of its intentions in regard to the proposed Paris conference or its representatives on any of the committees appointed to study the problems arising, therefore, it seems likely that the experts and technical attaches who attended the Mexican conference will continue to work in preparation for any international parley which may he held.

ARMSTRONG-WESTINGHOUSE SUIT THROWN OUT OF COURT

Dismissed on Ground of Lack of Jurisdiction: Battle to Be Fought in Another Court.

The Armstrong and Westinghouse suit concerning the feed-back circuit has been thrown out of court. On motion of the defendants, Judge Knox of the U. S. District Court for the Southern District of New York, dismissed the bill of complaint in a suit brought by Armstrong & Co., American Telephone and Telegraph Co., General Electric Co. and others. The purpose of the suit was to have the U. S. District Court review the ruling of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, that the feed-back circuit was the invention of De Forest— and not of Armstrong. The suit was dismissed on the ground of lack of jurisdiction and the legal battel will be fought out in the U. S. District Court of Delaware, where a similar suit has been brought by the United States, naming other parties as defendants. The Government, during the war, acquired ownership of the Meissner circuit, an invention of a German, who is competing with De Forest and Armstrong as inventor of the feed-back circuit.

NEW ARRIVALS ON THE RADIO MART

A new combination of Brunswick phonograph and radio receiving set made in six different styles and cabinets was made available to the St. Louis public during the past week. Three of the "Brunswick Radiolas" incorporate the Radio Corporation superheterodyne receiver, while the others are equipped with the Radiola III, III-A and Regenoflex models. The cabinets are executed in various period styles. Change from phonograph to radio is accomplished by the mere turn of a lever control which connects or disconnects a loud-speaking unit to the built-in horn or amplifying chamber. All types of receivers operate from dry cell batteries which are housed within the cabinets.

The D. X. Instrument Co., Inc., makers of Fil-Ko-Parts for radio have placed on the market a new lighting arrester and issue therewith a rather unusual guarantee. This guarantee provides that should lightning strike an aerial to which a Fil-Ko lightning arrester is attached and damage the radio apparatus, they will repair set or pay the purchaser of the arrester $100. Thus, the arrester protects the set, if it works, and the guarantee protects the owner if it doesn't. The body of the device is made of polished bakelite and is shielded by a polished aluminum "umbrella" which keeps out dust, water and other conductive matter which might cause leakage losses.

Another Fil-Ko product is a compression type rheostat which can be switched off without being turned off. It overcomes the one disadvantage in the use of compression rheostats—the number of turns required to turn it on or off. This improvement is simply a small nickel-plated switch which may be attached to the Fil-Ko-Stat mounting screws on the front of the panel without drilling any additional holes.

The Magnavox Co. announces two types of broadcast receivers as their 1925 contribution to the radio market, along with improved loud speakers, a new model vacuum tube and power amplifiers. The two receivers are known as TRF-5 and TRF-50. Both types employ the same circuit, the difference being that the latter model incorporates a built-in Magnavox reproducer, and the cabinet is somewhat larger than the TRF-5. All tuning is accomplished with a single dial. Only two other controls are visible on the panel—an "A" battery switch and a volume control, the latter permitting any desired volume without detuning or altering the quality of reproduction in any way. According to the makers this product is the result of a long series of experiments and is a receiver which has given excellent results in distant reception as well as selectivity.

The famous Lavier formula, said to be the only different method ever discovered for making batteries—has just been applied to radio bateries by the Jordan Battery Co., manufacturers of "Ray" batteries. This battery is called the Ray-dio "B" storage battery and is said to be a revolution in radio battery construction. Among the many unusual features of this battery is the fact that no separators are used, giving free, unobstructed passage of the current, thus eliminating the hissing and sizzling noises that are often laid to static. Ray-dio "B" storage batteries, it is claimed, respond instantly to atmospheric variations, thus eliminating the annoyance of constant tuning. They are easily and quickly rechargeable and a small amount of current from the electric light circuit keeps them fully charged at all times, doing away with the annoyance of using batteries after they have been partly discharged.

The Howe Auto Products Co. are manufacturing a crystal radio receiving set of diminutive proportions as well as price. The tuner and detector may be purchased separately or a complete outfit consisting of aerial wire, insulators, ground clamp, phone and tuner, packed in a neat, strong cardboard box. It has a radius of 25 miles and is said to be a trouble-proof set.

Another Manhattan product is a collapsible loop aerial designed for use with portable and permanently installed radio sets. It is of rigid construction throughout. A special feature is the method of fastening the arms holding the wire in position when the loop is erected. This type of construction results in a rigid frame which will not collapse if accidentally struck or dropped on the floor. The loop is attached to the base by means of a special plug which permits rotation of the loop and assures positive contact with the base at all times. Connection to the receiving set is made in the base, thus eliminating any chance of the wires to the receiving set becoming tangled when the loop is rotated. A scale is provided on the base for marking the position in which the loop must be pointed to receive any given station. Sufficient wire is wound on the loop frame to cover the broadcasting wave length range with a variable condenser of approximately .0005 mfd. capacity.

All Wellston Radio Stores are in charge of men who know Radio and will answer your every question.

Courteous treatment and service with the lowest possible prices have made the WELLSTON COMPANY known throughout the country.

Many have requested the information as to whether we would continue the repairing of tubes. We are pleased to announce that we are now better equipped to handle this work, and the only reason we have not advertised the fact recently is due to the fact that we have had so much work that we were trying to give our customers prompt service.

Just a word about tubes—we positively guarantee AUDIOTRON TUBES under every condition; we test every tube with the Trinity Tester; every tube purchased is given this laboratory test, which acts as an X-Ray, immediately indicating any slight defect in the tube. No more need to buy a tube blindfolded—this instrument is to Radio what four wheel brakes are to the automobile and what X-Ray is to the medical profession. We predict that within a short time every Radio concern will follow the WELLSTON lead and be compelled to render this invaluable service free. Don't be misled—if it isn't TRINITY TESTED it isn't tested. Moreover, I have instructed our managers to guarantee the tube to work in your set. If the tube doesn't work in your set after five days test and is not burnt out, bring it back and get another tube and continue to get tubes until you have a perfect match—no charge for this accommodation.

The WELLSTON COMPANY will continue to open stores throughout the central states, and I personally take this means to thank our many customers, dealers and manufacturers for their kind assistance in making this company the leading Radio house in the middle-west.

Site for Police Station Bought on Natural Bridge

Corner on Belt Avenue Selected by Commissioners; Many Industrial Plants Nearby.

By BERRY MOORE.

The Board of Police Commission- yesterday purchased the south- corner of Natural Bridge road Belt avenue in Mars place, as site for a modern police station the Northwest district.

The site has 187 feet on Natural idge and 115 feet on Belt. It acquired from the Mars Real- Co., through W. E. Caulfield, ltor. According to Caulfield the ice paid was approximately $35,- . Negotiations are pending on half of the Police Board for the ound adjoining that of the ard of Education, also owned by Mars Realty Co.

This is in marked contrast with ,000 paid several years ago by es D. Howe for the southeast ner of Natural Bridge road and lington avenue, through John ckery & Son. This plot has a tage on Natural Bridge road of feet by a depth on Arlington of feet, and is opposite the main rance of the General Motors nt. The western 25 feet is im- ed with a substantial three- y buildings.

The police station project is im- rtant as signalizing the growth this part of the city which 10 ars ago was undeveloped, but ich now is an industrial center. Within this area are the plants the General Motors Co., United g Co., Wrought Iron Range Co., dge & Beach Stove Mfg. Co., the eidringhaus Metal Co. and the llman works.

$500,000 in Improvements.

Mars place was originally 25 of acres purchased by the Mars alty Co. Construction entailing re than $500,000 has already n completed in this addition h flats and apartments predom- ting. Though seemingly para- ical, most of the resident own- in this subdivision are employed other parts of the city.

The Board of Education, Jan. 16, 9, purchased a tract, having a ntage of 398 feet on the south of Natural Bridge road, by a pth of 398 feet, 180 feet west Arlington avenue, now occupied open air schools. The price d for this tract before street provements, etc., was $14,000.

The other 30 of the 55 acres ac- red by the Mars Realty Co. lies t of Belt avenue. It has been erved for industrial purposes. is is the largest single tract on tural Bridge road in the vicinity the General Motors Co. plant. eral years ago it was submitted the Switch Property Department the Mercantile Trust Co. to ge Bros. as a site for a major omobile tract.

Hedgleigh Park Tract.

Hedgleigh Park is another prime elopment on Natural Bridge lying between St. Louis ave- on the north, Kingshighway the east and Union boulevard on the west, comprising the entire holdings of the Hydraulic Press Brick Co.

The tract was purchased by the Hedgleigh Park Realty Co. of which Robert Burns, president of the Bush-Burns Realty Co .is president, and which is spending $250,000 for surface and underground improvements.

Natural Bridge road is the leading artery connecting the northwestern industrial district with downtown St. Louis. The city has planned Natural Bridge avenue, Florissant avenue, and Palm street, with their downtown connections as a street 100 feet in width between Twelfth boulevard and Washington avenue, and Pine Lawn, the intersection of the St. Louis and Suburban Railway and Natural Bridge avenue. At this point the United Railways has acquired a tract of nine acres to be used as a loop terminus to provide for the extension of electric lines to be constructed out Natural Bridge road from their present terminus at Kingshighway.

HOT SPRINGS HOTEL COST $3,450,000

Details are being completed for opening on Jan. 1. next the new Arlington Hotel, under construction at Hot Springs National Park, Arkansas. The hotel will be open the year around.

The building will cost, when completed, $2,700,000, with an additional outlay of $750,000 for furnishings and fixtures. The project was financed through the Real Estate Loan Department, of the Mercantile Trust Co., by a first mortgage real estate serial note issue.

The dimensions of the building, which is now under roof, are 233 by 265 feet, with a central wing of 150 feet. Construction is of steel and concrete, and is fireproof. The exterior is in tapestry-faced brick, with a trim of white stone and stucco. The roof is of the red Spanish style.

There are a total of 600 rooms, including the public space and 501 guest rooms. Fifty of the guest rooms will be served with hot water from the Government springs. Eighteen of the principal suites will have private parlors. There will also be a convention hall and a ballroom on the mezzanine floor, with a seating capacity of 1500. Within the walls will be a bath house, equal in size to any other in Hot Springs. There will be a roof garden, or solarium, 115 feet long and 35 feet wide, with terraces, so arranged that it may be closed for use in the winter months.

The site is at the corner of Central avenue and Fountain street, directly across the street from the site of the old Arlington Hotel, which was destroyed by fire. The old Arlington Hotel site is to be used as a park in connection with the hotel. Connecting with the Fountain street wing will be a garage, with accommodations for several hundred machines.

The officers of the Arlington Hotel Co. are D. F. Gaines, president, and W. E. Chester, vice president and general manager.

GRIFFIN WATKINS' COUNTRY RESIDENCE NEAR COMPLETION

The country residence of Griffin Watkins, vice president and director of the International Shoe Co. of St. Louis, is now nearing completion on a site overlooking the Mississippi river, north of Alton.

The acreage of this estate was originally in the form of ravines, covered with a dense growth of forest trees, a section of which was skillfully converted into a proper setting by landscape architects. The drives leading up to the house have been replanted in part so as to screen the house as a whole and allow only glimpses to come in view in the approach.

The house was designed by Study & Farrar of St. Louis. An adaptation of the Elizabethan country house has been used here the lower portion being of the once-famous cream colored stone from the Grafton quarries. The second story is half timber largely constructed with heavy hewn timbers dowled and morticed together with oak beams. The spaces between these heavy timbers are filled with brick and plaster. The gables, barge boards and corbels are all being hand carved by the St. Louis sculptor, Victor Berlendis. The slate roof is of heavy variegated slate. High stone chimneys cap out the design.

JACKSON JOHNSON BUYS HOME FOR LEGION

Will Give Lindell Boulevard Residence to Post Named for Son for Club House.

The residence of F. W. Miner, 4160 Lindell boulevard, has been purchased by Jackson Johnson, president of the International Shoe Co. It will be given by Johnson to the Jackson Johnson Jr. Post of the American Legion, for a clubhouse.

The house has 18 rooms, with all modern conveniences and occupies a lot 100x250 feet.

$300 a Front Foot.

The premises include garage for several cars.

The price paid was not disclosed but property in this section of Lindell boulevard is given a valuation as high as $300 a front foot.

Albert J. Terry & Co. handled the transaction. A picture of the house is shown on this page.

Isaac H. Orr Buys Home.

Another notable residential sale was that of 57 Kingsbury place, acquired by Isaac H. Orr, vice president of the St. Louis Union Trust Co., for a home.

The former owner was F. Z. Solomon, vice president of the International Shoe Co.

The house has 11 rooms, exclusive of two sleeping porches and a sun room. The grounds include a garage for several cars.

This sale was also negotiated by Albert Terry & Co.

TWO NEW DOUBLE HOUSES IN PASADENA DIVISION

The Alfred Baker Realty Company announces the erection of two new two-family homes in Pasadena, Webster, the duplex subdivision on Big Bend Road and Selma avenue, Webster Groves.

One of the buildings is being erected for William Stoecker, of Webster Groves, by L. L. Livingston. Engineering and Contracting Company. from plans made by Corrubia & Henderson, achitects.

The building will house two families. giving each family all of the privacy and conveniences afforded by a single family residence of six rooms and bath. The building is in the early English style, the first floor being constructed of mat brick and the second floor giving an artistic effect of white stucco, trimmed with rough hewn logs, topped off by high sloping slate roof. Like all of the new duplex buildings in Pasadena, Webster, it is original in design and is being built on a large, deep lot with fruit trees.

The other duplex, a stucco of Norman French type, is being built by Clifford Taussig. architect, for his own account. It will have two five room and bath apartments, with separate steam heating plants equipped with gas heated boilers.

An appeal is being made to prospective renters with families.

NEW LOFT BUILDING AT 22ND AND PINE

The new four-story and basement loft building on the northeast corner of Twenty-second and Pine streets, being erected for the Lurso Realty & Investment Company will be ready for occupancy early in October.

The building, which has a frontage of 120 feet on Pine street and 109 feet on Twenty second street, is so constructed that each floor may be sub-divided into two or four daylight units. Manufacturers today are giving more thought to good light and low insurance rates than to location, and the owners had this in mind when they planned the building.

The basement is available for manufacturing purposes or for the storage of automobiles, the owners having provided a ramp from the alley side, in addition to a 10x18 freight elevator of 6000 pounds capacity. The roof will be finished in such a manner that it may be used by employes in the building as a recreation roof garden.

Isaac T. Cook & Co., Inc., specialists in business properties, have charge of leasing the building.

WATSON & O'ROURKE OPEN NEW REALTY OFFICE

Watson-O'Rourke Realty Co., announce the opening of their new offices at 5715 Gravois avenue. Both Watson and O'Rourke formerly were connected with the F. W. Gelan Real Estate Co. J. Gleasman and W. E. Watson Jr., have joined the sales force.

AMERICAN GOLD LABEL CO. TO MOVE TO CLARK AVENUE

The American Gold Label Co., now at 1402 Chestnut street, has leased of the Goodman Manufacturing Co. the fourth floor of the building at 322-324 Clark avenue, and will remove there Oct. 1. George Roth of the Cornet & Zeibig Trust represented both parties to the transaction.

RUSSELL PARK ADDITION IMPROVEMENTS UNDER WAY

The Security Guarantor Co. announced yesterday that the surface and underground improvements under construction in Russell Park would be completed within the next 90 days. A $300,000 building campaign has been launched in this addition.

MISSOURI TELEGRAPH CO. RENTS MARKET STREET HOME

The Missouri District Telegraph company has closed a long-term lease for the second floor of the building at 1026-28 Market street. The property, a two-story and basement building, 30 by 135 feet will be altered so that the ground floor store room and basement can be leased separately.

The owners have experienced some difficulty in renting this property on account of the proposed widening of Market street, but the majority of owners in this district are of the opinion that it will be at least five years before anything is done.

Isaac T. Cook & Co., Inc., represented both parties in negotiating the lease, which provides for the construction of a new front, and an allowance in rental in the event the city widens Market street during the term.

NEW 30-FAMILY APARTMENT BUILDING NEAR COMPLETION

A thirty-family apartment building is being erected at the northeast corner of Kingsbury boulevard and Adelaide avenue by Vincent A. Chinberg for Joseph W. Kopman, at a cost of $225,000. These apartments to be known as the Adelaide Apartments will occupy a lot fronting 100 feet on Kingsbury boulevard by 200 feet on Adelaide avenue. The building is nicely trimmed with terra cotta and the entrances are of marble. The suites run in 3, 4 and 5-room apartments, each with glazed tile wainscoating in the bathrooms and equipped with refrigerator, white enamel gas range and in-a-dor bed. The boiler room will be fire proof, the heat dispensed by vacuum steam system.

The plans were drawn by Oliver J. Popp. architect. These apartments when completed, Oct. 1, will rent for $36,000 a year and the Anderson-Stocke-Buermann Realty Co. will have charge of the rents and sale of the property.

Mushroom or Toadstool?

The old recipe for telling a mushroom from a toadstool was: EAT IT—IF YOU DIE, IT'S A TOADSTOOL.

Buyers of home sites are often in a similar predicament. Whether they will have suitable home surroundings is ascertained only after the surrounding property has been built up.

Purchasers of lots in

HOLLY HILLS

Grand Boulevard and Carondelet Park

are spared this suspense, because these home sites carry with them an assurance of the high character of neighboring buildings and surroundings.

Deep building lines and perpetual restrictions against commercial buildings, apartment houses, etc., assure the maintenance of HOLLY HILLS as a high-class residential community.

AS TO SURROUNDINGS—Carondelet Park lies immediately to the south. Well-restricted Grand Dover Park Subdivision immediately to the north and east. These, together with the 100 acres in HOLLY HILLS, form a plot of 400 acres that cannot be disturbed by undesirable invasion.

AS TO IMPROVEMENTS—Holly Hills will have wide concrete and asphalt streets, curbs, sidewalks, parkways, ornamental street entrances, trees, shrubs and flowers. Sewers, water, gas and electricity are now being installed.

The price of lots in this very choice subdivision is extremely reasonable. Lots as low as $40.00 per foot. Terms if desired.

54 DEEDS
EXECUTED
YESTERDAY—

Nothing to equal this has ever before happened in the history of St. Louis home building. Thirty-four deeds in a single day—within ten days thirty-four more happy families will move into their Majestic homes. Remarkable, indeed! As remarkable as Majestic homes; as the plan of home buying, and the people to whom the thirty-four deeds were delivered.

In the thirty-three we find virtually a little community of many vocations, young men on the road to success, settled old couples who have achiever their goal, business men and professional men, men devoting their energies to the arts and sciences; vocations as varied as the needs and interests of our big city, but all with one interest in common—a life of happiness and contement in a home of their own.

AN APPRECIATION OF MAJESTIC HOMES AND THE MAJESTIC BUYING PLAN

The object of the Majestic building method is to produce better homes at lowered cost—to build entire communities, but to build each home with a distinctive individuality of its own. And the Majestic buying plan removes the traditional barrier to home ownership.

No down payment.

Price same as cash.
Warranty deed day of purchase.
No security except the property itself.
No short-time loans (but with the privilege of paying all or any part at any time).
The entire purchase price divided into equal monthly payments of but little more than rent for the same property.

DAWES 'WARMS UP' IN IOWA AND ILLINOIS

Vice-Presidential Candidate Makes Rear Platform Speeches Assailing La Follette.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Charles G. Dawes, Republican vice presidential nominee, thundered his way across Iowa and Illinois today with the La Follette independent candidacy ever the object of his invective.

Arriving here this evening to spend a four-day interim before again taking up the campaign with speeches in Minnesota, associates of the nominee remarked that "the General now has hit his stride," and Dawes himself recalled that he had predicted a month ago that it would be nearly October before he would "get warmed up."

Using a special train for the first time since he began his speaking campaign, Dawes appeared on the rear platform at every stop and as the train resumed its journey there was left behind with those who heard the nominee a collection of Dawes-coined phrases, such as "political peewits" and "issue-straddling demagogues."

Pleased by Receptions.

The reception given his rear platform speeches, both today and while en route to Sioux Falls, S. D., where he made his principal speech of the trip last night, was declared by Dawes to have been satisfactory—so satisfactory, he said, that he plans to make as many rear platform talks as possible on his trip to the far West, starting about Oct. 5.

Principal speeches were made today at Dubuque, Ia., and Galena, Ill., and at both points, Dawes devoted his attention as he did in part last night at Sioux Falls, and also as he did en route to South Dakota, to "the greatest issue of this campaign—the issue of the Constitution of the United States."

"When I started out in this campaign," he told those who greeted him at Dubuque, "I thought I was going to talk a good deal about the budget. I had something to do with it and I knew something about the subject. But this is about the first time I have mentioned the budget in the whole campaign.

"An Issue Nobody Expected."

"Why? Because like a thief in the night, a great issue has stolen upon the consciences and minds of the American people—an issue nobody expected—the issue of the Constitution of the United States, which Constitution is being assailed by Robert M. La Follette, behind whom is massed a heterogeneous combination of the forces opposed to the existing order of things in this country, the largest portion of which are the Socialists flying the red flag.

This issue is fundamental. It is vital. The proposition is that we abandon our present form of government, with its balanced powers—the judicial, the executive, and the legislative—and make Congress the final power in the Government of the United States, and in one blow abolish that balancing of powers which protects you in your individual rights, your inalienable rights under the Constitution.

"What are those inalienable rights that are protected by the Constitution which is assailed in this way?" he inquired. "It is right to go to church where you please; it is your right to own property; it is your right to trial by jury, and other individual rights. . . . What kind of a government would this be if Congress had the right to pass a law telling you where to go to church or taking your property away and giving it to somebody else? . . .

Discontented Groups.

"We would not progress in this country if everybody were satisfied with the way things go. But there is a vast difference between the man who is discontented with some things in the existing order and wants to improve them, and those men like Mr. La Follette and his following who are discontented with the existing order of things and attack this Government under which we have lived happily for 135 years."

Dawes also entered upon the agricultural problem, saying he had "listened to some political pee-wits make speeches on that—violent assertion, unsupported by reason, and appeal to prejudice—Wall Street, the interests, the downtrodden conditions of the farmer, of labor, of all of us, crushed under the heel of monopoly."

"Violent affirmation, not argument!" he exclaimed, "then likewise violent affirmation as to the great benefits that we are going to get by putting certain candidates in office. There is significant vagueness as to what they are going to do to solve great problems—but if we will only put certain men in office they say—the principal one being Senator La Follette—then wages will go up, the price of farm products will go up, and business won't be hurt—the millennium is here.

"Now that is not the way to get anywhere. What, as a matter of fact, would happen if men of that kind, backed by those forces, would get into power? Chaos—there wouldn't be any satisfactory wages or any satisfactory prices for farm products, or any satisfactory business in this country. There would be chaos and every man knows it."

BARRETT SIDESTEPS ISSUE OF AGES OF WOMEN

Attorney-General Quotes Statute to Show Election Boards Have Power on Registration Procedure.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 20.—Attorney-General Barrett deliberately "passed the buck" back to the St. Louis Board of Election Commissioners today, on a request for an opinion as to whether the board can require women to state their exact age when registering as voters.

The question of adopting such a rule, said the Attorney-General, was up to the board's judgment and decision. He did suggest that the board might "ameliorate the unhappy plight in which it finds itself" by having the judges and clerks record the approximate age of the women registering, rather than requiring the exact age to be stated.

"Whether this will meet the wishes of women," Barrett stated in a letter to Miss Emma J. Bobb, a member of the board, "passes beyond the narrow field of legal opinion into the broader realms of prediction, or divination, and I am completely baffled. Maybe the female member of the Board of Election Commissioners will know."

Miss Bobb had written to Barrett, stating the board had decided it was necessary to record the ages of all persons registering as a means of identification and safeguarding against fraud. She added that "certain women" had complained that such a requirement would prevent "certain other women" from registering. Barrett was asked if the board legally could carry out such a ruling.

Barrett, in return, quoted a section from the law as follows: "Said Board of Election Commissioners shall make all necessary rules and regulations not inconsistent with this article with reference to the registration of voters and the conduct of elections."

This section, he stated, gave the board the power to insist upon all requirements necessary to the proper administration of the election law. But as to whether the ascertaining of the age of voter was such a requirement, Barrett stated, was a matter for the judgment and decision of the board.

Age Question to Be Decided Finally Today, Edwards Says.

The age question will be decided finally today, said John B. Edwards, chairman of the St. Louis Board of Election Commissioners, when he learned last night of the Attorney-General's Barrett action.

Edwards would not state definitely whether Barrett's elusive reply to the query of Miss Bobb would mean the enforcement of the rule that every voter must give his or her age, which was embodied in the instructions to judges and clerks. He said he would confer today with other board members and then make a final announcement.

Edwards said the exact age of each voter should be registered as a means of identification and a safeguard against fraud. He cited as a theoretical example, that John Smith, 60 years old, could vote for John Smith, 30, if the ages were not recorded.

MOUNTBATTEN'S VISIT ENDS; HE "HAS TO MAKE A LIVING"

Cousin of Wales, Who Accompanied Prince to U. S., Sails to Rejoin British Navy.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—His five weeks' leave from the British navy, in which he is a junior officer, having expired, Lord Louis Mountbatten, cousin of the Prince of Wales, whom he accompanied to America, departed for England today on the Homeric, he informed newspaper men, because he has to make a living.

Lady Mountbatten, attired in mauve, with mink fur, leaned against the center table of the suite and smiled. She was regarded as the richest heiress in England when she married. However, Lord Mountbatten insisted that making a living was his real reason for returning now. Lady Mountbatten will remain another week at the home of J. S. Cosden, where she and Lord Mountbatten have been guests since their arrival.

The Duchess of Westminster, who also sailed on the Homeric said she had enjoyed greatly the polo games and the hospitality of friends.

"I have had a really gorgeous time in America," said Mountbatten. "We found that American hospitality is quite the finest in the world, if you can survive it." He explained that "It doesn't do a man a bit of good when he gets back to his ship if he gets too much publicity."

Some one asked him if he thought the Prince of Wales would come to America next year or make his visits periodical, and he replied:

"I know the Prince is very popular here, but he is a very busy man. It would be difficult to spend three months in America. Next year he has to go to South Africa, and after that there are other places. He has rather to devote his time to the whole empire."

KEPT WEDDINGS SECRET YEARS TO PREVENT HURTING MOTHER

Brothers Installed Wives in Separate Home and Cared for Parent.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—A story of the loyalty of two brothers to their mother, who did not wish them to marry, and how they care for her and kept their marriages secret, became known today. Mrs. Marie Thalhofer, 81, was buried Wednesday. Years ago she told her sons she wanted them always, and if they married it would kill her.

Gustaf and Andrew Thalhofer, the sons, jewelers, never permitted the mother to know when they fell in love and Andrew, by observing his mother's wishes, lost, it seemed then, the girl of his affections. A few years ago Gustaf, the elder, married, but successfully kept the secret from his mother.

The girl who waited for Andrew for years, finally married another. After the death of her husband, however, she and Andrew found each other again and they were married.

The brothers continued to live with their mother and care for her, and installed their wives together in a home they fitted up, but their mother never learned of their marriages.

Salvation Army Officer Here Dies.

Maj. Carl A. Soderman, manager of the Salvation Army store, 4407 Forest Park place, died yesterday following a long illness. Maj. Soderman was connected with the Salvation Army for a number of years, his daughter, Amelia, also being a member of the organization here. Funeral services will be held under the auspices of the Salvation Army from an undertaker's chapel at 5165 Delmar boulevard, at a time to be announced later.

E. B. ROACH PRESIDENT OF MISSOURI PRESS ASSOCIATION

Editor of Carthage Democrat Succeeds Asa Butler; Roads Proposal Indorsed.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 20.—Eugene B. Roach, editor of the Carthage Democrat, today was elected president of the Missouri Press Association, succeeding Asa Butler, publisher of the Capital, at Albany. Other officers chosen: E. L. Sparks, Courier-Post, Hannibal, vice president; Miss Ella Pearl Smith, Clinton Eye, Clinton, recording secretary; Mrs. Carrie Rogers Clark, Republican-Tribune, Trenton, treasurer.

Resolutions were adopted by the editors indorsing Highway Proposal No. 5, which will be voted on in Missouri in November and opposing the proposed workmen's compensation act, which will appear on the November ballot as initiative proposal No. 6.

The convention urged favorable consideration by the voters of the State of the proposed constitutional amendment which would authorize expansion of the corporate limits of the city of St. Louis from time to time if decided upon by the citizens of St. Louis and St. Louis County. The editors commended the movement to acquire the Daniel Boone homestead and preserve it as a national shrine and went on record in favor of the establishment of a Mark Twain memorial park at Florida, Mo.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS FILED BY THE PROHIBITION PARTY

List Contains Two at Large and One from Each Congressional District With Exception of Four.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 20.—The National Prohibitionist Party late yesterday filed a list of the party's presidential electors for Missouri in the office of Secretary of State Charles U. Becker. There are two electors-at-large and one elector from each of the sixteen Congressional districts of the State, with the exception of the tenth, eleventh, twelfth and fourteenth districts, where none were selected.

Herman P. Faris of Clinton, Mo., is the party's candidate for president, and Marie C. Brehm of Long Beach, Cal., is the candidate for vice president.

The filing of the prohibitionist party's list of State electors makes six parties that have filed to contest in Missouri at the election in November, it was said. The six are:

Democratic, Republican, Socialist, Socialist-Labor, Liberal (La Follette) and Prohibitionist. Two other parties, the American and Single Tax Party, have made inquiries as to what they must do in order to comply with Missouri's laws and have their tickets placed upon the State ballots.

INQUIRY INTO DRY AGENT APPOINTMENTS SOUGHT

League Wants Names of Those Who Recommended Officers Convicted of Crime.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—The Senate Committee investigating the Internal Revenue Bureau was asked today by H. W. Marsh, secretary of the National Civil Service Reform League, to begin its investigation of prohibition enforcement by subpenaing the records to show who recommended appointment of any prohibition agent convicted of crime since the enactment of the Volstead law.

"All the Federal prohibition agents whose duty it is to enforce the law are political appointees," Marsh said. "They are chosen, not because of their fitness for the work they have to do, but on account of political influence and political indorsements. The leaders of the dominant political party, namely, United States Senators and national committeemen in the state, practically control these appointments. The jobs are a part of their patronage. Many of the agents to whom jobs have been given under the patronage system are no more fit for their work than a corrupt ward politician is fit to be a Bishop."

MAN SHOT BY CONSTABLE IN ROADHOUSE IN COUNTY

STATE K. K. K. CONFERENCE ON POLITICAL SITUATION

Will Be Held at Kansas City in Connection With "Imperial Klonvokation."

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 20.—Representatives of the various local organizations of the Ku Klux Klan in Missouri will attend the "imperial klonvokation," or national convention of the klan, to be held in Convention Hall at Kansas City on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

About 20 klansmen from Jefferson City plan to attend the "klonvokation" and a State conference on political matters to be held in connection with the "klonvokation," it was learned.

Maj. Heber Nations, brigade adjutant of the Missouri National Guard and Jefferson City publisher, reputed "exalted cyclops" of the Jefferson City klan, will not attend the conference because of illness. Nations, who also is one of the leaders of the Republican wing of the local klan, today asserted the klan as an organization would remain neutral in the Missouri gubernatorial race, particularly since both Arthur W. Nelson, Democratic nominee for Governor, and Sam A. Baker, Republican nominee, have made public utterances against the klan. Both Nelson and Baker were indorsed by the klan in the primary election.

Nelson contented himself with indorsement of the utterances of John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for President, against the klan. Baker indorsed the anti-klan plank adopted in the Republican State platform, which handed a direct slap at the hooded organization by saying: "We oppose the Ku Klux Klan because it denies to American citizens the full exercise of those sacred rights (civil and religious rights guaranteed by the Constitution) and tends to arouse racial and religious hatreds." The plank adopted was a revision of one submitted by Baker to the platform convention.

Repudiated by both gubernatorial candidates, the klansmen in Missouri are left with the prospect of choosing by degree of denunciation, it is said. Due to the severity of the Republican denunciation of the klan and other utterances by Baker against the klan in speeches at St. Louis, a drift of klan support toward Nelson is understood to be in progress.

In advance of the election, klan organizers have been active in central Missouri, and a women's auxiliary to the klan is being formed here. Steps also have been taken to form a junior klan here, comprising sons of klansmen.

Through eyes misty and dim,
And pray that the angels
Of mercy and grace shall deal gently with him.

In sad but loving memory of our dear mother, Jane Begley (nee McCullen). One year ago, Sept. 22, our dearly beloved mother was called away, called at a time when we were old enough to show our appreciation of her motherly love, long toil, advice and care. Do what we may, we can never repay our mother. A mother who stands for more over land, mountains, valleys or shores; only those that have lost can tell the parting of one we loved so well. Tears in silence often flow, though she left us one yearly ago.
Sadly missed by her
SONS, DAUGHTERS AND GRANDCHILDREN.
Mass Monday morning at St. Michael's Church.

SAYS RIVER WILL GET $3,000,000 FROM CONGRESS

Congressman Newton Returned From Inspection of Cairo Channel Predicts Appropriation Next Year.

WANTS $4,000,000 MORE IN 1926-27

Army Engineer and Party Study Plan for Revetments and Retards on Mississippi.

Prediction that Congress will vote for expenditure of $3,000,000 on the Mississippi River, between St. Louis and Cairo, next year, was made yesterday by Congressman Cleveland A. Newton. Newton is confident Army Engineers will recommend that sum to Congress, and is equally confident the Rivers and Harbors Committee, of which he is a member, will vote it into the budget.

"Nothing less will do," Congressman Newton said. "The more money spent on that stretch of the river in the next five years, the less expensive it will be in the end. At least $3,000,000 will be required for the next fiscal year, which begins July 1. Much more than that will not be necessary, as it takes time to organize the working forces and machinery. In 1926-27, $4,000,000 will be needed. If the necessary sums are appropriated in the next five years, the river between here and Cairo will almost take care of itself in subsequent years."

Newton was in the party which made an inspection trip from St. Louis to Cairo on the Government snagboat, H. G. Wright, departing Tuesday afternoon and arriving at Cairo Thursday evening. The trip was chiefly for the benefit of Major-General Harry Taylor, chief of Army Engineers, who will make a report to Congress on his findings and will recommend what he considers the necessary appropriation.

Wants River Narrowed.

Traveling only by day, the members of the party had ample opportunity to find out what is wrong with the river and what should be done to right it. In brief, Newton reported, the river should be straightened and narrowed, which would make it deeper and provide a navigable channel the year 'round. The money required is for building revetments and retards, so as to save the banks from collapsing, and to dredge the channel.

These improvements are provided for in a bill before Congress and supported by Newton and his so-called "river bloc." The bill provides for completion, in five years, of a channel to a depth of eight feet and a minimum width of 300 feet, with additional width around bends to afford passage for long tows of barges.

The St. Louis-to-Memphis stretch of the Mississippi is generally regarded as the main barrier to expansion of river commerce. For about four-fifths of the stetch, the channel conforms to a width of 300 feet and an eight-foot depth, but the remainder is deplorable, Newton said. Sand bars are numerous, and the channel measures less than four feet in places.

By way of emphasizing the conditions, the snagboat grounded for three hours on a sandbar near Cairo, although it required only 4½ feet for passage. Two days before the channel had been eight feet deep. A towboat and string of barges coming up the river, noticed a bar forming and anchored below it. A smaller towboat attempted to get past and grounded. The snagboat could have passed downstream successfully, but in attempting to aid the stranded towboat, it also grounded.

Taylor Seemed Impressed.

"We'll fiv that!" Gen. Taylor exclaimed. His remark is being repeated as indicative of better days for the Mississippi. He seemed impressed throughout the trip by what he saw. The H. G. Wright pulled three snags from the river while he watched. He paid special attention to levee workers, who are finding it difficult to prevent the river from carrying away the banks and depositing the silt in the channel.

For the present fiscal year, only $500,000 was appropriated for this part of the river. River advocates had asked for at least $1,000,000.

"If an eight-foot channel is completed in the next five years, it will be a great boon to the Mississippi and Missouri valleys," Newton said. "Of course, a 12 or 15-foot channel would be even better, but that is for the future. A deeper channel will bring all sorts of commerce and will be its own best argument.

"As things are today, regular transportation service on the Mississippi is impossible, because the track is not complete. The shippers who are begging for barges today would be multiplied if we had an all-around, adequate service.

"The idleness of the Goltra fleet has been an awful blow to those interested in the river's advancement. We have not been able to provide equipment to transport lumber, bricks and other building materials. Shippers are complaining to me, as a Congressman, over the lack of barges. And the lack of barges is interwoven with the lack of a navigable channel in spots."

Believes Trip Was Effective.

James E. Smith, president of the Mississippi Valley Association, who also was in the inspection party, thinks it will have a beneficial effect upon Gen. Taylor and his staff. Gen. Taylor, a native of New Hampshire, himself suggested the trip. His department has jurisdiction over all coast and lake harbors, and all inland navigable rivers, and is charged with their improvement, and maintenance.

"The pitiful, meager appropriations in the past for improvement of the Mississippi have, I dare say, been wasted 50 per cent," Smith said. "It was as though the Government started to build a wall and ran out of funds after building the middle of it. I think a change of policy is coming."

Ceremony at Bridegroom's Home While Crowd Waits at Rectory.

SALEM, Mass., Sept. 20.—William Sidney Felton, Harvard graduate and world war aviator, was married at noon today at the home of his parents, to Miss Tosia Szychoviez, 18-year-old shoe worker.

The wedding was to have been at the rectory of the Second Unitarian Church, but when a large crowd had assembled there and a battery of cameras had been trained on the entrance, the parents of the bridegroom called at the rectory for the Rev. Alfred Manchester, and drove him to their home to perform the ceremony.

The announcement of the engagement several days ago created much interest because of the prominence of the Felton family. The bridegroom, who is 30 years old, graduated at Harvard in the class of 1915 and three years later at the Harvard law school. He practices law in Boston. Miss Szcychoviez has been employed in a shoe factory at Peabody.

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 20.—The Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad will be sold at public auction on Oct. 29, according to an announcement here today by Charles E. Herrington, special master, to conduct the sale, named by Judge J. Foster Symes yesterday. The minimum bid to be received, under the direction of the Court, will be $17,935,700.

CEMENT BONDS TO BE RETIRED

Missouri Portland Co. Calls $491,000 Issue of 6½s.

Announcement was made yesterday of the action of the board of directors of the Missouri Portland Cement Co. last Tuesday, calling in their six and a half per cent serial bonds, maturing in 1929, 1930, 1931 and 1932. These bonds are for $491,000, and will be taken up, as of Jan. 1, 1925, at 195 and interest.

H. L. Block president of the corporation, said the board of directors justified the action because of cheap money rates and satisfactory business conditions. This also explained, in his opinion, the rise in Missouri Portland stock, which a year ago, was quoted around $85 and last week was bid at $133. The bonded indebtedness of the company Sept. 1, was $1,777,500.

$19,500 IN LIQUOR FINES ON EAST SIDE

Fifty-One St. Clair County Residents Plead Guilty of Violating Dry Laws.

Fifty-one St. Clair county saloon and roadhouse proprietors pleaded guilty to charges of violating the national prohibition act yesterday before Federal Judge English in East St. Louis, and fines totaling $19,500 were assessed The fines against each individual ranged from $100 to $1025.

Since Judge English instituted a policy about three weeks ago of permitting persons to escape with fines on their pleas of guilty to liquor charges to clear the docket of the court about 150 persons have appeared before him, and approximately $50,000 in fines has been levied against them.

A majority of the persons who have pleaded to liquor charges were arrested as a result of the liquor cleanup of St. Clair County last spring by the Ku Klux Klan. Others who chose to stand trial on similar charges have in most cases been convicted and given lengthy jail sentences and heavy fines by Federal Judge Lindley of Danville, who has presided at the last two terms of court in the district.

The heavist fine yesterday was assessed against Joe Nochta, Caseyville roadhouse proprietor, who pleaded guilty to two different liquor charges and was fined $1025. His wife, Anna, was fined $425 on one charge. With the Nochtas when they pleaded were their two small daughters, one two and the other four years old. They say they are unable to pay the fine and will have to go to jail in lieu of the payment.

John M. Sullivan Sr., overseer of the poor in East St. Louis and formerly Chief of Police in East St. Louis, was fined $500 on his plea of guilty to liquor charges. His son, John Jr., was fined $300 on a similar plea.

Others who pleaded guilty yesterday and the amounts of the fines assessed against them were: George Penn, $300; Harry Jochem, $300; John J. Collins, $300; Louis Remler, $300; Kent Anderson, $425; Charles Schreiber, $225; John W. DETECTIVE KILLED IN AUTO SPEEDING FOR BANK ROBBERS

By the Associated Press.

BRISTOW, Ok., Sept. 20.—W. H. Johnson, Bristow city detective, was instantly killed and William Cook, a Deputy Sheriff, and E. L. McElvain, a Constable, were seriously injured when their automobile overturned one mile north of here today.

They were speeding to Kellyville to intercept three men who robbed the Kellyville bank of $1000 shortly after noon.

$500 SUIT OVER $24 CHECK

Patron Says First National Bank Refused to Honor Paper.

A suit for $5000 damages was filed yesterday by William Decker against the First National Bank of St. Louis, based on the alleged refusal of the bank to honor his check for $24.11. Decker states that he cashed the check at the Suttner Drug Co. in University City on May 5 last and was later notified by the proprietor that the defendant bank, on which the check was drawn, had reported that Decker had no account there, although, according to the petition, he had $524.11 deposited to his account.

Decker says that he was humiliated and damaged by the incident because he was reprimanded in the presence of friends and acquaintances by the druggist, who thought he had been defrauded.

FEWER SUITS FOR TERM

Actions Filed Show Decrease of 246 From Last Year.

Statistics furnished yesterday by Circuit Clerk Schmoll show that 246 fewer suits were filed for the October term in Circuit Court this year than during the corresponding period of last year. Yesterday was the last day for filing suits for that term. The decrease was explained by the unprecedented filing for the April and June terms. This year 2772 suits were filed for the coming term.

William F. Hein, assistant chief deputy, estimated that of the number of new suits about 35 per cent were divorce petitions, the bulk of the remainder being damage suits. The October term begins Oct. 6.

BANK EMPLOYES FAIL TO IDENTIFY SUSPECTS

Five Men Held In Wellston Case Also Detained for Burglary Inquiry.

Supposed connection between two episodes of crime on Friday was broken by the failure yesterday of bank employes who were held up in the chief episode to identify four prisoners held in the double police inquiry.

The two crimes were the robbery of the Wellston Trust Co. Friday morning of slightly more than $51,000 and a burglary Friday night at the H. A. Woerman pickle factory, 827 South Eleventh street. The supposed connection came through this chain of circumstances:

Five men (the same number as the bank robbers) were seen transferring from a Ford coupe to a Studebaker touring car in the county, and the Studebaker was trailed to 1112½ Anna avenue, Wellston, where two of the passengers entered. The same Studebaker and a Ford coupe were found abandoned near the pickle factory after the burglary. Later detectives arrested three men arriving at the Anna avenue house in a taxicab.

The men were Vincent Goedde, 21 years old, of the Anna avenue address, to whom the Studebaker license had been issued; Percy Fitzgerald, 30, of the same address, and Dewey Goebel, 28, of the Sprague Hotel, Taylor avenue and West Belle place. The fourth prisoner said he was Donovan Green, 25, of 4229 Norfolk avenue. The detectives had arrested him previously, in the alley behind the Anna avenue dwelling.

Yesterday afternoon three men and two women connected with the Wellston Trust Co. looked at the four prisoners at Police Headquarters. The prisoners, they said, did not resemble the robbers. When the 20-hour suspect period for holding the men in the bank investigation expired last night another 20-hour period for holding them in the burglary inquiry started.

AFTER THE FIRST 50,000

How will your second 50,000 miles, as well as your first, compare with a Packard Six in motoring comfort and quality?

Packard Six repair expenses have hardly started at the point where ordinary cars are scarcely worth repairing.

The Packard man can get Packard motoring out of his original purchase for 5, 7,—yes, for 10 years or more.

In two or three years, the Packard owner has no need to think about a new car, while you'll be worrying about trade-in values.

Who has the most economical buy, you or he?

Let us give you the answer.

Many prefer to take advantage of Packard's extremely liberal time-payment plan to enjoy immediately the advantages of a Packard Six or Packard Eight—purchasing out of income instead of capital, just as practically all other necessities are now bought.

THE TOURIST CAMP.

A MASS of mingled autos, tents, camp stools and humanity—this is the spot in the confines of Forest Park that marks the tourist camp.

Cars from Connecticut, Indiana, Illinois, Wyoming, Louisiana and California are parked in a row. Opposite are cars from Missouri, Arkansas, Arizona and Alabama. Even the licenses are alliterative.

Buzzes of conversation rise from groups of men, clustered under a tree, smoking, or grouped around a careful tourist who worms his way under his car to inspect his brakes, his transmission and the other wonders beneath the car.

"The roads from Kansas City are awful!"

"Wait till you hit Illinois—you'll think you were in heaven."

"Let's see—it's concrete out through St. Charles, then on to near O'Fallon, you detour there. Then it's gravel to Fulton and shell-shocked on to Columbia."

The women are cleaning up after supper. Supper ranges from sandwiches and milk to a very complicated repast, cooked on a magic stove out of Grimm's Fairy Tales. The happy owner takes out a small, flat box. He opens the lid, mutters a cabalistic word that sounds suspiciously like "Damn," and the whole box unfolds into a complete kerosene stove.

The tourist camp is really a magic world. Small bundles unwrap into immense tents, while the great package one car carries is nothing in the world but a smaller shelter. A handful of dishes sets a meal for a whole brood. Seat cushions unfold into water buckets, boxes on running boards turn out to be well-stocked larders, back-rests become beds.

There is a variety about sleeping arrangements that is as complete as it is surprising. Here is a coupe whose back cushions come out, making the whole body into a bed. Here is a tent that needs no poles, the auto serving as a support. Here are two boys with an old army pup tent, into which they crawl with a single blanket. Here is a miraculous affair that houses an army of children. Some cramp themselves into rear seats, others dump their cushions on the ground and make themselves uncomfortable there.

One time—the watchman still tells about it—a sedan of a certain make of which 10,000,000 have been made (and 20,000,000 jokes), drove in shortly after dark, with curtains drawn. A youth jumped out with a blanket and a seat cushion and fell asleep on the ground. But in the morning not less than four grown persons—father, mother and two sisters—unfolded themselves from the car, and prepared breakfast.

"There wasn't room for all of them and their baggage to travel, let alone sleep," the watchman insists.

All the world travels on wheels, nowadays, and the meeting place is the tourist camp. Thither they all gravitate, as to the grave—the rich and the poor, the limousine and the runabout, and all fare alike, according to their deserts.

COSMOPOLIS.

THE flavor of the world still clings to St. Louis, often called the least new of the cities of the New World. New Orleans is yet, it is true, a city of Old France, tinged with America, and transplanted to a seat in a new country; but to St. Louis, with its hybrid ancestry, the best of all the wide world still comes.

What other city, save New York, can boast of a "Frenchtown," a German city, a "Little Italy"—nay, two of them—a Syrian center, a "Hop Alley," streets where the semi-familiar Greek signs vie with cigarette ads, and a dozen other settlements that still cling to their old dress and manners? St. Louis, French settlement, Spanish colony, German haven, is veritably a Cosmopolis today.

Do you wish to visit Italy? There are a dozen spots where it can be done, without leaving the downtown section, if you wish. Groceries abound where the long Italian loaves, hundreds of shapes of sphagetti, macaroni, vermicelli and other "paste," olive oil of unimpeachable lineage, cheese of strange shapes and stranger odors, and, of course, strings of garlic, are to be purchased.

There are Italian restaurants, where the table d'hote is strange to Western eyes and palates. There are minestrone and other soups of a delicacy and flavor hitherto unknown, steaming dishes of "pasta," with sauces that are delicious, boiled meats, cheese and execrable coffee, in the true Italian manner. But no sweets.

To those who make acquaintance with the members of the colony, there are new ventures. There are christenings, with a day and a night of festivities, where the friends and acquaintances of the parents make merry with song and dance. Songs from the homeland, sung to the accompaniment of accordion and guitar, gay dances to the same music.

Marriage is a serious business among our Italian neighbors. In some cases the bridegroom is a member of the bride's family for a year or two before the wedding takes place. He builds his home and furnishes it, and as evidence of his ability and good faith, presents his father-in-law-elect with the receipts of payment for all these.

Meanwhile, the bride is no less busy. Long before the day she met the groom she has been preparing. Chests of linen, much of it prepared in the old home, with dozens of sheets, acres of towels, tablecloths by the score and napkins by the dozens of scores are made ready. Lingerie for a lifetime is prepared. House dresses are made in quantities that will outlast the house. Negligees, dresses, everything a girl could want, in a profusion that seems limitless, are made ready for the day of display, 10 days before the wedding.

On this day a reception is held. Bride and groom display their preparations. The groom shows his wealth, his savings and his home. The clothes of the groom, less numerous, but in complete accord with the serious step he contemplates, are shown along with the trousseau of the bride.

And then, the church wedding. A church wedding, of course, with bridesmaids and everything. Following this, a great reception, with dinner for hundreds, and dancing.

But if you are preparing for a visit to Mexico, you can get plenty of color here. Mexican customs are not so different from ours, but Mexican dishes are—different from our conception of them, so, in place of chile con carne, prepare a taste for enchiladas, tacas, aguacates, beans in a million guises and eggs in as varied a repertoire. All this can be had in St. Louis, without the expenditure of time and money necessary for the trip.

There has been no good French restaurant since Pierre closed his place on South Seventh. Pierre's chef d'ouvre was "Lievre a la Pierre!" It is to be suspected that the lievre was nothing more than common rabbit. Pierre kept it until it was "high." It took a strong constitution to try it, but once tasted, the odors and remembrances of age vanished. Pierre used to say: "Hien, it not so bad as limburger, eh?"

The Danish restaurant on Jefferson avenue is closed, too, but the memory of its "Danske Smore-brod" is still with those who tried its hospitality.

Do you like "Ushkbob"? If so, there is still a place on South Eighth street where it can be obtained. The spelling is not guaranteed, but the dish is. It is Armenian and consists in bits of lamb chops spitted on a skewer and roasted or fried over a hot fire. Try it with Armenian coffee, being careful not to stir the latter. No cream or sugar, of course. It is as good as Italian coffee is vile.

Of course, not all Cosmopolis is eating, but the restaurants are the index of the stability of a nation. Who, of the older generation, can ever forget "Schmierkaese Garden"? Who would want to? German cooking is as closely grained in St. Louis as the Germans themselves.

The Greek restaurant is as well known as any, but most Greek restaurant serve ham and eggs and roast beef only. Still, there are Greek groceries where all sorts of delicacies can be obtained. Small lentils from the archipelago, wrinkled olives, goats'-milk cheese and—supreme—dried octopus. They say that this latter is delicious, soaked for a few days and then cooked in a sauce of olive oil, tomatoes, onions and seasoning. They say so.

Chinese dishes are part of our national menu. There are some that are still used in Chinese families which are not yet on the menu. Mostly, these include mushrooms and bamboo sprouts with soya bean sauce and peanut oil.

So if you wish to travel try a few journeys in St. Louis. "See St. Louis first."

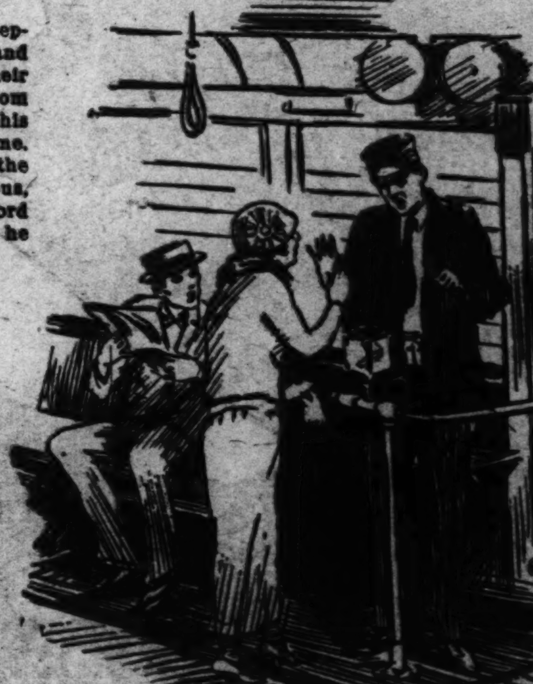
THE CONDUCTOR.

"PRETTY empty this morning," remarked the Inquisitive Passenger, as he boarded the Delmar car at the loop. He paid his fare and took a Broadway transfer.

"They'll be along in a minute. We meet the Creve Coeur car," answered the conductor, morosely.

And come they did, hordes of workingmen, clean shaven and washed, but with the rim of dirt beneath the cuticle that betrays the mechanic; uncouth laborers; portly darkies of the other sex, with bundles that might be larger when they went home. The car filled rapidly.

At the first transfer point came a lady. She KNEW she had a transfer. The conductor left her looking for it while he flagged the crossing. When he came back she was inside.



"I must have lost it, but it's all right, I had one," she explained.

And she called him a brute and took his number when he made her pay her fare.

"I'll give you my name, if you want a witness," volunteered the Inquisitive Passenger.

"Never mind," said the conductor. "She does that every day. She got away with it the first time."

Soon afterward the inevitable forgetful passenger asked for a transfer just before getting off.

"Don't some of them put it over on you that way?" asked the I. P.

Business Man by Day, Lunatic at Night

Strange life of a Philadelphian whose estate is in charge of a guardian but who is paroled from the asylum each morning to manage his newspaper—James E. Macusker lays his predicament to a tangle of political and personal enmities, domestic troubles and commitment without a jury's finding—He is making money, but the hospital gates swing shut upon him at 8 p. m.—He declares he was "framed" but doctors say, "delusions"—Averse to having jury pass on his case now, for fear they would decide he was "cured of insanity" :: :: ::

James E. Macusker, inmate of an asylum at night, starting for his office in the morning.

FROM Philadelphia comes a true story which is as strange, in its way, as any sensational fiction. Indeed, were this almost incredible situation to be used by a novelist or playwright, most persons would condemn it as exceeding the bounds of possibility. Yet the weird plight of the man involved in it has continued for more than a year.

Every morning at 8 o'clock the gates of the Friends' Hospital at Frankford, near Philadelphia, swing open and allow a perfectly sane man to go forth to his office, where he publishes a very successful newspaper, the Journal of Commerce.

Every evening at 8 o'clock the gates of the asylum swing shut upon the same man—but this time he is insane, so adjudged by court order, and insane he remains in official status until the next morning. Then, once more, the gates swing open and the man takes his place in the business world as one in his right mind.

The individual who finds the sun rising upon his sanity each day, and setting upon his madness, is James E. Macusker, until recently a prosperous and well-known business man of Philadelphia. Today he has not a cent of his own. His personal fortune of $60,000, his house, even his watch, ring and scarf pin, have been taken from him and are in charge of a guardian.

All of Macusker's affairs are managed for him by his guardian, excepting the newspaper. The latter property he is permitted to edit and publish himself, with full control, for a reason which will be explained later.

One amazing detail presented by Macusker's incarceration is that his guardian consults him frequently about the administration of his estate and follows his advice, it is said, with regard to all important matters.

By what chain of circumstances has this Philadelphian come to be regarded as insane at night, but sufficiently sane by day to leave his place of confinement unattended and to carry on an exacting business?

According to Macusker's own explanation, the events responsible for his unhappy position involved a tangle of political and personal enmities, domestic troubles and a sanity trial and commitment without the formality of a jury's finding.

Most of his adversities, says Macusker, were brought upon him by an attorney and politician of Philadelphia. Macusker carried on a campaign against this attorney's political ambitions in the columns of his Journal of Commerce. When the attorney sought to be nominated for a high State office, Macusker stumped Pennsylvania against him. He even announced that he would write a biography of the candidate.

It was shortly after this announcement, according to Macusker's version of the strange affair, that he was adjudged insane. And he claims that the revengeful attorney and office seeker started the machinery which finally deposited him in the Friends' Hospital.

The incident which actually brought about Macusker's commitment was the court hearing of a charge of nonsupport, brought by Mrs. Macusker. The couple had parted some time previously, but the husband had, according to his own statement, sent money to the wife regularly.

The case was heard in the Municipal Court on Feb. 27, 1923. The testimony was of the usual sort—the wife told of her husband's failure to provide, and the latter in turn aired his own grievances. No testimony as to Macusker's mental condition appears on the record, but the Court is said to have commented:

"This man ought to be committed to the Philadelphia Hospital for a mental examination."

The outcome of the hearing was that, with the consent of his lawyer, Macusker was sent to the psycopathic ward for 30 days of observation. At the end of that time he was pronounced insane. Macusker's lawyer tried hard to save his client, but lost. On May 22, 1923, an order was signed in the Court of Common Pleas, as follows:

"Upon a hearing in accordance with the act of May 28, 1907, P. L. 292, the Court is satisfied and so decrees that the said James E. Macusker is not able, owing to insanity and weakness of mind, to take care of his property as averred in the petition filed in the proceeding, and the Court appoints the Commenwealth Title Insurance and Trust Co. guardian of the estate."

In accordance wtih this order, the control of all Macusker's property was taken over by the trust company, and an employe of the company tried to conduct the Journal of Commerce. But bills began to accumulate, and there came a time when the paper was not published for a month.

Then a brother and a sister of Macusker applied for a writ of habeas corpus. When the case came up again, doctors testified that the patient's statements as to his having been "framed" were delusions. An out-of-town alienist who had been called in by the Court agreed with them, and the writ was dismissed. But the Court authorized the Friends' Hospital to parole Macusker between the hours of 8 a. m. and 8 p. m.

When the daily parole began, Macusker at once started going to the office of the Journal of Commerce. He took up the work where the agent of the guardian had failed. He solicited advertising, wrote editorials, gathered news. He bought paper, arranged for the printing and did everything else necessary to put the business on its feet again.

Every morning at 8 o'clock he left the Friends' Hospital for his desk. Every evening at 8 o'clock found him back again in confinement. His days of toil began to show results, and in a comparatively short time the paper was making a profit again.

Not only this, but the guardian company began to consult with

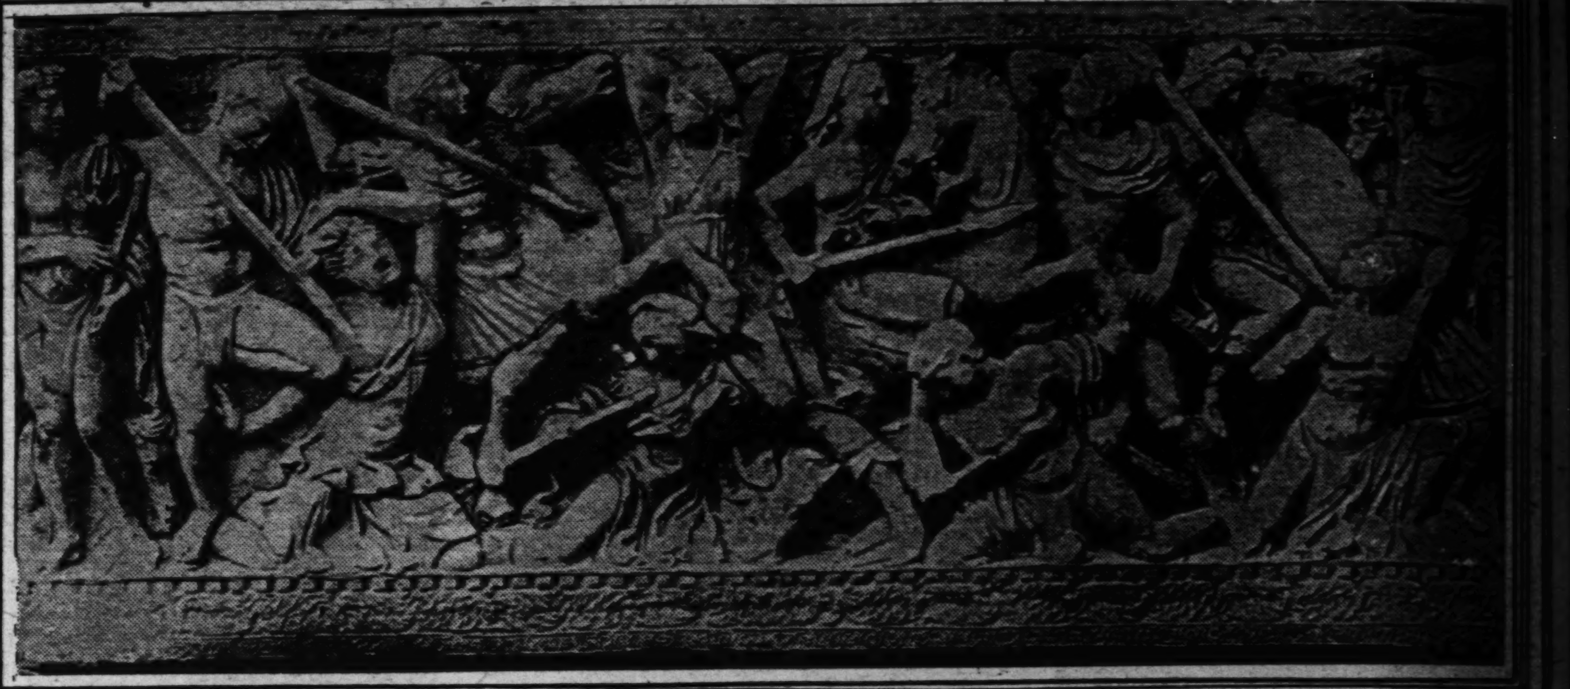
At 8 o'clock in the evening, Macusker returns to the hospital where he is confined until the next morning.

For half of each 24 hours, Macusker is paroled from the hospital to which he was committed by court order. Here he is shown at his desk in office of the newspaper which he is allowed to manage and which under his control is making money. —The paper and all his other property are held by a guardian.

New Gem of Ancient Art Just Found



Battle of Greeks and Amazons, in bas-relief on a magnificent marble sarcophagus discovered recently at Tell Barak. near ancient Caesarea, Palestine.

RECENT excavations in Palestine illuminate the tales of the Amazons, women who went forth to war. The Amazons fought not other Amazons, man being the enemy. On one side was the embattled female, on the other the embattled male. According to the mythologic records, and to some records regarded as at least semi-historic, great and gory were the clashes. Trained for their work, as male soldiers have been trained since the beginning of warfare, the women knew their business; and they fought with both ferocity and skill.

Excavators for the British School of Archeology have discovered near the ancient city of Caesarea a magnificent marble sarcophagus, which has been placed in the museum at Jerusalem. On one side of the sarcophagus, in bas-relief excellently preserved, is a vivid representation of a battle between the Amazons and the Greeks. Similar scenes are sculptured on each end, Amazons being seen in deadly conflict, the Grecian male soldiers fighting as fiercely as if they were opposing soldiers of their own sex. It was merely a matter of self-preservation, sentiment and gallantry being swept aside.

The battle scene of Greeks and Amazons on the side of the sarcophagus is held to surpass in artistic quality anything hitherto found in Palestine. This sarcophagus bears a general resemblance to the one commonly called the Tomb of Alexander the Great, now in the museum at Constantinople.

Amazons appear frequently in the early Greek legends. These accounts of the female warriors differ according to time and manner of treatment, but virtually all the myths and the more or less historical records reveal the Amazons as formidable foes. In some tales they were a race of warlike women who permitted no men to live amongst them, or they held in servitude enough men to keep the Amazonian race from dying out. Apparently the only excuse for being, on the part of the men, was the business of becoming fathers to future Amazons. Quite naturally, a considerable number of male children resulted, but these, it is said by some writers, were destroyed in infancy. The female infants were brought up, not exactly tenderly, but carefully, the object being to train them for soldiering. When the girls grew to womanhood, instead of falling in love, or permitting themselves to be wooed and wed, they buckled on the armor prepared for them and went forth to war.

Earliest accounts of Amazons place them in the northeast portion of Asia Minor; later records locate them farther northward and westward, in Scythia and the Caucasus; and still later they are heard of in Libya, at what then was regarded as the edge of the world, the southern edge. Here they were said to have founded a number of cities, Ephesus for one; and they are said to have established the temple of Artemis, on the coast of Asia Minor, where they took refuge after being defeated by Hercules. The Amazons figure largely in much of the early Greek art, thus showing how vividly those artists were impressed by the mythical tales. For that matter, it is of authentic historical record that battalions of women soldiers fought in many of the wars of ancient Greece, Scythia, Syria and other countries.

Guy Cadogan Rothery, one of the most recent writers on the Amazons, both as mythical and historical soldiers, points out how, apparently, the legendary tales of female warriors influenced later and actual peoples:

"History and art tell us that the women of Germania and Gaul fought against the Romans; and such incidents repeat themselves again and again. In 1792 the French Revolution brought forth an Amazonian brigade, and it is not without interest to note in passing that a worthy French historian had claimed years before that the Franks were direct descendants of the Sarmatian Amazons. The eighteenth-century brigade comprised the gross dames de la Halle and the women of the Faubourg St. Antoine, who, their blood aflame with the lust of killing, decked themselves out, with some dim thought of classic times (that heroic age which fired the thought of a whole revolutionary generation), in short petticoats, red Phrygian caps and carried most businesslike pikes.

"Plutarch tells us of the valiant women of Argos who defended their city against the Spartans so well that they were allowed to dedicate a statue to Mars, and the women thenceforth were permitted to wear false beards on their nuptial day."

Those ancient Amazons apparently knew nothing of beauty parlors. Even "bobber" shops were not encountered on their shopping tours. Had they but bobbed their hair, many of them might have escaped death at the hands of their male adversaries. Some of the old sculptures and paintings show Greek soldiers in hand-to-hand conflict with Amazons, seizing the ferocious females by their long hair and thus gaining a distinct advantage. A woman with flowing locks became, other things being equalized, comparatively easy prey for a Greek gentleman of valor, to whom the pleasant thought that "the glory of woman is her long hair" meant, at the immediate moment, merely the glory of getting a tanglehold in those tresses and doing the rest with battleax, mace, broadsword or dagger. And "the rest" means that he bobbed the Amazon's head instead of her hair.

Recent discovery in Palestine of splendid bas-reliefs in marble show professional women soldiers in deadly conflict, hand to hand, with Greek fighting men—The Amazon in myth and in history—From prehistoric times to the recent Russian "Battalion of Death," female warriors have persisted, and this relic of antiquity is accounted the finest artistic representation of their heroic qualities :: :: ::

But such a misadventure as losing an Amazonian head here and there for lack of precautionary bobbing did not deter the general movement of the lady warriors. "Their intrepidity was not abated by reverses," according to Pausanius, who appears to have been astonished at the stubbornness with which the Amazons, after various defeats, rallied again to measure their strength with the Greeks when they met before the walls of Troy. The Amazons, we learn, made a fierce attack on the Phrygians, who implored Priam, King of Troy, to come to their assistance. "Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of the party," the party being the male Phrygians who were being overwhelmed by unladylike ladies in armor. Priam, long after, told Helen about the incident:

In Phrygia once were gallant armies known
In ancient times, when Otreus filled the throne,
When godlike Mygden led the troops of horse,
And I, to join them, raised the Trojan forces
Against the manlike Amazons we stood,
And Sangar's stream ran purple with their blood.

But not always did the natural human feeling hide behind mail (and male) armor, suppressed; now and then we have a glorious instance of a [illegible] hero to whom an Amazon remained, after all, a woman. There was Penthesilea, the Amazonian Queen, who led her ladies in armor against the Greeks. Achilles threw a dart, piercing her breast. Then he ran his lance through her body. Bending over to despoil her of her armor, he was overcome by the splendid beauty of the dying Amazon, raised her gently in his arms, gazed upon her face, and blamed himself for having dealt the fatal blow to a creature so peerless.

In the poem called the "Aethiopia," by Arctinus of Miletus, fragments of which have come down to us from the eighth century before Christ, we find an excellent description of this Amazonian Queen as she went forth to battle on that fatal morning:

When Aurora, rosy-ankled, smiled,
Pentheselia left her couch, and clothed
Her limbs in armor sheen, the gift of Mars.
First to her snowy legs she fitted them
The golden greaves, and on her tender breast
Bound the strong plate of variegated mail.
Then from her shoulder the huge sword she slung
Proudly, its sheath all exquisitely wrought
With ivory and silver. Next she took
Her crescent buckler, like the horned moon,
When, gleaming o'er the waves, she climbs the sky
With half-replenished lamp. Her helmet too,
Its nodding crest beropt with gold, she placed Upon her head. In this array she shone
Refulgent, as the forky fires that Jove
Hurls to the earth, the red vaunt-couriers
Of the big raindrops, and the roaring winds.
In her left hand, behind the shield, she bore
Two javelins, snatched in haste, and in her right
An ax with double edge, which Discord gave
To the high maiden's great defense in war.

That's the poetry of it. In plain prose, the average Amazon of history is very far below the par of Queen Penthelesia, in beauty and grace. For instance, Sir Richard Burton saw, inspected and described an army of Amazonians in Dahomey, some 60 years ago. The King of that African realm depended on his female defenders, for they knew how to fight, and if the enemy, mere man, once got a good look at them, a closeup, before the battle started, there wasn't any battle. Instead, there was a flight and a pursuit, the assumed sterner sex outdistancing the Amazonians. Such was the ferocious aspect of the African war ladies that no mortal male soldier dared to stand before them if he had a chance to flee.

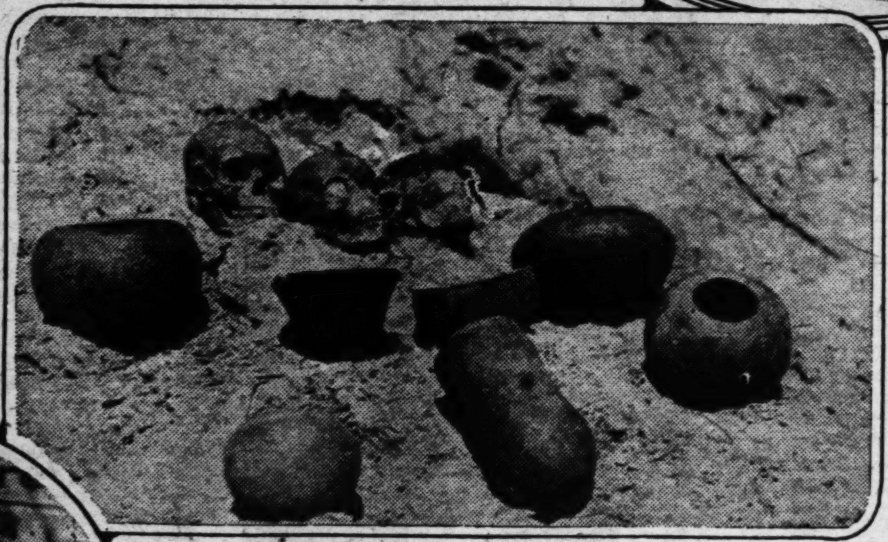
The Discovery of Some New Americans

Government experts, excavating a big shell mound in Florida, find relics of two tribes hitherto unknown—Skeletal remains of one group have the largest jawbones of any American Indians, while their beautiful pottery indicates a high degree of culture—The other tribe were of smaller stature and more primitive arts—Besides uncovering the remains of 1000 Indians, expedition digs up weapons of early Spanish explorers in the same vicinity :: :: :: :: :: ::

One of the newly discovered prehistoric tribes had the largest jaw bones of any American Indians. Here is one specimen, with the skull to which it belonged.



In the big shell mound on Weedon's Island, Florida, pottery has been uncovered which, according to Government experts, is the finest ever found in America.

Dr. J. Walter Fewkes, chief of the Bureau of American Ethnology, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, studies one of the prehistoric skulls recently found in Florida.

RELICS of Indians, dead and buried for probably 1000 years when Columbus discovered America, have been found by Government scientists in Florida. The skeletal remains are of tribes hitherto unknown. With the bones were unearthed numerous specimens of pottery, the finest ever found in America.

The full extent of the addition which will thus be made to our knowledge of the earliest Americans can only be measured when the scientists have completed their intensive study of the relics. But already the discovery looms up as one of the first importance.

The pre-Columbian history of America is still largely a mystery. Whence the first human inhabitants came, by what route and at what time, are matters for conjecture. And it appears that the new find will complicate matters to the extent, at least, of opposing one theory now generally held by ethnologists.

The remarkable discovery by experts from the Smithsonian Institution and the National Museum at Washington, D. C., was made on Weedon's Island, six miles south of St. Petersburg, near the shore of Tampa Bay. Surface finds of Indian relics had indicated interesting possibilities in the neighborhood. And old Spanish chronicles disclosed that the expedition of Hernando De Soto had once camped in the vicinity.

Finally the Government experts began to excavate the largest shell mound on the island—a mound 10 feet high and 150 feet in diameter. The archeological treasures which have been laid bare as the work progressed exceed all their expectations.

The mound disclosed three separate levels, representing as many different periods of time. Similarly, the skeletal remains of 1000 persons uncovered there belonged to three distinct tribes of redskins who inhabited Florida from 500 to 1000 years ago, it is believed, and who in turn used the same spot for a burial place.

Dr. M. W. Stirling of the National Museum, in charge of the excavations on Weedon's Island, is authority for the statement that an offshoot tribe of the Calosa Indians from the West Indies were the last redskins to live in Florida prior to the coming of the white men. But before their day two prehistoric tribes had dwelt at Tampa Bay. It is the relics of these two tribes, whose existence has been disclosed for the first time to the present generation, which most interest the experts.

Skeletal remains in the ancient burial place show two well-defined types of red men. One consists of small-boned Indians with pointed chins, who made very primitive pottery, chiefly crude pots and kettles used in cooking. This medium stature tribe was of very low culture. The other prehistoric Tampa Bay Indians had large bones, with round, thick skulls and the largest jaw bones known among any American natives. These larger redskins were highly cultured, compared with other Indians. Their pottery is of all shapes, sizes and patterns, in many cases with extraordinary designs.

Some of the pottery specimens are hand-painted in red, black and yellow colors. Others bear modeled decorations, and in some instances bas-reliefs of human faces. A primitive method of stenciling evidently was employed in connection with many of the designs. Study of the pottery, along with other data, has convinced the Government ethnologists that the oldest relics date back to the year 925 A. D.

The taller tribe practiced a system of secondary burial, say the Government experts. They used mortuary temples where the bodies were exposed for several months after death. Then the bones would be collected, would figure in certain tribal ceremonies and be buried. In some of the graves charred bones have been found.

One of these tribes, it has been claimed, was a branch of the Carib Indians. But the Caribs were cannibals, and there are no indications of cannibalistic tendencies among any of the North American tribes.

The other group of prehistoric redskins—those with smaller bones—interred their dead soon after demise. The skeletons which have been uncovered all rest in the same position. The knees of the dead warrior or squaw are drawn up under the chin, the left hand rests against the forehead as though in permanent salute.

Each body faces the west—land of the setting sun. This direction evidently is connected with some religious belief of the tribe. The remains of the most important member of each tribe are found at or near the middle of the mound. The farther a grave is from the middle, the lower was the tribal position of the deceased.

Somewhat like the custom of the Chinese in burying valuable keepsakes with their dead these prehistoric Indians of Florida seem always to have placed valuable pottery in their graves. As the scientists from Washington uncovered the skeletons, they found a piece of pottery placed in hat fashion directly above the head of each dead Indian. All these pieces of pottery are pierced with small holes, presumably for the use of the spirit in escaping from the body.

Among the interesting relics of a race which long since vanished from Weedon's Island is a banner stone, or "milling stone." It is the first specimen of its kind ever found on the American continent and made of meteoric rock that is foreign to Florida. Shaped something like a two-bladed ax, 4 inches thick and 16 inches in diameter, the stone is pierced by a tapering hole which was drilled so skillfully that its gradations are as minute as one-one-thousandth of an inch.

The Government experts say that the drilling of this hole, unquestionably, was accomplished by some process lost to modern science. Present-day lapidaries cannot explain how aborigines did such perfect and delicate work without steel tools. The "milling stone" was used to grind meal, one stone being rolled back and forth over another stone, with the grain in between them.

For a long time the theory of leading ethnologists has been that the Northern tribes of American Indians were the earlier, and that groups gradually worked their way southward, in nomadic migrations, and thus founded new tribes which in the course of time and under the influence of a different environment, acquired distinct characteristics.

According to one hypothesis, the first of all the so-called "Indians" in America were Mongolians who may have crossed over from Siberia into Alaska by means of a land bridge that once connected Asia and North America where Bering Strait now divides them.

Another possibility is that migrations occurred by water in the same region, where comparatively short voyages would have taken the immigrants from one continent to the other. In either case, the "Indians" have been supposed to have gradually spread to the south and to the east.

But Government experts who are studying the contents of the ancient shell mounds in Florida believe they have found evidence pointing to just the reverse of such theories. The question is being carefully investigated, but it seems at least possible that the pre-Columbian Americans, of the race which used the burial place on Weedon's Island, sent warrior missionaries northward to seek out better hunting grounds and to establish new tribes.

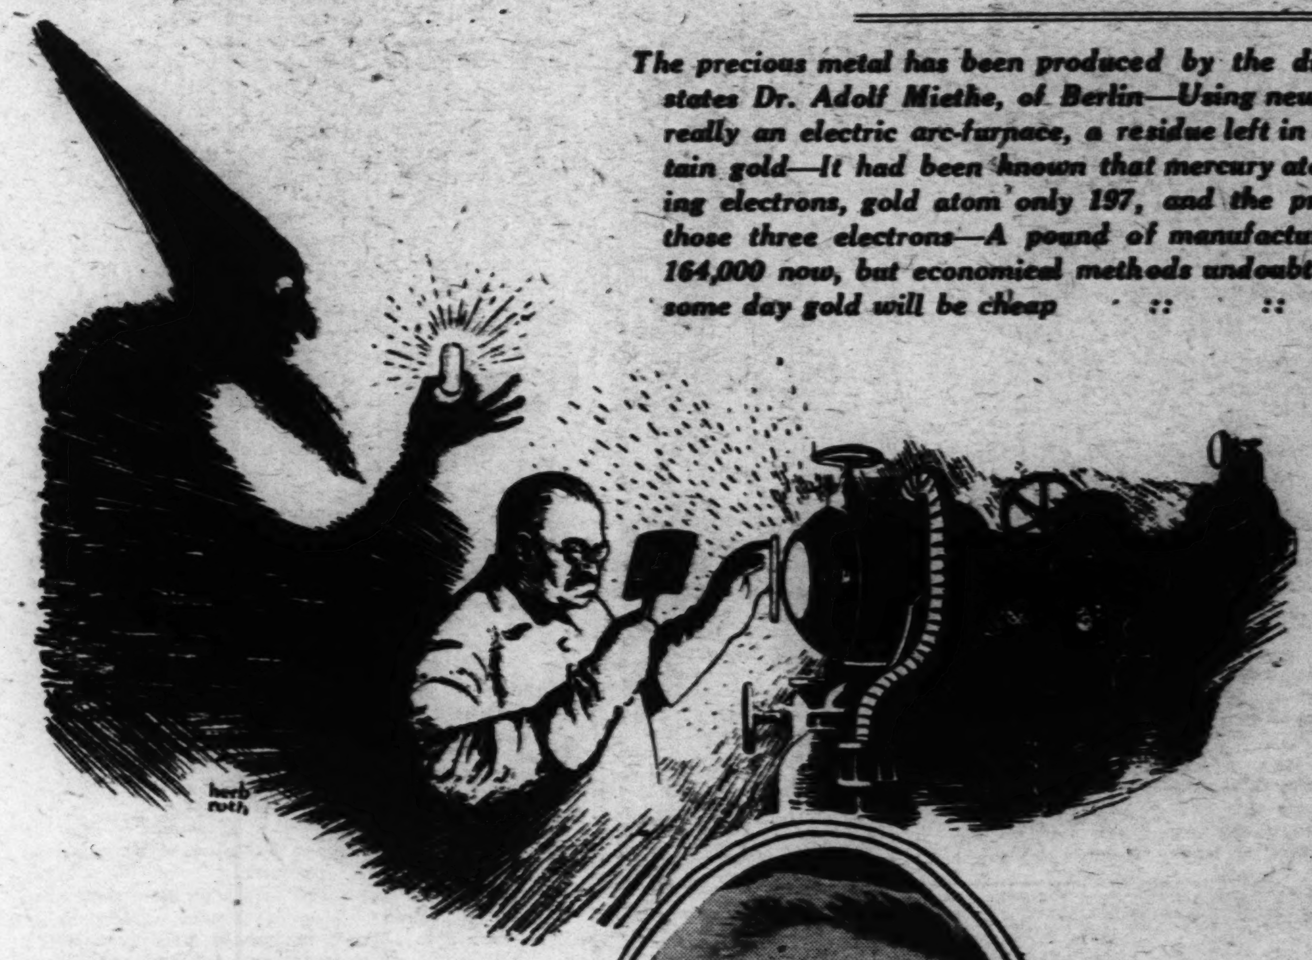
The PROBLEM of MAKING GOLD

The precious metal has been produced by the disintegration of mercury states Dr. Adolf Miethe, of Berlin—Using new type of mercury lamp, really an electric arc-furnace, a residue left in lamp was found to contain gold—It had been known that mercury atom contains 200 revolving electrons, gold atom only 197, and the problem was to remove those three electrons—A pound of manufactured gold would cost $2,164,000 now, but economical methods undoubtedly will be found and some day gold will be cheap :: :: :: :: ::



A TINY orange gleam leaped out from a seething mass of metal in a quartz retort a few weeks ago. The fleeting brilliance of that gleam may constitute a spark which will explode the economic foundations of the world. It may wreck Wall street and the Bank of England. It may turn the contents of your pocketbook into trash.

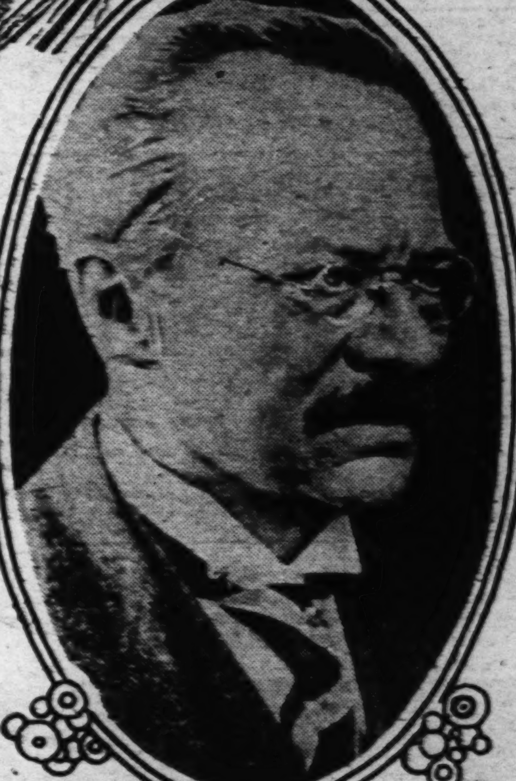
That momentary scintillation informed a grave German scientist that he had succeeded, by a lucky accident, in turning mercury into gold.

Into one end of his machine he had put quicksilver, which costs less than $1 a pound. From the other end he took out gold, which sells at more than $330 a pound.

Thus Dr. Adolf Miethe, professor at the Berlin Technical High School and the Charlottenburg University of Engineering, stumbled upon the secret of the transmutation of a base element into a precious one. He has translated into fact the dream which has tantalized alchemists and magicians for thousands of years. For the barest chance of making this discovery many a man would willingly have bartered his immortal soul.

As yet, the process is in itself so costly that it has no commercial value. To get a pound of gold from Dr. Miethe's machine would cost about $2,164,000. This figure may be reduced, however, if the problem of improving his method is attacked with all the marvelous resources of modern science.

If his process can be perfected and cheapened, Dr. Miethe will hold the financial destiny of the world in his hands. He will, in the first place, become the wealthiest and most powerful individual on earth. If he sells his secret, the purchasers may revolutionize the history of nations and change the lives of hundreds of millions of people.



Dr. Adolf Miethe of Berlin.

For gold is the standard of exchange in all civilized countries. A man or an organization with unlimited supplies of the yellow metal at hand could literally buy the whole earth. Prices would soar to miraculous heights. Finally, if gold-making should become a common occupation and gold itself as easily obtainable as brass, for instance, all banks and national treasuries would be demoralized, industry would be hopelessly confused, trade would be paralyzed.

The world would have to learn to get along without money for a time, and then perhaps return to some primitive system of barter. A far greater disturbance than the World War would take place, a disturbance which no individual could possibly escape.

But whether this happens or not, the probability remains that Prof. Miethe will soon be lifted out of his present comparative obscurity as a teacher and scientific investigator, and will achieve undying fame, if not fabulous wealth. For, whatever the economic consequences of his feat, the purely scientific attainment is already there, and this alone is of the utmost importance.

Miethe has suddenly become the Midas of the modern world; he has touched dross with the magic paraphernalia of his laboratory—and changed it into gold.

Like many other great discoverers, Miethe is known as a very modest and conservative man. This reputation of his gives all the more weight to the startling announcement in which he gave the first news of his success to the world.

"The discovery that under certain conditions gold may be obtained from mercury," he declared, "like many of the most important discoveries of science, resulted from an incidental observation which, by careful, systematic research, yielded astonishing results.

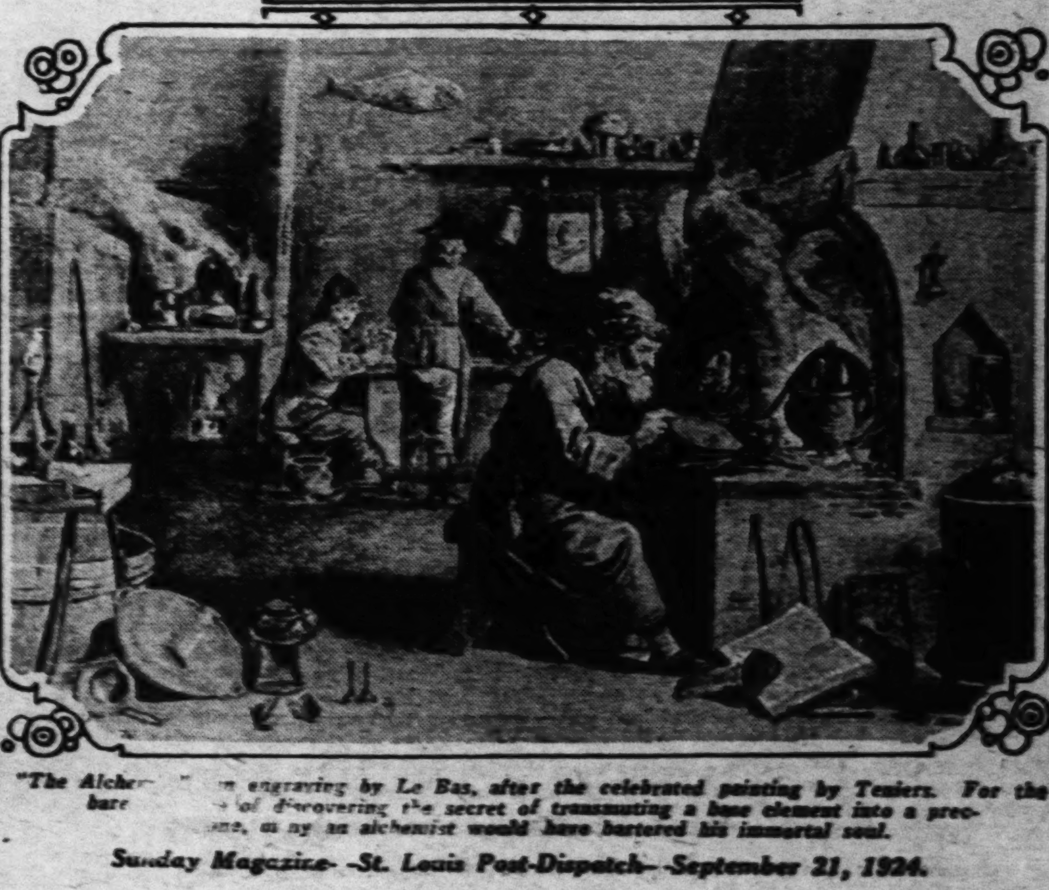
"Early in April of this year," he continued, "in co-operation with my private assistant, Dr. H. Stammerich, I succeeded in effecting the decomposition of mercury, which led to the production of gold. Up to this time, through the researches of M. and Mme. Curie, the scientific world knew of the decomposition of radium into helium gas. But although it was believed that mercury also was capable of decomposition, this had never actually been brought about.

"For years I conducted research along this line, attempting to change the color of certain transparent minerals through effect of the so-called ultra-violet rays. For this purpose I used the well-known mercury lamps—that is, tubes filled with mercury, the fumes from which radiate ultra-violet rays.

"In June of last year I began to use a new type of mercury lamp; it was really an electric arc-furnace. I found that if an unusually powerful electric current is passed through this furnace, a strange, dark-colored residue will be left inside the lamp.

"I analyzed this residue and found that it contained gold.

"Ten years ago," Dr. Miethe concluded, "when changing one element into another was believed impossible, the only explanation for this observation probably would have been that gold got into the residue through some accident.



"The Alche[illegible] engraving by Le Bas, after the celebrated painting by Teniers. For the bare[illegible] of discovering the secret of transmuting a base element into a precious one, many an alchemist would have bartered his immortal soul.

Miethe's experiments were carried on with such rigid precautions that it would have been quite impossible for even a minute quantity of gold to find its way into his lamp's mercury supply, he believes.

Moreover, as he suggests, transmutation of elements is no longer considered impossible by scientists of our day. Miethe is the first man to "manufacture" gold in a laboratory, it is true. But other elements have been "manufactured" artificially during the last few years. Not only did Mme. Curie observe that radium spontaneously changed itself into helium and lead, but Sir Ernest Rutherford actually changed aluminum into helium and hydrogen by bombarding it with radium emanations, X-rays and electric currents of exceedingly high pressure.

To understand just how Mme. Curie, Prof. Rutherford, and now Dr. Miethe, have transmuted elements, it is necessary to realize just what an element is and just what makes one ele-

Miethe's experiments were carried on with such rigid precautions that it would have been quite impossible for even a minute quantity of gold to find its way into his lamp's mercury supply, he believes.

Moreover, as he suggests, transmutation of elements is no longer considered impossible by scientists of our day. Miethe is the first man to "manufacture" gold in a laboratory, it is true. But other elements have been "manufactured" artificially during the last few years. Not only did Mme. Curie observe that radium spontaneously changed itself into helium and lead, but Sir Ernest Rutherford actually changed aluminum into helium and hydrogen by bombarding it with radium emanations, X-rays and electric currents of exceedingly high pressures.

To understand just how Mme. Curie, Prof. Rutherford, and now Dr. Miethe, have transmuted elements, it is necessary to realize just what an element is and just what makes one element different from another. Everything in the world, it has been discovered, is made up of 92 different kinds of atoms, existing singly or in combination with each other. Water, for instance, is composed of tiny molecules, each one of which consists of two atoms of hydrogen and one of oxygen. Atoms, in turn, consist of but two different kinds of particles, which are really nothing more than tiny electrical charges. A "positive" charge is called a proton; a "negative" charge is called an electron. Different combinations of protons and electrons produce atoms or elements.

Hydrogen, the lightest element, consists of atoms, each made up of a central "nucleus" (a single proton), with a single electron revolving around it at incredible speed. Heavier atoms have more protons and electrons in the nucleus, and more revolving electrons. Helium has 4 revolving electrons, oxygen 16, aluminum 27, iron 55, silver 107, gold 197, mercury 200, lead 207, radium 226. The heaviest atom is that of uranium, with 238 electrons.

It is now easy to see what must happen if one element is to be changed into another. Given lead, electrons must be added to each atom to change it into radium, and electrons must be knocked off to change it into mercury.

So far, no one has succeeded in adding electrons to an atom. But they have been knocked off. Radium discharges its own electrons and turns into lead in the course of thousands of years. Rutherford has bombarded helium with radium rays, knocked off electrons and produced hydrogen. At Oxford University, a heavy electric current has been shot through aluminum, and helium thus produced. It has long been believed that intense heat, such as that developed in Dr. Miethe's lamp, will similarly disintegrate heavy atoms. At the University of Chicago, heat did actually do what Rutherford's radium gun accomplished. Since then a German engineer, Hugo Lohmann, constructed an electric smelting furnace in which he claimed to be able to dissolve not only aluminum, but also iron, sodium and other elements into their component parts.

By the same process he manufactured diamonds out of wolframite—very small ones, but rivaling natural stones in brilliance and hardness.

Lohmann has now improved his furnace; his latest one develops heat of 4000 degrees centigrade. If, therefore, Miethe obtains gold from mercury by means of a comparatively weak mercury lamp, it is possible that the same result could be obtained in much quicker time by using Lohmann's device.

It has been calculated that Lohmann's furnace could disintegrate six pounds of mercury into helium and gold in 10 minutes. If this can be done, Miethe and Lohmann could deliver enough gold to pay the entire German war debt within a very short time.

What would happen after that, no one can predict with any certainty, except that it would be something very startling and revolutionary. The world must soon prepare itself for the realization of practical transmutation, at any rate. So astounding has been the progress of scientific research along these very lines within the last few months that no further achievement, no matter how distressing in its immediate effects, can any longer be deemed impossible.

The latest advices from Germany, at this writing, do not bring confirmation of Dr. Miethe's achievement by other scientists. Undoubtedly, experiments along the same line are being coducted in various foreign laboratories, but such work takes time. Months may elapse before we have additional data to compare with the results announced by this highly regarded professor.

And while the scientific world today admits the possibility of changing one of the so-called "elements" into another "element," and while it is reasonably certain that some time man will produce gold by artificial means, yet it may turn out that Dr. Miethe was mistaken. This matter of the transmutation of metals is a difficult one to study.

More than 20 years ago the great English chemist, Sir William Ramsey, thought that he had transmuted a few atoms of copper into atoms of lithium. But other chemists, using his methods, could not obtain the same result. It was concluded, finally, that Ramsey had made a mistake.

There is a story in the British laboratories that Ramsey was careless with his cigarette, and that a bit of ash dropped into his chemical mixture. Cigarette ash contains lithium. That is how he got the "transmuted" lithium atoms in his experiment, the gossips say.

There is no gold in cigarette ash, but it is possible that Prof. Miethe's quicksilver may have been impure. Or a tiny particle of gold may have dropped off from somebody's ring, or gotten into the apparatus in some other way. Until the experiment is

THE old idea that Egypt was exclusively a land of magic, mystery and superstition is dispelled by the discovery of a document showing that Egyptian physicians of the seventeenth century before Christ studied anatomy in the spirit of pure scientific research.

Upon an ancient papyrus now in America there was inscribed in the writing of ancient Egypt what Prof. James Henry Breasted of the University of Chicago, noted Egyptologist, calls "the oldest nucleus of really scientific medical knowledge in the world."

Prof. Breasted, who was recently associated with the late Lord Carnarvon in the excavation of the tomb of Tutankhamen, is spending this summer in making a complete translation of this important document, which, although it has been in America for a number of years, has never been properly studied. The manuscript, known as the Edwin Smith papyrus, and now in the possession of the New York Historical Society, "contains incomparably the most important body of medical knowledge which has survived to us from ancient Egypt, or, for that matter, from the ancient Orient anywhere," Prof. Breasted says.

From the style of writing he concludes that the manuscript dates from the seventeenth century before Christ, but it is obviously a copy of a work much older, possibly many centuries older, since some of its terms had become so obsolete as to require interpretation. Even as early as the twenty-eighth century medical books were numerous, for it is related that when the chief architect was showing off a new building to the Pharaoh, the architect had a stroke, and the Pharaoh ordered the "case of writings" to be brought to see what could be done for the stricken minister.

There are four ancient Egyptian medical manuscripts of importance extant, two in Europe and two in America. The largest and most famous is that which goes by the name of Papyrus Ebers, from Prof. Georg Ebers of Leipzig, best known to the public from his historical novels—"An Egyptian Princess," "Uarda" and others. The National Museum of Berlin owns a medical papyrus of the thirteenth century B. C. The University of California has the Hearst papyrus of much earlier date. The Edwin Smith manuscript is probably the earliest, as it is undeniably the most scientific, of the four.

The origin of this manuscript is unknown. It probably was buried in some tomb of the Theban cemetery, from which it was abstracted by an Egyptian seller of antiquities who separated the perfect part of the roll, and having glued up the fragments to make a second roll, sold both rolls to Edwin Smith, an American amateur Egyptologist, early in 1862. Mr. Smith soaked out the glue and pieced together the fragments. He knew how to read Egyptian, even the cursive or running hand of this scribe, and he recognized the value of his find. After his death in 1906 the manuscript was given to the society by his daughter.

The papyrus in its present state measures about 15 feet in length, but part of it is torn off, so it may have been some 10 feet longer. The writing is in columns a foot high and about the same width. It is done in a beautiful and regular hand, the Egyptian "hieratic," evidently the work of a skilled scribe, who was, however, unfamiliar with the scientific terms used, for he made many mistakes. Some of these he has carefully corrected, using red ink where the text is black, and black where the word is in red.

The book constitutes a treatise on surgery and external medicine and deals with wounds, though one case is possibly cancer, which in later Egyptian documents is called "karkinoma," the origin of our word "cancer." The writer begins with the head and proceeds systematically downward, discussing in turn wounds of the nose, mandible, ears, lips, throat, neck, collar bone, thorax and spine.

It is a true "case book," beginning with the symptoms and proceeding to diagnosis. According to whether the prospect is favorable, doubtful or unfavorable, the physician then pronounces one of three verdicts: (1) "An ailment I will treat," or (2) "An ailment I will contend with," or (3) "An ailment I will not treat." The complete translation of one of the cases is given here to show the style.

The treatment prescribed is simple but generally sensible. The broken or dislocated bones are set. The flesh wounds are covered with an ointment of astringent herbs and honey. Where the case is clearly beyond his skill, the physician wisely does nothing and advises that the patient be made as comfortable as possible and let alone. There is only one charm mentioned in the 48 cases.

In Case 7, dealing with a fracture of the skull, the surgeon is advised: "You should have made for him a wooden brace padded with linen and have the head fastened to it. His treatment should be sitting placed between two supports of brick, until you know whether he is making any progress."

In other cases, where the doctor is at a loss what to do for the patient, he is advised to "moor him at his mooring stakes." This is apparently an old colloquial phrase which had, even in the seventeenth century B. C., when this manuscript was made, become almost as obscure as it is to us, for the scribe adds a note explaining that "moor him at his mooring stakes" means "put him on his accustomed food without giving him medical treatment."

For dislocated bones the directions are specific and show considerable knowledge of anatomy. In the case of a dislocated jaw the practitioner is told how to put his hands in order to force it back into place. For dislocated clavicle or scapula the patient is to be laid on his back and his arms spread out "in order to stretch out the should[illegible]

The scribe was interrupted in the middle of the sentence and did not resume his copying. The rest of the papyrus is blank and when we turn over the sheet we find the back of the papyrus filled with very different stuff, the magical bosh that makes up most of the medical manuscripts of old Egypt.

The first writing on the back begins with an "Incantation for the driving out the wind of the year of the pest." This is followed by three recipes for female troubles, and then, judging by the hand, a new scribe starts in with: "The Beginning of the Book of Transforming an Old Man Into a Youth of Twenty." After running for a column and a half this also breaks off abruptly, so we are unable to add anything from Egyptian lore to meet the present demand for methods of rejuvenation.

This prescription for the elixir of youth calls for some sort of an ointment which has to be kept in a vase carved out of precious stone, which doubtless cost "the old man" a pretty penny.

Egypt was the birthplace of chemistry and Egyptian physicians were in high repute among neighboring nations. Homer in the Odyssey says that Egypt is "a country whose fertile soil produces an infinity of drugs, some salutary and some pernicious; where each physician possesses knowledge above all other men." Jeremiah, in cursing Egypt, declares: "O virgin, the daughter of Egypt, in vain shalt thou use many medicines, for thou shalt not be cured." Pliny observes that Egypt has more diseases and more doctors than other countries.

When the Greek historian Herodotus visited Egypt about 460 B. C., he was struck with the extent of specialization among the medical profession: "The art of medicine is thus divided amongst them. Each physician applies himself to one disease only and not more. All places abound in physicians; some physicians are for the eyes, others for the head, others for the teeth, others for the parts about the belly, and others for internal disorders."

The Smith manuscript will compel a revision of the ideas that formerly prevailed, that the traditional "wisdom of the Egyptians" was confined to magic and the practical arts. Prof. Breasted frankly admits that he has had to change his opinion on this point, and he concludes:

"The author of the great Book of Surgery and External Medicine, of which we have a mere fragment on the front of the Edwin Smith roll, was one of a group of men who had learned that in surgery and medicine they were confronted by a great body of observable phenomena, which they systematically and scientifically collected, sometimes out of interest in pure truth.

"The class of men thus revealed to us are the earliest natural scientists of whom we know anything, who, confronting a world of objective phenomena, made and organized their observations and based inductive conclusions upon bodies of observed fact. It is important to emphasize here the fact that these men evidently practiced dissection of the human body, a method of investigation in which Greek medicine, 1500 years later, was noticeably weak."

The following translation of Case 18 illustrates the general style of the unique manuscript:

"Title: Directions for a wound in the temple.

"Examination: If you examine a man having a wound in his temple, when it has no gash, while this wound penetrates to the bone; you should probe his wound and if you find his gema (temporal bone) whole with a fracture herein——

"Diagnosis: You should say concerning him: 'He is a sufferer with a wound in his temple.'

"Verdict: It is an ailment which I will treat.

"Treatment: You should bind it with fresh meat the first day, and treat it afterwards with ointment and honey every day until he is comfortable.

"Note A: With regard to 'a wound, when it has no gash, while it penetrates to the bone'—it is a small wound extending to the bone, there being no gash in the wound. It means narrow, the wound not having two lips.

"Note B: With regard to 'his gema,' it is the region between the orbit of the eye and the orifice of the ear at the back of the jaw."

"Are you about to foretell my future?" demanded Sky. "I might!" she assured him. "A dark-haired woman is about to interest herself in you"——

SCHUYLER DeWITT met Judy Pierce at a junior prom during his senior year at Harvard.

The diplomatic service is rather the thing these days, and Sky, with an eye toward it, had specialized in modern languages; but it was the oldest and most universal of all that he made use of when he and Judy were introduced.

"I," said Sky's eyes to Judy, "have an idea I'm going to like you a whole lot!"

"I dare you to!' answered Judy's eyes.

As a DeWitt of New York, a certain position at Harvard was insured him. He was good to look upon and he had a certain inbred audacity that was not without charm.

What he thought he needed he went and took. Or tried to, anyway.

Even the privilege of seeing her home, when the junior prom was done, was not denied him. The journey from Cambridge to Marlborough street, Boston, completed so far as he was concerned that process known as falling in love. The dim intimacy of the taxi, Judy with her lovely chin snuggled into the fur of her wrap, a celestial warmth, an elusive, intoxicating fragrance—by such things as these was his downfall accelerated.

He had been in taxis with pretty girls before. And there had been moments when he had been—well, audacious.

Now he sat tense, and almost tongue-tied.

"I'm going to call," he announced at her door.

"Do," said she, cordially.

"When?" demanded he, promptly.

"Let me see! Some time the latter part of next week?"

"Last of next week?" he exploded.

"Are you going to be awfully busy then?" she asked, concernedly. "If you are, why any time"——

"Are you going to be home tomorrow—I mean this afternoon?"

"Oh, I've a thousand things to do, I'm afraid"——

Yet in the end she had relented. "If you want to chance my being in at 5, I'll offer you tea," she conceded.

It so happened that she was in at 5 o'clock that afternoon, and so Sky had his tea. An innocuous beverage into which Judy must have poured some of herself as she served it.

Anyway, Sky was never quite the same man afterwards.

Once he had been free, white and 23. The world lay before him. He was to have a summer in Europe and perhaps a year at Oxford, to top off Harvard. After that, he was to enter the diplomatic service. The idea had suited him perfectly. Until, that is, he met Judy. From that moment his freedom of choice was gone.

In June, Sky foreswore diplomacy as a career and snapped up a chance to sell bonds.

"But why Boston?" demanded his astonished father. "A wide acquaintance is the best asset in the bond-selling business and you know hardly anybody in Boston."

But to Sky Boston was indeed the hub of the universe.

Even so soon he had proposed to Judy. She had rejected him, but in such a way that he was left with the idea that she was still open to conviction.

It was not until fall that, though she had refused him again and again, she nevertheless began to wear him as casually as she did her platinum dinner ring.

Love is servitude. His was becoming ignominious. From the first, that audacity that had served him so well at other times, had been forbidden him by his conception of Judy. To him she seemed different from all other girls. The methods that he had used elsewhere would have seemed sacrilege to him now.

Judy should have been touched, but she wasn't.

"She treats me like a worm," mused Sky morosely. "And that is what I am!"

But it is a long worm that has no turning. In late October, Sky turned. Suddenly, and without warning.

"But Sky!" protested Judy over the telephone, "Leila is an old friend. She should have given me warning, but I simply can't desert her on her first night with me. She'll be too tired for the theater. You can take somebody else"——

There she stopped short. Sky had hung up!

Now Judy's hair was the color of molten gold as it chills, with just a touch of red in it. And in Judy's disposition there was a touch of that which red connotes.

"That," Judy assured the mute receiver, "is absolutely the first and last time he will ever get a chance to hang up on me!"

In other words, she believed that she was through with him, and in that belief Sky heartily concurred, although Judy was yet to discover that.

As if to celebrate, he dined in solitary yet almost regal state and then turned toward Marlborough street.

This was the street that Judy lived on. But then, so did he, in a sedate lodging house, but a block removed from Judy's home. As he passed this tonight, Judy emerged. She was not alone. Leila, too tired for the theater, but not, obviously, for other diversion, was plainly to be presented to some of Judy's more favored friends.

It was as plain that she was not to be presented to Sky. Judy stared through him. He might have believed himself invisible, but for Leila. He felt quite that she saw him. And she did.

"Who," she demanded of Judy, "was that?"

"Let's not talk about him," evaded Judy.

"He looks nice," said Leila, speculatively.

"Appearances are deceitful," Judy assured her. "You can have him if you want him."

"I'm not interested in second. But still—you might have him drop in. I'll look him over."

"I imagine he'll drop in, all right," remarked Judy, grimly.

But Sky had not the slightest intention of dropping in. He moved along to his own door and entered. He felt only tolerant amusement.

From the mantel he selected a pipe, filled it and, lighting it, settled himself to savor this freedom.

An instant later there came a knock on the door.

"Come," suggested Sky, expecting his landlady.

But tonight it was Livingston Ames Stewart, an angular, near-sighted chap whom Sky occasionally passed on the stairs, almost always burdened with books.

"I—have you any tobacco?" demanded Stewart, plainly abstracted. "I can't seem to find my pouch"——

"Help yourself," suggested Sky. And added: "Won't you sit down?"

"No, no," said Stewart, quickly. "I can't stop. I'm terribly upset. I—have you ever been in love?"

"You've come to headquarters," Sky assured Stewart. "I have had a large experience. In fact, I'm just convalescing from the most serious case in my young existence. It almost proved fatal!"

"I've never been in love," confessed Stewart. "Women have a curious effect on me. Most unpleasant and unsettling."

"I never thought of that—but I'm not sure but what you're right!"

"I have preferred to avoid them, and yet, if the new biology is true, I must marry!"

"Must marry?" echoed Sky.

"For the good of the race," said Stewart. "Civilization," he continued, "has reached the cross-roads. We must have better brains or [illegible]. The incapable and imbecile are peopling the world. I—do you believe that Miss Sweet would understand if I approached her on the subject of marriage? Not romantically, of course, but scientifically!"

And that, in his own phrase, was where Sky nearly passed out.

"You mean," he gasped, "that you are thinking of asking Miss Sweet to marry you?"

"She is exactly the type of woman who should marry for the good of the race," explained Stewart. "Her fine inheritance—genetic, that is—is shown in the strength of her features and in her vigor and independence of mind. But, as Macdougal says, these very qualities turn men from such women"——

"How," murmured Sky, "did Macdougal guess it?" Then aloud:

"Perhaps she may have stumbled on this new biology you speak of," suggested Sky. "If she hasn't, you might pave the way by sending her a few books on the subject. As your approach is scientific and not romantic, they could take the place of candy or flowers"——

"That is an idea!" approved Stewart. "I think she would be interested in the findings of men like Macdougal and Humphreys!"

"No doubt of it. I'm interested myself."

"Really?" Stewart's face suddenly shone. "I've several books I'd be glad to loan you. It really is most important. It is believed that a man's genetic inheritance determines his final worth. If his ancestors were C-minus, he, too, will be"——

"C-minus. I get you. Bring in the books any time. I expect to have a lot of time to devote to self-improvement from now on."

"I'll get them now," promised Stewart, departing. In a minute he was back, bearing six books.

"There are others you must see," he apologized. "But for the time being"——

"Quite right," said Sky. "These will do for a start. I'm ever so much obliged."

This was mere politeness. When Sky picked up the topmost book after Stewart's departure, he had no intention of more than scanning a page or so. But it was 1 o'clock when he finally put it down.

"It would be worth while eating crow just for the chance to spring some of this Macdougal stuff on Judy," he assured himself. "Wow! She'd hit the roof."

As it happened, the chance was presented him, and it was not necessary that he eat crow. All that he ate was a very good dinner, as the guest of a hostess who had given him Judy as his partner at dinner.

"Is it cold here?" Sky asked Judy. "Or do I just imagine it!"

To this Judy made no answer. She turned to Reggie Thayer, on her left, and addressed herself to him.

"I said," persisted Sky, urbanely, "that it seemed cold here. Do you think it would be all right if I turned up my collar?"

"Did you speak?" demanded Judy.

"You say that as if you were demanding, 'Sir, have we ever been introduced!'" he commented. "I believe I have had the pleasure of your acquaintance."

"I think it ceased when you hung up on me," flashed Judy, and wished at once she hadn't said that.

"Are you still sore about that?" asked he, as if surprised.

"I think you at least owe me an apology."

"You owe me at least 763. Credit yourself with one. Or credit yourself in full. I'll wipe the slate clean. Any time you feel the need of a friend come to me, Judy. I"—he

"Please talk sense!" snapped Judy.

"Poor Macdougal! It would pain him hear you. But I venture to believe will open the eyes of other men, as has opened mine. What, after all, the thing called love, compared to the of the race?"

Judy's reply was purely human, not tific.

"Are you trying to be as idiotic as ble?" she demanded.

"The world has ever martyred deep thinkers," said Sky, gravely. "If neces- I, too, am willing to suffer look- forward to the day when a man will to consider. 'Yes, I admit this looks good to me,' he will tell him- 'but then, as Macdougal says, Lovely eyes, beautiful hair' ' "——

As Judy's fingers, feminine to their etty tips, went unconsciously to her hair, he paused and digressed.

"As beautiful as yours," he assured r. "It's all right, by the way. You need have no concern."

"I haven't. Not the slightest. Not r you!"

"Perhaps for Reggie, then. But to sume. The young man of the future ll pause. He will say: 'Beauty of hair, of teeth, of figure and the color of this girl's cheek are apt to denote a C-minus intellect. The race will degenerate. Back up, old man. Go into reverse' "——

"Are you deliberately trying to be insulting?" interrupted Judy.

Sky looked pained. "I am being scientific, not personal. Anyway, there will always be men to admire you; men like Reggie will ever seek charm. But strong souls, like Macdougal and Stewart will be drawn irresistibly to women like Miss Sweet."

"Who is Miss Sweet?" demanded Judy.

"The perfect pattern of the heroine of love stories of the future."

The conversation was ended. Sky found himself left to his dinner and such diversion as it might present. The latter came from an unexpected quarter.

"What," demanded the girl on his right, "have you been saying to Judy? I have no compunction, sir. I'm Leila. Judy and I went to school together, shared the same room and all our secrets. I already know your past and your present!"

"Are you about to foretell my future?" demanded Sky.

"I might!" she assured him. "A dark-haired woman is about to interest herself in you"——

"And a red-headed young man," suggested Sky, with a glance beyond her, "will thereupon rise and smite me. Are you really Judy's best friend?"

"Little Leila from Philadelphia. But why do you ask if I'm Judy's best friend?"

"I have polite but well-founded doubts."

"Meaning?"

"That never have I known a pretty girl to pick another girl as pretty as herself as her best friend."

"Oh, I'm not as lovely as Judy. But I'm awfully nice when you get to know me. Kind to my mother and dumb animals. And I'm going to be here only a few days more. Consider the weather and other such preliminaries disposed of. What were you saying to Judy?"

"I have merely assured Judy that I am almost certain that feminine loveliness is a snare and a delusion."

"Almost certain?"

"I try to keep an open mind. I should be glad to consider the subject further —under proper auspices."

"Meaning mine? Let's go! I'm engaged, by the way. Not that it matters. But Judy would probably tell you."

"I suspect that Judy and I are no longer on speaking terms. How serious is this engagement?"

"Oh, very! There are moments when I fear it may lead to matrimony. And I'm not sure that I'm fitted for that. What do you think?"

"I shall give the matter deep and earnest consideration. Of course, having only a few days in which to study you"——

"Do you know," said Leila, naively, "I begin to suspect that Judy did you an injustice. I should never call you a dumb bunny!"

Sky reddened, but his voice and manner remained impeccable. "I shall endeavor," he assured her, "to live up to your high opinion."

This he did.

"I'm only a simple little maid from Philadelphia," Leila told Judy that night, "and I don't know what you Boston girls expect, but to me Sky—isn't that a cute name?—seemed up and coming, to say the least. Why didn't you warn me that he wasn't safe in a taxi?"

They were in Judy's room and Judy was brushing her hair.

The hand that held the brush stopped, poised in the air.

"What do you mean?" she demanded.

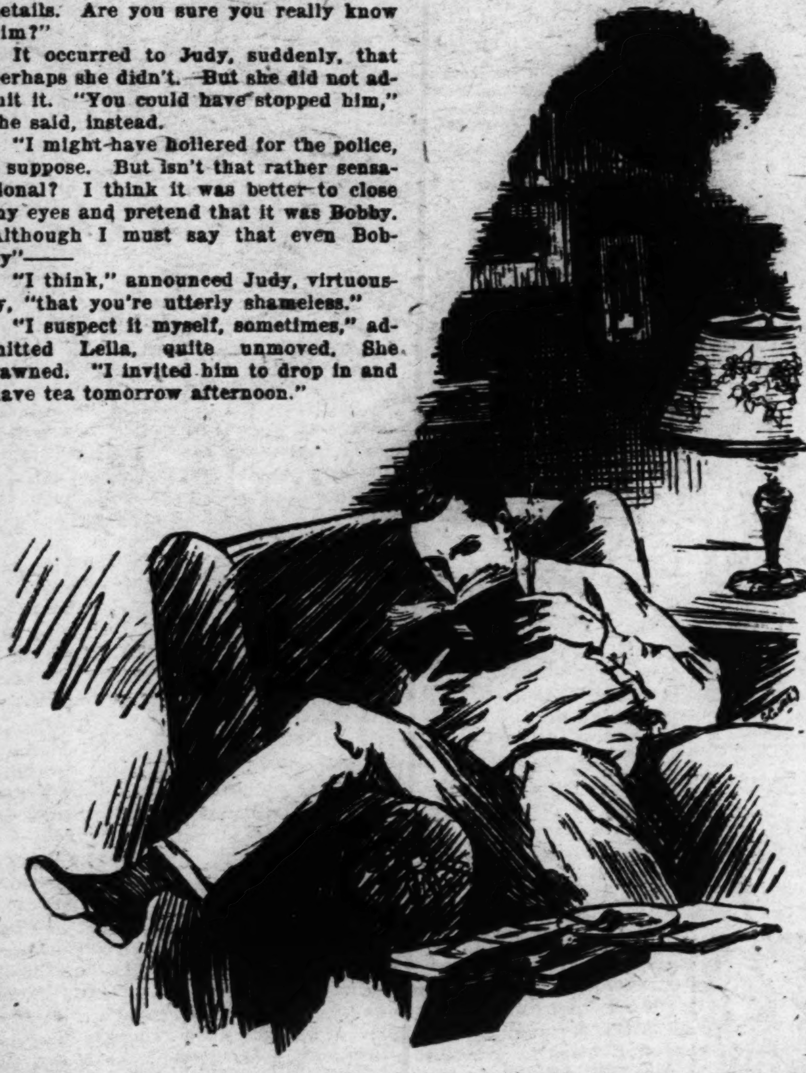
"Heavens. Don't make me go into details. Are you sure you really know him?"

It occurred to Judy, suddenly, that perhaps she didn't. But she did not admit it. "You could have stopped him," she said, instead.

"I might have hollered for the police, I suppose. But isn't that rather sensational? I think it was better to close my eyes and pretend that it was Bobby. Although I must say that even Bobby"——

"I think," announced Judy, virtuously, "that you're utterly shameless."

"I suspect it myself, sometimes," admitted Leila, quite unmoved. She yawned. "I invited him to drop in and have tea tomorrow afternoon."



When Sky picked up the topmost book after Stewart's departure, he had no intention of more than scanning a page or so.

Judy gasped at her, startled. "You didn't! Not here!"

"I thought here would be the best place. Perhaps he'll behave better when you're around."

"Are you making all this up?" demanded Judy, abruptly.

"Making it up? What for?"

"To tease me."

"Why, I had no idea you could be teased about him. You said"——

"I meant it. I wouldn't marry him if he was the last man in the world!"

"Egypt's Queen but you are choosy! I'd put him much higher in my list than that. I'm not sure but what I'll keep him in mind in case Bobby doesn't come up to expectations. Every woman ought to have an ace in the hole, don't you think? You needn't bother about chaperoning us tomorrow afternoon."

Nevertheless Judy was present when Sky arrived. So was Reggie Thayer, to whom Judy was prepared to devote herself.

"I have selected you as my second husband," Leila assured Sky at once. "I told Judy so last night, so we have nothing to hide. Be yourself."

"If I am to be your second husband I know what my wedding present to you will be," retorted Sky.

"How positively intriguing! What is it?"

"A medicine chest. With bichloride of mercury tablets masquerading as dyspepsia pills and cyanide in a cute little box labeled bicarbonate of soda. I believe you said that Bobby's tendency toward indigestion was one of his liabilities."

Judy was able to catch snatches of conversation from the other side of the room—or, as she would have said, unable to escape them.

"I like that ring," Sky was saying, and the better to examine it he took Leila's acquiescent fingers in his own.

"Is this the first time you've noticed it? How strange. It belongs to Judy. She's forever leaving it around."

"My ring!" cried Judy, forgetting that she was not supposed to hear.

"Peace, child!" counseled Leila. "You never missed it until this moment. Now let me get some pleasure out of it."

"Oh," said Judy, quickly, "keep it as long as you want!"

And then she did devote herself to Reggie.

Only one possible criticism could be leveled against Reggie. Leila made it as soon as she and Judy were alone.

"Speaking of dumb bunnies," said she, "aren't you rather specializing in them? Reggie seems to be a positively perfect specimen."

"I had an idea," thrust Judy, "that you were too busy to notice anything going on around you."

"I was—almost. But the bleats of that poor lamb you were sacrificing did occasionally reach my ears. Why not spare him?"

"I haven't an idea who you are talking about," said Judy with dignity.

"My dear, you can insult your intelligence, but I know it too well. Do you want your dinner ring back—or any other belongings of yours I've annexed?"

"No!" said Judy.

"Please don't shout! I'm beginning to suspect that I'm wearing my welcome out. Just as I was wondering if I might not be asked to stay longer."

"Do," suggested Judy.

"How you press me! About Sky, dear—truly, I don't think he has an ulterior motive in him. As far as I could see, your exhibition with Reggie made not the slightest impression on him. He may have been in love with you once, but I think you've cured him. Of course, he might have a relapse if you out and out vamped him, but I think you'd have to travel some, my dear."

"I've never vamped any man yet"—

"Really? Well, perhaps you didn't actually vamp Reggie this afternoon. Perhaps it was love at first sight. Are you really drawn to him, Judy?"

"He has more to him than you suspect!"

"He must have. I wouldn't suspect him of having anything. Isn't it funny how tastes vary? You can't bear the sight of Sky and I am already wondering how I can bear to leave him."

"You can stay as long as you want."

"No, I'm going Thursday, as planned. Only three days more. I'll have to make the most of them."

There was no question but what she did. One can only wonder—as Judy did—what Bobby would have thought.

"Good-by, dear," said Leila, come Thursday. "I know that you are heartbroken, but you have Reggie"——

"If you hope to catch your train"—interpolated Judy.

"And have my last minute with Sky," agreed Leila. "Good-by, dear. I've had a wonderful time."

Not until later did Judy discover that Leila had departed still wearing her dinner ring. But Leila did send that back.

"I wish I might have left Sky in your keeping, too," she wrote. "I'd feel quite sure I could borrow him any time I needed him. As it is, I'm afraid that some designing cat who is not above using methods you scorn will annex him now. Do let me know if there is the slightest danger!"

To which Judy might have replied, in all truth, that she saw nothing of Sky these days.

So matters stood when November slipped into its place in the calendar.

As Sky crossed the Public Gardens the blue dusk was falling from a sky in which twinkled the first shy stars. There was a touch of Indian summer in the air, a lingering hint of summer's glamour.

Even enemies might meet on such a night and forget old rancor. . . . They met, Sky and Judy, outside her door.

"Oh!" she gasped, as they all but collided.

Then she recognized him.

"I thought," said she, "that you were Reggie!"

"I have forgiven you many things," retorted Sky in that light, suave tone she particularly detested, "but I'm not sure that I can forgive you that."

The Sky she had thought she knew so well would not have answered her so. Nor would she, for her part, have spoken as she now did.

"I wonder," she murmured, "if you have ever forgiven me anything. Not that I admit there was anything to forgive."

"You wouldn't," he retorted, smilingly. "And perhaps there wasn't. I made an idiot of myself and you used stern measures to cure me. I'm not sure but what I should be grateful after all."

"I'm not sure whether that is a pretty speech or not," Judy assured him. "But, anyhow, I'm moved to offer you a cup of tea. Unless you have another engagement?"

"Even if I had, the chance to revisit the scenes of—shall we say childhood—would draw me irresistibly."

"I suppose," commented Judy, "you do miss Leila terribly."

"I wasn't thinking of Leila—our pleasantest moments were spent elsewhere."

They had moved into her house. There he relieved her of the furs that hung negligently from her slim shoulders, and she, putting her hat aside, rang for tea.

"I expect Reggie at any moment," she remarked, casually.

"I'll promise to remove myself at once," said he, and smiled.

The tea things arrived opportunely.

"You prefer sugar, don't you?" asked Judy, as if she weren't quite sure.

"Your memory serves you well! I wonder if you also remember that in other days I was served lemon—on the side as it were. How does Reggie have it served?"

This was outrageous, but Judy would have forgiven him anything but his absolute composure. He wasn't even jealous!

"Reggie takes it as I give it to him!"

"Blessed are the meek," said Sky.

Judy bit her lip. "I like him—enormously!" she flashed—which would have both surprised and pleased Reggie.

"So I have observed. Am I to wish you joy?"

"I wonder if you would—truly?"

"Absolutely!' said he. "Many, many thanks." He set down his cup and rose.

"Must you go?" she asked.

"If Reggie is imminent"——

"That is only an excuse. I—I see we can't be friends!"

And she was right. Friendship between man and woman is possible only when the chance of love between them

The Amusing Side of Provincetown

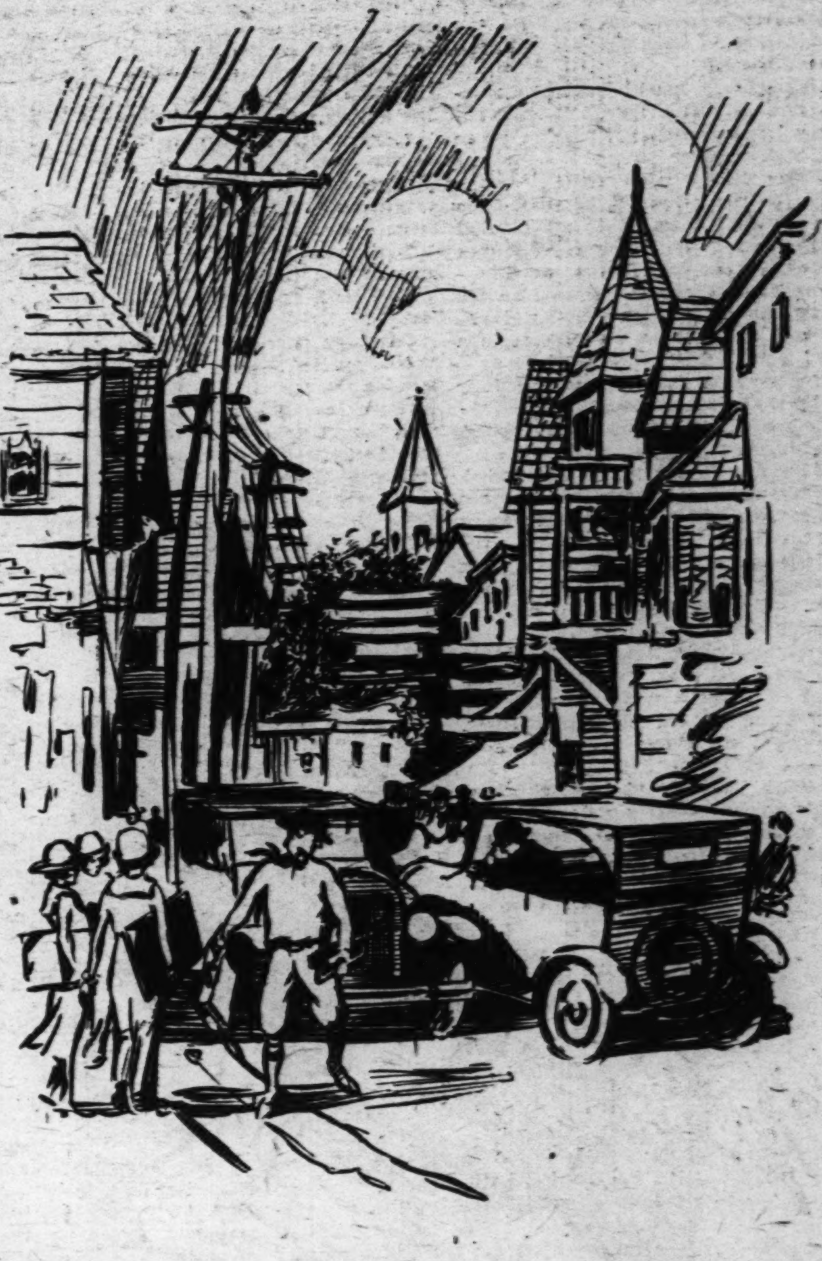
Famous old Massachusetts seaport, beloved by artists, is described today —The two streets are narrow and crowded, the Portuguese fishermen belie their piratical appearance—Going to the play in a deserted shed on a wharf—Recreations of the painters, etchers, singers, violinists, pianists, organists and writers who abound there—If one could fake along one's own house, it would be more enjoyable :: :: ::

(The entertaining description of Provincetown which follows was written for the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine by Mr. Gottschalk well-known violinist and composer of St. Louis.)

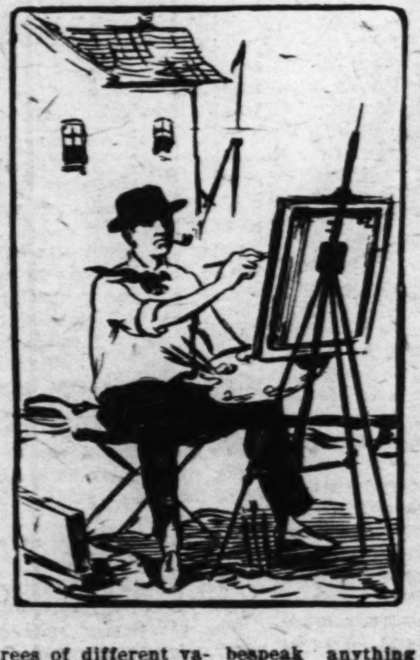
By MAX GOTTSCHALK.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass. It was here and not at Plymouth that the good ship Mayflower landed her precious cargo of Pilgrims some 300 years ago. A bleak, windswept, weather-beaten village situated at the very peak of Cape Cod. Most quaint, even unique, two extremely long streets running parallel to the sea, crowded by a jumble of frame cottages. Some very old ones, architecturally interesting; some very new ones, ugly beyond redemption; all, with but few exceptions giving the impression of apotheosized henroosts.

This attenuated effect is emphasized by the extreme narrowness of the two streets, they being not more than 15 feet wide. Four feet of this on the main street is given up to a narrow pavement. As the number of pedestrians is not inconsiderable and as they are usually burdened with easels, paint boxes, flowing scarfs and other artistic paraphernalia, one is continually stepping aside into the street at the risk of one's life and exasperation of the automobilists who are having troubles of their own in their endeavors to avoid one another.



A street scene in Provincetown.



So you have your choice of being walked over or run over, just as you prefer.

In the middle distance back of the town proper are ranged, very much like a stage setting, tremendous sand dunes, whose chief decorations are scrub trees of different varieties, huge mosquitoes of most active and warlike proclivities and tons upon tons of sand, with a background of the ever-present sea.

The population in the winter season amounts roughly to about 4000. In summer I should judge it to be nearly twice that number, due to the influx of visitors, mostly devotees of the different arts—music, painting and literature.

The town, once a great whaling station, has, since the advent and exploitation of mineral oil, lost all the glamour and romance of a harbor crowded with majestic three and four-masted skys'll yarders, and is now cluttered with gasoline fishing boats. The old New Englanders who once commanded and officered these same whaling vessels have naught left but a memory and the shanghied Portuguese who were their common sailors have taken virtual possession of the town, its fisheries and business institutions.

But what they all seem to share in common is a most intense wonderment, more dazed than indignant, at this horde of strange creatures yclept "artists" that descends upon them in the summer season with the monotonous regularity of all breeds of pests. This attitude of tolerant astonishment at the intruders' presence and antics may, of course, be only a figment of my imagination, for the so-called God's elect have been visiting Provincetown for at least 20 years, I understand.

At any rate, the Portuguese belie their buccaneering, piratical looks and figures, which bespeak anything but tolerance. I cannot help but call to mind some of our small Western towns, with their apparently naive, harmless inhabitants. I am almost certain I can hear one brigade of them calling for sprays and insecticide and another for a wagon load of rails.

As I said before, the town's industries consist of its fisheries, including two cold storage plants, then the usual merchandise stores, restaurants, ice cream parlors, etc., and last but not least the "Antiques Shops." These certainly came into my young life as a novel experience. As near as I can judge there must be 80 or 90 of them. Their stock in trade consists of, firstly, one hand-painted and unreadable sign; a few bead necklaces, the heavier and more cumbersome the better; a few mandarin coats of as old and dilapidated a type as possible; some questionable prints cut out of an old English illustrated magazine.

This will do quite well for a start for one of the smaller kind. The more pretentious shop would require possibly two of the unreadable signs, then a larger number of the different items mentioned, supplemented by a considerable collection of gewgaws, said gewgaws not necessarily being well defined as to use, but positively possessing the look and smell of age.

It is when one attempts, by sordid barter, to possess one's self of one of these priceless treasures that one comes in contact with the atmosphere of transvalued values. The shopkeeper, either a discarded disciple of the Muse or just a plain, earthly business man, has taken his cue from the long-haired specimens infected by the divine afflatus which he sees all about him, and regards any efforts, either brash or subtle, towards acquisition with a lofty disdain and lethargic indiffefence.

In fact one is made to feel that it is quite a condescension to have had the Beatific One, the master of the shop, arouse himself or herself (as the case may be) long enough from the detachment consequent upon communion with the Infinite, to show his goods.

At any rate, there is not much doubt as to the feeling which pervades the poor hopeless plebeian as he wanders forth with a necklace of our 10-cent-store variety which he has finally been allowed to call his own after most wearying and taxing maneuvers in a new game in which the stake has evidently been the tainted five or six dollars which he carried in his pocket.

Oh, for that dear old St. Looie (as I have been taught to pronounce it since here), where the business man and his methods reign supreme, where the artist looks and acts like everyone else, where even the most inspired utterance of the genius is forced to go through the crucible of practicability—make its obeisance to the god money, in other words—as witness our civic enterprise, the summer opera. Where one is not obliged to prostrate one's self before the restaurant man and make gorgeous and alluring offerings on his altar for a stack of flapjacks, nor has to eat them seasoned with a treacle that reeks of varnish and turpentine.

In the world of art, Provincetown is probably best known as having been the cradle and home of the Provincetown Players, a dramatic stock company that is now playing in New York and which in the exploitation of the modern drama has to its credit the initial performance of numerous plays that will leave their mark in the history of the stage. It goes without saying that they have made Broadway sit up and take notice.

To fill the vacancy left by this migration, a new band of enthusiasts have gotten together and formed a company known as the "Wharf Players." They, like their progenitors, have selected the most uncomfortable and unsuitable quarters that could be found, namely, a deserted barn on the wharf. Here, without any of the necessary machinery of the stage, they give their plays. Here, also, without any of the necessary machinery of comfort, come an absurdly large audience for such an inadequate space, to witness the presentation of plays written by members of the colony especially for this theater.

I witnessed the debut of the company in three original one-act plays, viz: "Wreckage," by Mary Heaton Vorse and C. C. Clements both poets of more or less fame; "The Accomplice," by Abigail Marshall, in which she and her husband played two roles of the three in the play, and "The Giant's Stair," by Wilbur Daniel Steele, acclaimed as the leading writer of short stories in the country. All three of them are tragedies, each one a little more lugubrious than the preceding, and I must say that one and all they were the most efficient gloom dispensers ever assembled under one roof in one evening.

Yet despite this fact and the amazing absence of adequate stage settings and lighting, they were enjoyable, I might say impressive—impressive in more ways than one. I, as one of a swarm in the tremendous cluster of audience, was gingerly seated on a foot of space on one of the unplaned boards supported by boxes that served as seating machinery. Said boards were generously supplied with splinters. It may be due to this fact that, although more or less enjoyably impressed, my judgment of their esthetic worth is not of the most sanguine character. Be that as it may, I have no doubt whatever that the virtuosity and brilliance of the writing of Mr. Wilbur Steele's play, "The Giant's Stair," will insure it many performances on the stages of our little theaters throughout the country.

The plays were repeated on two successive evenings thereafter, to successively crowded (and no doubt equally uncomfortable) audiences, and I understand there are to be plays every two weeks during the entire summer. Both Harry Kemp and Eugene O'Neill, who spend their summers here, are hard at work fashioning plays for the company. I should not be surprised at all but that out of all of this elevated, noble dreaming and persistent labor of mind and muscle there shall arise some pictures and messages that will tend to leaven the crass commercialism that now pervades our American stage.

As to the work of the artists (painters and etchers), the Provincetown Art Association opened its exhibition on July 14. I will quote verbatim the "Foreword" printed in their catalogue, since it voices very well the note that prevails:

"The Provincetown Art Association opens its tenth annual exhibition in its quaint and distinctive setting. To display the art which expresses the atmosphere of this ancient village, the open surge of the sea, calm waters of a twilight bay, wild dunes harassed by the gales of winter, the fisherfolk at their eternal toil by darkness and in gray hours of dawn—this is the aspiration of the art association. The ideals of the association attempt to reflect the setting which has inspired them. Lectures and concerts will lend to literature and music, as well as to painting and sculpture, the appreciation which these kindred arts so amply merit."

Though I would not in any way call it a pre-eminent exhibition, due to the fact that there are a great many fledglings (eaglets, perhaps) trying out their wings for future greater flights, still there were quite a number of examples by those who are not unused to the more rarified empyrean heights. Such, for instance, as Charles W. Hawthorne of New York, who has a most palatial summer home here and is followed down by a coterie of some hundred students. Also our Richard E. Miller, who likewise has a charming home and studio which he occupies the year round. Then there is Robert E. Ball of Kansas City, lately of New York, who has his cottage and studio right on the beach, with the sea at his back door, and whose picture, "Pont Neuf," was awarded second prize. Last but not least are we represented by Martha Hoke, who had on view a delightful bit entitled "Tulip Time."

Some of the other interesting offerings were by such artists as William Auerbach-Levy, the eminent etcher of New York; and James R. Hopkins and Randolph L. Coates of Indianapolis. It was Coates' "Wee Mite Moggish" that was awarded first prize. Then there were Edwin W. and Sidney E. Dickinson of New York, W. H. W. Bicknell of Boston; Karl Knath, Ambrose Webster, Ross Moffett, Frank Carson, Laurence Grant, Charles Kaeselau, John Foster, George E. Browne, all of Provincetown.

Of course, the hydra-headed monster, "modern art," is very actively at work here. It does not furtively raise its several heads apologetically, but very aggressively swings them about on high and threatens to devour. By the caste who carry his banner, good, solid, academic drawing is sneered at as foolishly futile and a bar to naive, direct self-expression. The color technic of the French impressionistic school, which was considered extremely revolutionistic some 15 or 20 years ago, is called "sweet and harmless"; and the composition of line, mass and color that held sway up to within the last 10 years, is looked upon as a silly convention.

There were numbers of things in frames in this present exhibition, such as translucent cows, japanned tin figures, spiritualistic evocations of trees and flowers, whangdoodle squares and circles, shrieks of silence, and such other whatnots, which went completely beyond my understanding. Then others by disciples who were probably a bit more polite and refused to slap one in the face direct, but nevertheless did so in a more politic, urbane fashion, by innuendo insinuation, as it were. Strange to say, these were even more aggravating than the first named, for the majority gave very evident signs of painting talent and ability.

It is hard to predict what the outcome of all this protest in art will be. This much can be said: it will undoubtedly lead to a better art, at least a more expanded horizon in the business of expressing one's self in paint, and about the only thing a conservative can do in the present muddled state of affairs, when even the different factions of the new school are fighting and denouncing one another, is to suspend judgment.

The sister art of music is also well represented in the colony by devotees, both amateur and professional. It is only necessary to mention that there are three string quartets in full blast to give an idea of the musical inclinations and activities here. Besides this there are singers, pianists, organists and violinists galore, and I can well imagine the great God Pan well pleased with the cacophonous paen that ascends to him in the heavens from his converts on Cape Cod, mingled with the heavy incense of decaying fish.

Of course, the musical interest centers in Miss Thelma Given, violinist, who makes her permanent home here with her family. Miss Given studied with Auer in Petrograd for a period of four years, and he predicts brilliant successes for her the coming season, when she intends giving a series of recitals as well as appearing with numerous orchestras.

There is quite a bit of social activity in Provincetown, and this, as everything else in the place, is of a most individual character and certainly of a different complexion than I have found anywhere else. There is the Rendez-Vous Club, for instance—an artists' club dansante, where chess, checkers, cards, roulette are indulged in, all at the same time. Where artists may sing, recite, give exhibitions of legerdemain in the interludes between dances—all in the most stately, formal way. They evidently take their pleasure most seriously. The only discoverable unconventional things are the facts that they use the second floor of a wharfhouse for their quarters and candles for lighting.

The "Beach-Combers" own their own quarters (another wharfhouse) and their frank, avowed purpose is eating. Every Saturday night they hoist their pirate's standard, skull and crossbones on a field of black, and three of the members buy, beg, borrow or steal and bake, roast, brew and concoct, enough victuals for their other 40 or 50 associates, who do not stand upon much ceremony in seeing to the complete annihilation of any material evidence. In fact, it has rarely been my good fortune to witness such gustatory proficiency. Far be it from me to insinuate by this that the members reduce their weekly budget and insure more violence in their art, by an ascetic abstinence for several days preceding.

After the meal the stunt is to sit around and indulge in spoofing of as humorous, witty or personal a nature as the mood may dictate. On the rare occasions when the amateur chefs did not quite make the grade with their meal, the almost savage acidulousness of the comments that were primarily directed toward them and then became general and were shot at all targets at random, were a source of sardonic delight to the immune onlooker.

The Provincetown Tennis Club, with its courts and commodious clubhouse, gives weekly dances, as does also the art association. Here the attempt is more toward a very citified "bon ton." One finds one's self restricted, more or less, to the circle one comes with, as it does not seem to be the policy to introduce people promiscuously. In other words, there seem to be circles within circles in the very restricted social area of Provincetown.

Taken all in all, it is a very amusing town, and if one could bring along one's own house to live in, with windows to look out of, doors to go through and floors to give one the assurance of not falling through into the cellar; plenty of mosquito netting, earmuffs and gum shoes and a nice-fitting clothes pin for the nose; a bromide could spend a most enjoyable summer gayly hobnobbing with the chosen who have made the place their very own playground.

Kidney Acts Like Filter

THE kidney acts like an ordinary filter in removing waste products from the blood, Prof. A. N. Richards and Dr. O. H. Plant of the University of Pennsylvania have discovered as a result of experiments which show that in the kidney there is a miniature filtration plant of extreme complexity.

The blood flows through the finely divided network of blood vessels in the kidneys to many thousands of microscopic filters, they found. Since the blood passes over the heads of these filters under considerable pressure, some water and waste products pass through them, ultimately being excreted, while the bulk of the blood passes back to the main blood stream. Increase in the pressure of the blood on these filters increase the amount of waste products eliminated just as increase of pressure on a water filter augments the flow of water through it, the investigation showed.

To carry out such an investigation it was necessary to develop microscopic instruments and a very fine technic. Although the filtration theory of kidney secretion has been held for years by physiologists, so difficult was the technic to prove it that not until the present time has it been satisfactorily verified.

Business Man by Day, Lunatic at Night

him about the management of his estate. Officials suggested an arrangement by which the bills should be sent to Macusker himself for approval.

"Fortunately," remarks Macusker, with some irony, "these bills come to me during the day, when I am 'sane.' If they came at night I would be 'insane,' and my approval or disapproval of them wouldn't be worth much!"

Such is the strange predicament of a Philadelphia citizen. Whether or not he is insane, whether or not he was "railroaded" into the asylum, as he claims, out of somebody's hatred and fear, the case furnishes one of the oddest court tangles that can be imagined.

And the useful activity of Macusker himself adds to the queer complexion of the situation. Practically, he is in full control of his estate and his business. He oversees everything, is in active charge of the paper, approves all expenditures made by the guardian—and is displaying sound business judgment and making money.

But, of course, he cannot use the fruits of his toil. Officially he is insane and cannot be considered a person in possession of all his faculties. Surely an irksome state of affairs for any man. Yet he will not take his troubles before a jury, although in some quarters it is believed that any jury would find Macusker sane. Why does he refuse to undergo that test?

"I do not wish to be declared 'cured,'" he says. "That would be tantamount to an admission that I had been insane. I am a grandfather, and I do not wish my children to suffer under the stigma of madness."

What he does want, and hopefully awaits, is for the courts to find that there has been, as he alleges, a conspiracy, and that he never was really out of his mind.

So the man who is "sane" in the daytime and "insane" at night continues to lead this peculiar, dual existence—conducting his newspaper and advising his guardian for 12 hours out of each 24, and spending the other 12 hours a prisoner in a madhouse.

"The law is very broad," he says. "I wonder if anyone is safe? It says that if a man can be shown to be likely to become the victim of designing persons, his property may be taken away from him. But who has not been the victim of designing persons? Certainly Judges have been."

And so the matter rests. Macusker has been "sane" by day and "insane" by night for one whole year and a few weeks over. What the end of the case may be, nobody can tell. But in the meantime the Journal of Commerce continues its successful career, under Macusker's management, and the guardian company apparently retains faith in the judgment of its ward.

One would not be too fanciful, perhaps, in calling this a case in which alternate madness and sanity follow the hands of the clock around.

Vignettes of City Life

the monotony by singing out crossings. Just then a gamin with his voice changing handed the conductor a nickel.

"What's this for?" that worthy demanded.

"Half fare."

"Not at your age."

The boy grinned and drew out two pennies, which he added to the nickel.

"That's another dodge, isn't it?" the Inquisitive Passenger asked.

"That's another that they TRY," the conductor answered.

The tide turned. Now the crowd thinned. There was an argument with a passenger carried past a street, a transfer an hour old, a very young and pretty girl who couldn't find her token, and an older matron with a huge bundle and a baby. The Inquisitive Passenger got a lot of information about each. The conductor readily answered his questions. He had been a conductor seven years, he carried $15 in change, he got rid of nickels as fast as he could and kept dimes, and he believed in the union. All this and a lot more he confided to the Inquisitive Passenger, by request.

Twelfth boulevard was passed.

"You must get tired," the I. P. said. "What is the most tiresome thing you meet?"

"Well," the veteran conductor said, "the women asking for free rides are bad, and so are the transfer bummers, but the worst pest is the bird who asks all sorts of damphool questions. What, getting off here—why, it's five blocks to Broadway."

But the Inquisitive Passenger had alighted.

New Gem of Ancient Art Just Found

ard in his work on Dahomey there were women palace guards at Bangkok; and at the same time, which was about 50 years ago, the little Dutch colony called Bantam had a King who maintained a royal troop of women soldiers. They rode astride their steeds and carried both muskets and lances. If the King died without a direct heir, these Amazons elected his successor from amongst their own sons.

Sir Richard Burton, who seems to have been rather an authority on Amazons, recorded that the Celestial King of the Tae-Pings had a bodyguard of 1000 Amazons. That was hardly more than half a century ago.

The recent "Battalion of Death," composed of Russian women, is the latest instance of Amazonian warfare. These women actually went into battle, some of them being slain and others wounded. In the United States we never (thus far) have had an organized body of Amazons, though in the Civil War were several women soldiers who, their sex being unknown to the recruiting officers, were enlisted in the regular way and made efficient fighters.

Now that we have equal suffrage, with organized bodies of women demanding absolute equality of rights, privileges and duties under the law, and with most of our young women of the present generation beautifully bobbed, what man is bold enough to predict an Amazonless army in the much-feared "next war"?

The Problem of Making Gold

repeated by other men, in other laboratories, and gold consistently obtained from mercury, what now looks like an epochal discovery must be viewed as something not yet proven.

But the important point to remember is that whether Dr. Miethe really has done or not, the transmutation of metals appears to be on the way. It may not arrive until next year, or until 10 years from now. But the more that our knowledge of atomic structure increases, the more convinced do leading men of science become that they will learn the secrets of changing some "elements" into other ones.

And probably a method will be found for producing gold cheaply.

Even, if Dr. Miethe has solved the riddle, fulfilled the dreams of the old alchemists, his method is far too expensive for any practical purposes. The gold that he believes he has produced from mercury costs more than 700 times the present market value of gold. Economically, it is a failure. But a way of making gold cheaply would affect the whole world.

Guess Again

is too remote to be even considered. Sky realized that.

"We'll always be friends," he assured her. "Though, of course, as I am leaving Boston"——

"Leaving Boston?"

"I've gone back to the idea of the diplomatic service," he explained. "I ran over to New York a couple of weeks ago and talked it over with my father. I've just been cleaning up here. I leave Saturday"——

"Then—I won't see you again, I suppose. This is good-by?"

He nodded. He jolly well would not see her again! Not for a million!

"Good-by, then," she murmured, and offered him her hand.

He took it. "Good-by," said he, his voice determinedly light.

And then, as if against her will, her eyes met his.

"Why, Judy!" he gasped, breathlessly.

And thereupon, without so much as a by-your-leave, he kissed her. Kissed her once, twice, three times before she broke away.

"I suppose," said she, hotly, "that was the way you kissed Leila."

"I kissed Leila?" he echoed. And then he grinned. "Oh, I know what you mean. She told me about the yarns she sprung on you. She said you needed a jolt"——

"Oh, she did!" Judy broke in, ominously. "What else did she say?"

"Plenty!" Sky retorted—Judy had succeeded in putting her spell on him again, but he was no longer a worm. "I have no desire to betray confidence, but she did express the high hope that your husband would know enough to beat you when you needed it."

At that moment the butler intervened.

"Mr. Thayer," announced he, sonorously.

"Tell him," said she, "that I'm—not at home."

The butler bowed and withdrew.

Sky opened his arms.

"Come home," he suggested.

"You said you were cured," she temporized. "How do I know—you aren't?"

This Sky most properly ignored.

"Are you coming—or shall I come and get you?"

"Come," suggested Judy, poised for flight, "and get me!"

The tea things all but crashed, but he got her. And he held her as if he feared she might yet try to escape him. But she didn't. Indeed:

"I—I think Leila was right," she confessed, presently. "You won't ever let me walk all over you, ever again, will you, Sky? I—I don't like it myself!"

"I'm prepared to beat you twice a day if necessary," he assured her, and there was a note in his voice that thrilled her deliciously.

At midnight that night Livingston Ames Stewart came to Sky's door and accepted his invitation to enter.

"Good Lord!" gasped Sky, as he glimpsed Stewart's expression. "What's happened, old man?"

"Angela—Miss Sweet—has refused me," announced Stewart, tragically. "I loaned her various books as you suggested and she seemed so interested that I was encouraged to suggest marriage. I told her that although I realized some men might not find her attractive, I believed that, considering her genetic worth, I"——

"My aunt's seven cats," groaned Sky. "What did she say?"

"She hurled the books at me," replied Stewart, miserably.

"I don't wonder," thought Sky. But as Stewart needed sympathy he tried to give it. "Well, there are other potential mothers of great men, aren't there?"

"But it is Angela that I want!" cried Stewart.

"What?" gasped Sky. "You mean you want her—romantically?"

"Yes. She—have you ever noticed that she has rarely beautiful eyes?"

"No," said Sky, truthfully. "But why in thunder didn't you tell her so?"

"Tell her so? Why! Why, I'd never dream"——

"Look here," interrupted Sky. "You listen to me. I'm a magna cum laude man on this subject. You've landed in the ditch. All right—go into the reverse. Can Macdougal. Write a sonnet to Angela. Bless her sweet eyebrows but damn her intelligence"——

"But she has a fine mind! I really respect it"——

"Keep it dark! Spring a new line on her—something with a real wallop to it. Tell her that though that limpid eye of hers may, according to Macdougal, signal red, it sends quivers up and down your spine. Tell her that she is beautiful but false, and that you're going to get drunk and forget her"——

"She'd be insulted! She'd never speak to me again. She'd"——

"You mean," corrected Sky, "that the first thing I know I'll be buying you a wedding present."

And so it befell.

• • • • • •

"You bought a wedding present today?" echoed Judy. For whom?"

"Stewart. I'm sending him a five-foot shelf of Robert Chambers' works. Most appropriate. For you see"—Sky grinned—"the Chambers stuff did for him what Macdougal did for me."

Thereupon he explained in full detail just what he had done.

"You think you're awful smart, don't you?" demanded Judy, when he finished, but her tone gave him no reason for taking umbrage.

To the contrary, he remained complacent.

"Well," said he, drawing her closer, "I certainly learned something about women from you!"

The Discovery of Some New Americans

And this must have been long, long before ever Queen Isabella of Castile and Christopher Columbus of Genoa reached their momentous agreement and the three little caravels sailed westward through the terrifying solitudes of the Atlantic Ocean.

Whether the motive was the ages-old need of more food, or the search for a cooler climate, or conquest of some neighboring tribe, or just the spirit of exploration, if it can be proved that the Indians did spread northward instead of coming from the north, a very important fact will have been learned.

Immediately there will come to mind the wonderful architectural remains of the Maya Indians in Yucatan and Honduras, vestiges of a culture which never was approached by the tribes further north. Other remnants of vanished civilization in Central America and among the Incas of Peru prove beyond any question that in the warmer portions of the two Americas ancient culture far exceeded anything attained farther from the equator. Is it reasonable or not to suppose that the more advanced races were the older?

Only less interesting than the contents of the huge shell mound on Weedon's Island are the relics of early Spanish explorers which have been found by the Government's scientific men in other parts of the island. These include the rusty remnants of swords, spears and broadaxes which were lost or thrown away by members of those adventurous expeditions.

Almost four centuries ago (1528), Narvaez and his followers landed on Weedon's Island and encamped there for a time. During their sojourn in the vicinity of the shell mounds, hostile natives captured a Spanish youth named Juan Oretiz, who had been cabin boy on one of the ships.

According to the old Spanish chronicles, this lad was condemned to death by "King" Ucita, ruler of the Indian tribe then dwelling on Weedon's Island. The torture stake had been made ready when "Princess" Ukelee, daughter of "King" Ucita, interceded in the prisoner's behalf so effectively that he escaped the cruel death impending. For 11 years Juan was held captive by the redskins, but kindly treated.

Then the expedition of Hernando De Soto sailed into Tampa Bay and established shore quarters on the peninsula near the shell mounds. Juan Oretiz was rescued, after he had abandoned hope of ever looking upon a white face again. Unfortunately for a romantic ending to the story, Juan died before he could fittingly repay the Indian "Princess" for her humanity.

The friendship between this white man and this Indian girl was a forerunner of the famous later episode, involving Pocahontas and Capt. John Smith of Jamestown, Va.

Pottery and other relics from the graves of these newly discovered prehistoric Americans will be shipped to Washington, and arranged in a splendid exhibit at the National Museum. No other Indians, say the Government experts, have produced pottery as complex and beautiful as the specimens recently uncovered, after so long a time, in Florida.

USING WOOD FLOUR FOR FOOD.

A FRENCH savant, M. Luciani-Delpech, has found that by grinding the wood of trees into a very fine flour it may be used for food both by animals and by man. Most trees contain a considerable percentage of starch, which is the food element of bread, potatoes, grains and the like. Some of them also contain some sugar. In ordinary wood the starch and sugar are not digestible because the wood is not fine enough and because the digestive fluids of the stomach cannot dissolve it. But when it is ground to a fine enough powder the fluids can get at tiny grains of starch and sugar and can digest them properly.

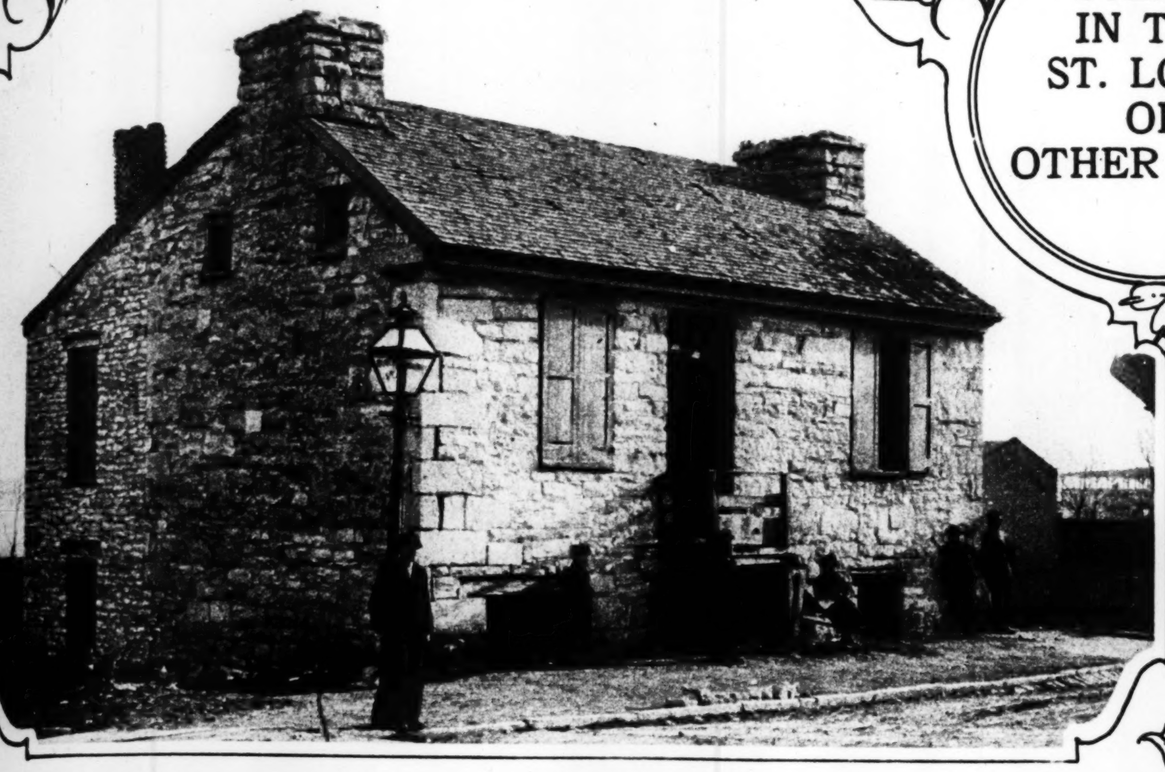
SCENES IN THE ST. LOUIS OF OTHER DAYS



Before Carondelet was annexed to St. Louis it had this Court House of its own. It stood at Broadway and Bowen street, but no trace of it remains.

New Life – New Energy!

Constipation banished · Digestion restored Skin transformed—such is the power of this unique fresh food

THESE remarkable reports are typical of thousands of similar tributes to Fleischmann's Yeast. There is nothing mysterious about its action. It is not a "cure-all," not a medicine in any sense. But when the body is choked with the poisons of constipation—or when its vitality is low so that skin, stomach and general health are affected—this simple, natural food achieves literally amazing results.

Concentrated in every cake of Fleischmann's Yeast are millions of tiny yeast-plants, alive and active. At once they go to work—invigorating the whole system, clearing the skin, aiding digestion, strengthening the intestinal muscles and making them healthy and active.

"I had been suffering with stomach trouble for two years and was growing worse, being afflicted with constipation for several days, and after being forced to use a severe cathartic, would then have colic and diarrhea. In doubt, I began eating Fleischmann's Yeast between meals. By the end of the first week I began to notice a slight improvement. After establishing regular bowel habits my health and happiness have been steadily repairing the last four months. Fleischmann's Yeast has created a contented wife, a cheerful husband and happy child in our home."
(Mrs. J. B. Russel, 113 N. 5th St., Marquette, Mich.)

"Over the teacup one afternoon I talked with a girl friend of mine. She looked so fresh and keen about life and being my age but appearing many years younger, I was prompted to put the question, 'How have you preserved your youth and beauty?' 'Fleischmann's Yeast,' was her answer. So I began taking it. In one short year I have been rejuvenated from a chronic invalid to a woman of activities. Today I play baseball, ride bareback and run a quarter of a mile before breakfast.
(Mrs. Anastasia C. Neumann, Guthrie, Okla.)

"One noon one of my co-workers unwrapped a small yellow package and ate the contents. 'What do you eat that for?' I asked. 'It takes the pimples off your face.' It sounded fishy, but I thought anything worth trying if it would relieve me of the skin trouble I had been having. In about a week I felt my old pep coming back and could eat like a 'he-man' again. The world had given me Fleischmann's Yeast to counteract the 'tearing down' influences of my work."
(Mr. Stuart C. Frazier, Concrete, Wash.)

"For forty years I fought the demon Constipation—a losing battle. A pill box was my daily companion. I have taken enough pills to start a drug store. Fourteen months ago in desperation I started the Fleischmann treatment. A change for the better was noticed and finally health restored. Don't think you can conquer this demon in a week. I had been pronounced incurable. At the end of eight months—gone my sallow, pasty complexion, gas-laden stomach—cured! All gone! Do you wonder that I seem over-enthusiastic?"
(Mr. C. F. Robinson, 224 South 3rd St., Chickasha, Okla.)

"I was ordered to eat more but couldn't, lacking both appetite and strength. Life seemed an intolerable burden. I looked—and felt—half dead. Though a bit skeptical I decided to try Yeast. It seemed truly magical, for now—headaches and indigestion, 'that tired feeling,' are all gone and in their place—energy, pep and 'that grand and glorious feeling'"!
(Miss F. M. Green, Philadelphia, Pa.)

EAT FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST FOR HEALTH

Dissolve one cake in a glass of water (just hot enough to drink)

—before breakfast and at bedtime. Fleischmann's Yeast, when taken this way, is especially effective in overcoming or preventing constipation.

Or eat 2 or 3 cakes a day—spread on bread or crackers—dissolved in fruit juices or milk—or eat it plain.

Fleischmann's Yeast for Health comes only in the tinfoil package—it cannot be purchased in tablet form. All grocers have it. Start eating it today! You can order several cakes at a time, for yeast will keep fresh in a cool, dry place for two or three days.

Write us for further information or let us send you a free copy of our latest booklet on Yeast for Health. Address: Health Research Dept. 534, The Fleischmann Company, 701 Washington Street, New York.

Slenderness will make you more attractive–

Are you worried because you are overweight? Afraid you are losing your charm, your youthful figure?

Stout women are at a disadvantage. Pretty clothes no longer fit them, their movements are awkward, their attractiveness deserts them. Friends are sympathetic.

But many of these friends have a secret method of keeping slender! They use Marmola Tablets (thousands of men and women each year regain slender figures this way). These tablets will make you slender again, too. Try them. No exercises or diets—just a pleasant, healthful way of becoming slender.

All drug stores have them—one dollar a box. Or they will be sent in plain wrapper, postpaid by the Marmola Co., 1700 General Motors Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

Freedom and Grace

The slim effect, now so greatly desired, is as much a matter of suppleness as of proper lines. Rengo Belt Reducing Corsets are unusual because they give both, permitting that freedom of motion which means grace and at the same time reducing the figure to its best proportions. GIRLS—OH! SUCH A PRETTY DOLL!!

She Walks! She Talks! She Sleeps!

And She Even Winks! Girls! Girls!

Here is the DOLL that we have been looking for for years. If you let her drop, she won't break—neither will her eyes fall out. And say, you should hear her say:

Ma! Ma! Ma! Ma! Ma!

"Look at me walk"

Sounds just like a real, live, laughing baby in the room. And hold her by the arms, like the little girl in the picture, and she walks along with you. A real baby couldn't do more. She will also sit up all by herself. Picture her at a little dinner party sitting up at your little table. Now, don't forget the Eyes, pretty, and they actually move. When she lies down they really CLOSE; when she sits up and you shake her just the least bit, she winks. This doll is dressed to perfection in a little play dress with a pretty bow around the neck; socks, patent leather shoes, and all the fixings. When standing she is over 12 inches tall. A lady was in our office the other day; someone happened to move the doll and it said so plainly and so loud that the lady looked around to see where the Baby was. You want this Doll—I know you do—read how you can get her for yourself, all your own.

"MAMA"

MEANS SAYS HE "DIDN'T SWEAR" TO REPUDIATION OF TESTIMONY

Admits He Signed Statement Denying Charges He Made Against Daugherty Before Committee.

"I STICK TO MY SWORN TESTIMONY"

Hints at Further Disclosures and Denies His New Statement Repudiates Former Story.

By the Associated Press.

ABOARD WHEELER SPECIAL, EN ROUTE TO BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Sept. 22.—Gaston B. Means, investigator and star witness in the Daugherty inquiry, whose repudiation of his own testimony, was published yesterday, called Senator Wheeler, independent vice presidential candidate over the long-distance telephone last night and gave a startling version of that episode, Wheeler announced today to correspondents traveling with him on his campaign tour.

"Means asked me to call the Senate Investigating Committee together in order that he might present documentary evidence and personal testimony which would prove, he said, even grosser corruption in the executive department at Washington than was alleged in testimony before the hearings last spring," Wheeler declared.

"He told that he had been dealing with Blair Coan, who was an employe of the Republican National Committee and with Mr. Daugherty at Columbus, and with Mr. Todd prior to making his so-called repudiation. I advised him to get in touch with Senator Ashurt (Dem.), Arizona, a member of the committee who is in Washington and see about the matter.

"A Washington correspondent also called me, saying that Means had told him the story and that he, Means, had professed to be laying a trap for the people who are now using his affidavits."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—Gaston B. Means today partly disavowed the statement he made to former Attorney-General Harry M. Daugherty, in which he "repudiated" the testimony he gave against Daugherty and the Department of Justice before the Wheeler-Brookhart senatorial committee last winter.

Means admitted today that he had signed the statement made public by Daugherty, but said he "didn't swear to it" whereas his testimony before the Wheeler committee was under oath.

Means would not admit that the statement he gave to the former Attorney-General constitutes "a repudiation" of his sworn testimony before the Senate committee. It was signed, he said, "under certain circumstances."

"The statement used by Mr. Daugherty is not witnessed by anyone and was not made under oath said the ex-investigator. "When I swear to anything, I stick to it. I stick to my sworn testimony The statement held by Mr. Daugherty is not a sworn affidavit."

Hints at Further Disclosures.

Means was vague concerning the whole affair of the "repudiation." and inclined to be his usual mysterious self. He hinted at further "sensational disclosures" if the Wheeler committee would reconvene for a few days and give him an opportunity to testify. Until then, or until he has had a chance to confer with Senator Wheeler, he indicated he would have to remain silent.

Means told newspaper men who questioned him about the statement to Daugherty that in his "business" it was necessary to sign many things, and that "the full story is yet to come."

ROXIE STINSON DENIES TESTIFYING UNDER COERCION

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 22.—Miss Roxie Stinson, one of the Senate committee's star witnesses in the investigation of the administration of Harry M. Daugherty as United States Attorney-General, today characterized as ridiculous, a purported statement from Gaston B. Means, former Department of Jus-
